He is with the Grossman Undertak-ing Co. there. A number of folders will be sent to him.

eason Opens Later,

Hunters who are keen about shootng grouse and native pheasant should member that the season opens 15 days later this year than heretofore, secording to a statement made this orong by W. H. Albee, deputy game warden. It will be September 1 before these birds may be hunted. Pre-rious to this year, the season has opened August 15, and the statement was made by the warden so that sports en might be warned of the change There is no open season on turile oves this year.

Engineers Make Report.

Cunningham member of the firm of Barr and Cunningham, consulting engineers of Portland, has been received by Mayor G. A. Hartman. Mr. Curningham made a preliminary ex-amb ation of some of the problems of the city during his recent visit. It is considered probable that the report will be the first piece of work to be considered by the recently appointed City Planning Commission which will meet the latter part of next week, it is thought, for its organization meeting.

U. S. POST OFFICES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(f. N. S.)
-Post-war readjustment at the largbe held and turned over to the federal er postoffices throughout the country is to begin at once, according to detailed instructions that have been sent to about 10,000 postmasters by the post office department. These instructions called attention to the acute financial condition of the country and to the urgency of meeting the desires of the president for economy in public expenditures as far as possible in the postal service, While aiming at extravagant and expensive methods which crept in during and immediately after the war, positive instructions have been give: to postmasters to keep constantly in mind that the service must not be cur tailed or impaired. Plans for the reduction in expendi-tures at post offices, which will amount to approximately $5,000,000 out of the $15,000,000 to be saved in postal expenditures for the current fis-cal year, have been under way for several months. Careful comparisons of expenditures with the receipts and usiness transacted have been made. Business and receipts at many offices doubled and trebled, incident to the war, and clerical and carrier forces were increased accordingly, including extraordinary expenditures for auxil-iary and substitute service, as well as for overtime. The general suvey of postal conditions shows that, while this emergency has long since passed. and with population and business greatly lessened at many of these larger offices, there are few that have made any appreciable curtailment in expenditures or voluntarily surrendered any clerks or carriers. On the other hand, the general suvey shows, expenditures for auxiliary help have continued unstinted, overtime has apparently been unnecessarily employed and repeated requests have been made and repeated requests have been made for aditional clerks and carriers. Postmasters are asked to consider the revision of schedules of clerks and carriers; the shifting of forces from one section to another, according to the volume of work, and to arrange the work of the office so as to avoid necessity for overtime work, as well as to carefully scrutinize all misellaneous expenses of their offices. Public participation in this effort to save at post offices is suggested by use of mail receptacles at residences and business houses. Early mailing, facing of mail, use of precanceled stamps and simple routing of mail by
