'SUPERMAN' THEORY ABOUT DEMPSEY NOT HELD ANY LONGER

When Brennan Stayed 12 Rounds Halo Surrounding Shipyard Hero Faded Away.

NEW YORK, July 1.—(By Henry L. Farrell, U. P. Staff Correspondent)—Before Jack Dempsey met Bill Brennan last winter in Madison Square Garden he was considered a superman.

When the clumsy, big Chicagoan stayed twelve rounds with him before he finally was put out, Dempsey got the one blot on his modern record.

Numerous reasons were ascribed for the disappointing showing of the champion, but the experts agreed that he had trained wrong.

Dempsey lived in an elaborately fitted apartment on Riverside drive getting ready for Brennan and he worked out on the rocks in Central Park and boxed on the late Granite State.

"They made a mistake trying to train around the bright lights. They'll go to the mountains to get ready for Carpenter," the wise ones said.

When the champion came east to get ready for the bout with Carpenter he went to the health farm of Freddy Welsh in Summit, N. J.

ON EVE OF FIGHT BOTH MEN ARE BUNDLES OF NERVES AS THEY WAIT FOR RINGING OF THE BELL

This Nervousness May Result in Battle Being Ended in First Round According to Corbett.

BY JAMES JO CORBETT
(Copyright, 1921, by The International News Service.)

NEW YORK, July 1.—With the big fight only one day off everybody's nerves are on edge.

Dempsey and Carpenter are bundles of nerves today. You can bet your life on that. They would not be two of the world's greatest boxers if they were nerveless creatures.

Nervousness is a good indication. It is necessary in a fighter. It doesn't indicate fear. It is simply anticipation over the coming battle. A boxer who isn't nervously inclined is generally a lunkhead or he isn't game.

The fellow with ambition and intelligence is naturally nervous. Dempsey is that sort. So is Carpenter. And this surely will be a nervous pair when they await the ringing of that first bell.

For this reason I have considered all along that the big fight may be over in one punch and that either man may win it. Nervous energy will drive both Dempsey and Carpenter hard during the first round and those who see the contest are very liable to see the fastest fight ever staged by heavyweights. It certainly has all the earmarks of such a fight.

If the fight should end in a round or so, condition will not count for or against either fighter but if it should be strung out and prove fast and furious, the physical angle will be a big factor.

To be frank I did not like Dempsey's habit of knocking out his sparring partners every day. It looked to me as though the big fellow figured that was the quickest way to dispose of them and avoid doing so much boxing. If such was the case he was in dire danger of going stale. I think, however, he is all right now and from reports he will be in fine fettle tomorrow.

I got an angle on the sort of fight Carpenter will probably start to put up in the first round from a friend who saw the Frenchman in private. He told me he spent practically all of his training period this week in defensive sparring and footwork with both imaginary and real sparring partners working with him. To my notion this is exactly what he should do if he expects Dempsey to make it a rushing affair.

Faeth, who started on the mound for Vernon, was replaced by McGraw after the fourth. Off McGraw in five innings but two hits and one run were made.

CARPENTIER REGARDED IN FRANCE AS A REAL HERO IN WORLD WAR

Service Record Shows He Was in Thick of Fighting and Not a Favored Soldier.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, July 1.—Much has been said of Georges Carpentier's war record. France considers him one of the war idols. In America some say Dempsey's challenger was a slacker who wrapped the flag around him for defense. Others claim that he was virtually drafted and placed far behind the lines, out of danger.

His war record, secured from the Dossier French aviation headquarters, shows that he was a real fighter, spent eighteen months actually at the front and was decorated with the Croix de Guerre and Medaille Militaire.

His service record, which records his every move for five years, shows that he reported at the outbreak of the war in 1914 and was first attached to the Second Aeronautic Division as a chauffeur, in which capacity he served until he received a license as a pilot May 24 1915.

He was sent to the front with a squadron and remained there three months in active service flying over the German lines in a Farman two-seater. He was sent back as a spare pilot to the general reserve headquarters on August 18, 1915, to await assignment to another escadrille.

Twelve days later he injured his leg in an accident, but recovered and was sent back to the front September 11, 1915, with the Marman escadrille No. 55. He was engaged there in reconnaissance work in preparation for the unsuccessful Champagne drive which began Sept. 25, 1915.

Carpentier won the Croix de Guerre for his work in this offensive with the following citation: "Sept. 25, he did not hesitate to fly during misty weather and rain less than 200 yards above the enemy lines. He has given proof of many circumstances of sangfroid, never returning until his machine was riddled with bullets and shell splinters."

Carpentier was transferred to "Piermain" escadrille No. 5 on April 19, 1916, during the attack of the crown prince on Verdun.

On Nov. 5, 1916, he received the Medaille Militaire for heroic action during the French counter attack by which Doumonot Vaux was recaptured. The citation follows:

"Sergeant Pilot Carpentier as a clever aviator impresses everyone with bravery executing daily perilous missions. He distinguished himself during the attack October 26 flying over the enemy lines at a low altitude for four hours, despite unfavorable weather and even in contempt of danger."

Carpentier was forced by illness in December, 1916, to quit the front and he never returned. He went to the Vixy Chailion hospital and was then transferred to Clignancourt, just outside of Paris. He was granted two months leave Jan. 15, 1917, and in February obtained permission to visit the United States giving exhibitions but the trip later was called off.

On May 16, 1917, he was assigned to the escadrille stationed at Algeria but was declared unfit to continue as a pilot and was detached from aviation. He then became physical instructor at the Joinville school of the French army, five miles outside of Paris.

He served as a boxing instructor, touring all of the French camps and many of the American camps. Six months after the armistice he was transferred back to aviation and then demobilized.
