THE "OUGHT-TO" SCORE

The game was done and home we came, and he muttered low to me:
"I had a four on number five, and it should have been a three;
I took three points on number six, a common fault, its true,
But I'd have made a five back there if I had taken two.
"I took a peek on number seven that cost an extra stroke,
Had I been careful as I should, the ninety I'd have broken;
On number eight I found the ditch, and there a five I made,
Yet I've had fours there every time the last few weeks I've played."

CHILD TRAINING AT HOME

This is No. 44 of the fourth series of articles issued by the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York City. They are appearing weekly in these columns.

RAINY DAY PASTIMES
By Mabel R. Young

A rainy day in the kindergarten is always just a little freer, a little brighter and happier than the ordinary day.

Why should a rainy day at home be long and dull? Here are a few suggestions for making the next one a red letter day for your little folks.

First, let the children make scrap-books from all the pieces of saved wrapping paper; let them cut the paper the right size, then fold and sew the she is into book form. Have one book for crayon drawing, one for free-cutting pictures, and another for clippings from magazines, papers and seed catalogues. Provide a pin or basket for the snips. This occupation will keep the children amused for an hour or more, at the same time developing accuracy and originality.

Another period can be happily spent making potato animals. Burned matches fasten heads and bodies together and make splendid legs, elephant trunks and necks for giraffes. A potato circus in full parade is a sight to make even the crosslest grown-up smile in spite of himself. If potatoes cannot be used, small animal crackers from the grocery store make a good substitute. With the help of building blocks, the children can make a farm and barnyard, and the animals and blocks will provide a play "Now's Ark."

Save all the clean burned matches, lollipop sticks and meat skewers in a box, as they provide a never-failing source of amusement. The stick pictures that can be made? Houses and barns, fences and ladders, beds, chairs and tables can be formed by the little hands. Even a park can be laid out with trees, benches and flowerbeds; or a camp with rows of tents and soldiers marching in line.

There are many games adaptable for indoors. Ball, tennis and bean bags are always good.

Stories and nursery rhymes can be dramatized and sense games played, for instance, the "Bell-ringer," in which one child blindfolded, tries to catch another, who rings a bell as he moves about. Another good game is the "Mystery Man," who can be impersonated by one of the children. All kinds of articles are placed by him in the hands of the "blind-man," who must guess what they are. Then the play of tasting and smelling makes the time pass profitably and pleasantly.

With a few helpful suggestions, children can work out and adapt for themselves all of these games and spend the hours indoors happily busy, while a favorite story retold by the mother gives a perfect ending to a joyous rainy day.

The Moral Influence of Kindergarten Training.

Recently Judge Alfred J. Talley of New York expressed the opinion that corporal punishment at home and in school would keep many young men out of prison.

No form of punishment can of itself develop the moral nature. Wrong feeling and action must be checked, but instead of developing right motives, punishment merely stops action. If all of the young men who are in our prisons could have received the early training in truthfulness, honesty, patriotism, and right habits of thought and conduct which the kindergarten provides, they would now be happy, useful members of society.

If no kindergarten has been provided for the children of your community, you will be doing them a great service by working to secure one. The National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York City, will furnish information and advice upon request.

DIE IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

SALT LAKE, Aug. 13.—(U. P.)—Four people were killed last night when an express train struck an automobile near the city limits.

TOO MUCH SPEED

IN 1912 the great White Star liner "Titanic" collided with an iceberg in the Atlantic and carried 1517 persons down with her. Investigation revealed that the operators and navigators had ignored the laws of caution for the demands of speed.

Last weekend the steamship "Alaska" sank in the "graveyard of the ships" of the coast of California with a probable loss of a half hundred lives. From facts now at hand it looks like another plain case of taking a chance for the sake of speed.

Had the disaster resulted from a heavy storm, the public would have been hesitant about classifying the misadventure as preventable, but it happened in the midst of summer and with a calm sea. A heavy fog prevailed, to be sure, but that should only have been an added reason for more care and caution. Ships carry instruments which show location regardless of fogs and darkness and the navigators knew they were off the treacherous rocks of Blunt's Reef, the scene of numerous other marine mishaps. Common regard for the safety of those under their care, which should always be the first regard of captain and crew, should have dictated that, with an impenetrable fog obscuring the shoreline, the ship keep well out to sea and away from all possibility of striking the hidden reef, even though the trip to San Francisco would have been lengthened by several hours.

The operating company, however, had competition and the traveling public puts such a premium on a few hours that it rewards with its patronage the line giving the fastest service. Therefore, this company, to meet the competition, cut its sailing time from Portland to San Francisco by a day. And, to do this, the ships must hug the shore and save every mile of distance possible.

Too much speed! The Alaska disaster is only a small part of the price we pay for our demand for haste and hurry. There have been other tragedies of the sea chargeable to the same cause and there have been train wrecks and automobile wrecks without number.

THE STORY OF $5000

REPORT has it that a certain lady, desiring to make a first payment on a piece of property acquired, went to the bank, opened her safety deposit box and secured several hundred dollars from hoardings amounting to several thousands.

It was her own money and she had a perfect right to bury it in a safety deposit vault or, for that matter, in a hole in the ground or in the trunk of a hollow tree. She would doubtless be surprised if told that the withdrawal of her money from the banks and, therefore, from general circulation was working a real injury to her community and her neighbors. She was, nevertheless, doing that very thing.

Perhaps we can best explain what we mean by repeating a story of a certain $5000 which was put into circulation and then withdrawn again.

A few years ago a miser died in a certain town, which may be called Graniteville. The executor of his estate found $5000 in gold stored away in the house, and deposited it with the bank, thereby increasing the deposits of that bank by $5000. Shortly after John Smith borrowed of the bank $4500 of the amount deposited in order to buy stone with which to build a block of buildings. The local granite company, having outside income sufficient to pay its operating expenses, deposited the entire $4500 received from Smith with the bank; so the deposit of the bank became $9500 greater. Soon after, Jones came into the bank and borrowed $4200 with which to buy stone to build a block in another part of the town, and upon receipt of Jones' $4200 the granite company made another deposit with the bank, increasing the deposit to $13,700.

The following day a Mr. Brown by means of a loan from the bank, bought stone, and the granite company further increased its deposit to $17,500. This same method of procedure was continued until the $5000 in gold which was originally deposited resulted in increasing the deposits of the bank by $50,000 and the loans by $45,000. Moreover, this $5000 enabled the granite company to suppose it had $45,000 in cash on deposit in the bank and provided for the building of several stone blocks in the city. In other words, the deposit of this $5000 in gold resulted in creating an apparent wealth in Graniteville of about $100,000.

When the miser's estate was settled, this $5000 was turned over to his only daughter who had the same hoarding disposition as her father. She immediately withdrew in gold the $5000 from the bank and placed the same in a safe deposit box with the following result. The bank in order to show its proper "reserve" was obliged to demand payment of all loans made to Smith, Jones, Brown and the other men. In order to pay these loans all of these men were obliged to sell the building which they had erected and in order to protect the price of granite, the granite company was obliged to purchase these buildings, which necessitated the withdrawal of their deposits from the bank. Thus the withdrawal of this $5000 in gold resulted in a $50,000 decrease in the deposits of the bank, caused the $45,000 cash assets of the granite company to vanish, and caused half a dozen more citizens to lose their property.
