FATAL MISTAKE OF AGES WOULD BE ARMAMENT RACE WITH THE U. S.

This Is Opinion of Jan Smuts, South African Premier Expressed at Conference.

LONDON, July 16.—(A. P.)—Commander Viscount Curzon, M. P., eminent authority on international politics, in an interview granted the International News Service discussed the recent pronouncements of Lloyd George and General Jan Smuts that a rapprochement should be entered into with the United States on armaments.

General Smuts stated at the imperial conference, following Lloyd George's overtures to America, that it was his belief that the most fatal mistake of all would be a race in armaments with America. Commander Viscount Curzon in his interview discussed recent limitation suggestions and takes the view that the formula for a naval agreement should be a financial one, in opposition, presumably to the admiralty view, which is that it should be expressed in "big ships." Lord Curzon said:

"Although we have been discussing this question of a naval holiday for so long, the clear fact remains that up to now there has been nothing but talk. Whether international agreement is to be arrived at still remains to be seen, for the lead that we gave long ago has not been followed.

"Japan, it is true, is credited with views similar to our own, but America is silent, and we can only speculate as to the eventual outcome of it all.

"No good can come from rearmament. I regard it as absolutely all-important in this matter that we should not be tempted, however strongly we may feel, into any criticism of whatever action America feels justified in adopting.

"America's Rights. "It must be remembered that America is perfectly entitled to take any action she likes. We have no right to cavil at her decision, even if it should not agree with what we may regard as the best. If we were in her position we should resent interference.

"It is obvious that there are some Americans who want their country to possess the biggest navy in the world, and to a nation that prides itself on going ahead the ambition is understandable. They say they can afford to gratify their desire, and they do not see why they should not.

"I am quite certain there is no aggressive intent behind such plans, for America is not aggressive—at any rate in the sense that Germany was. It is simply an expression by a wealthy nation of its national pride in being able to say with regard to the navy as it does in other activities, that it possesses 'the biggest thing yet.'

"At the same time, such views have to be reconciled with the idea of the League of Nations and similar schemes that had their genesis on the other side of the Atlantic; and I am afraid it is not thoroughly recognized by all Americans that there is a certain danger in owning these enormous fighting machines.

It will require an outlay of 1,500,000 marks to stage the Oberammergau play and the villagers are extremely anxious about the German political situation, lest conditions be such that foreigners will not attend.

The 360 burghers, who constitute the descendants of the original peasants who made the vow to produce the play decennially, personally assume the responsibility for this expenditure, and the failure to attract sufficient visitors to meet the cost would result in the bankruptcy of practically the entire village, as the Oberammergau folk have slight resources.

Most of the burghers are wood-carvers, potters, painters, sculptors, farmers, merchants and small shopkeepers. Only the descendants of the villagers who were saved from the plague in 1323 take part in the Passion Play and assume responsibility for its production.

Next October will be a fateful month for the names of the villagers who are to have the leading roles in the spectacle will be announced.

ACTORS FOR PASSION PLAY WILL BE MADE KNOWN IN OCTOBER

Many Will Doubtless be Same as Those in Cast When Play Was Last Produced in 1910.

OBERAMMERGAU, Bavaria, July 16.—(A. P.)—Thirty performances of the Passion Play have been scheduled for 1922 by the committee of 21 which is directing the spectacle, but this number will be increased if the attendance demands, as was the case both in 1900 and 1910.

It will require an outlay of 1,500,000 marks to stage the Oberammergau play and the villagers are extremely anxious about the German political situation, lest conditions be such that foreigners will not attend.

The 360 burghers, who constitute the descendants of the original peasants who made the vow to produce the play decennially, personally assume the responsibility for this expenditure, and the failure to attract sufficient visitors to meet the cost would result in the bankruptcy of practically the entire village, as the Oberammergau folk have slight resources.

Most of the burghers are wood-carvers, potters, painters, sculptors, farmers, merchants and small shopkeepers. Only the descendants of the villagers who were saved from the plague in 1323 take part in the Passion Play and assume responsibility for its production.

Next October will be a fateful month for the names of the villagers who are to have the leading roles in the spectacle will be announced.

To be selected to enact the role of Jesus Christ or one of the apostles is a far greater honor to an Oberammergau man than election to the presidency of Germany or any other office within the gift of the entire German people.

And any woman of Oberammergau would far rather be chosen to play the role of Mary or Martha or Mary Magdalene than to be in the position of Frau Ebert as mistress of the President's palace in Berlin.

Many of the actors in the Passion Play next year will doubtless be the same as those in the cast when the play was last produced in 1910. Anton Lang, who enacted the role of Jesus Christ in 1900 and 1910, will probably be chosen for the part again, as he is still young enough to undertake the arduous task and looks the part so well that younger aspirants are not likely to displace him.

Ottile Zwink, who played the role of Mary in 1910, has married since that time. No married woman can play a role. Consequently all the young women of Oberammergau with ability and experience as actors are eagerly trying to qualify for the highly important part. Paula Rendi, daughter of Peter Rendi, the sculptor, who was Joseph of Arimathea in the play of 1910 and enacted the role of St. John 21 years ago, is one of the most promising candidates for the role of Mary. Franklin Rendi has shown great ability in minor religious plays which are produced constantly by the Oberammergau folk as a means of training actors for the Passion Play.

Marie Mayr, who played the role of Mary Magdalene in the 1910 production, has also married and is living in Chicago. Marie Schmidt, who was the Veronica in the last production, has also married.

Eighty-two of the Oberammergau men died during the war and many of the older actors of the last production will be disqualified by age for important roles. Consequently there are scores of places in the cast to which young men with ability as actors may aspire. They have begun to let their hair grow. Wigs and makeup are not permitted by the directors of the Passion play.

Practically all the older men who had important parts in the last production have never cut their hair. Many of them have retained their long beards and pride themselves of their resemblance to the biblical characters, they have depicted.
