THE BOOK SHELF

NEW BOOKS AT THE COUNTY LIBRARY.

Bonjour—Real democracy in operation.
 The author's clear account and criticism of Swiss democratic institutions are all the more valuable because he has seen them working from the inside. A study of the Swiss Confederation is of immense interest and value to a foreigner. Here is a state which appears to have been faced with the problems of racial and religious minorities in their acutest form and yet have solved them more successfully than any other state. This book, we think, clearly indicates the cause of this success. A book to be studied by every American who realizes that the seemingly clumsy handling of national problems is not due so much to the fault of one part or another as to certain fundamental provisions of our constitution.

Burbank—Woman as decoration.
 The book is original, amusing, instructive and vivacious. It is not alone with the Grecian lady that Miss Burbank concerns herself. She is even more conscious of the woman of today, women like Mrs. Vernon Castle, Mrs. Cone Nast, or Geraldine Farrar, as exponents of what is appropriate, strong and beautiful of line and distinctive in style. In other words, this always entertaining book may be looked upon as the apotheosis of the fashion book. No one can read it understandingly and not become a better dressed woman for so doing. Moreover, good dressing will take on a new aspect and seem to be what it really is an expression of self-knowledge, harmonious perception, and the historic continuity of elegant costume.

Chester—Stories for Talks to Boys.
 All workers with young people know that the story is the part of a talk that is remembered best. The author, long a successful boy's work secretary, has gathered from many sources illustrative material upon which group leaders, Sunday school teachers, and speakers can draw to drive their message home.

Religion Among American Men.
 A great cross section of American life this our army in the World War has surely been. What it has shown of the religious life of American men, and the vital lessons which the church should learn from it, are presented in this, the first of a series of studies made by the committee on the war and religious outlook.

Corwin—Constitution.
 This book contains the complete text of the constitution of the United States with full explanations of all those passages which seem the least obscure.

Crowder—Spirit of selective service.
 General Crowder presents a brief history of compulsory military training and a detailed account of the formation and operation of our own selective service system. He describes the function of every part of the intricate machine, which he created, with its local boards established in every section of the country, and he points out the immense value of this machine and the great possibilities for its usefulness in peace-time. He believes that this machinery can, and should be, used for the purpose of furthering education, settling labor disputes and aiding activities of nation-wide scope. In this book he sets forth his theory in a clear, interesting manner.

Huebner—Ocean steamship traffic management.
 The purpose of this book is to present in systematic order the particular facts, forms, practices, functions and principles which the men engaged in or contemplating employment in the shipping business should know with respect to steamship traffic management. The text is divided into three parts. Part I deals with the traffic organization of ocean shipping, and the organization and functions of the various types of ocean services and traffic agencies are classified and defined. In part II, ocean shipping documents, their contents, forms and uses are described, and many are reproduced. Part III deals with ocean

Stoddard—Rising tide of color.
 White world-supremacy is in danger. The world-wide ascendancy of the white race, apparently so unshakable is in reality threatened by the colored races. Such is the author's thesis. This will surprise and startle many. Yet Mr. Stoddard analyzes carefully the relations—political, racial, geographical, and political—between the white race and the yellow, or black and red races. He shows that the colored races are increasing enormously beyond the increase of the whites, that they entertain a common dislike for white domination in many regions and active hatred and that they now show a tendency to overflow their boundaries and to expand into white areas. The book, which examines the character of each of the great colored races and nations, showing conclusive evidence of aggressive awakening at least among the most advanced, the yellows and the browns, is a clear, sharp warning to the whites, an appeal to white solidarity, a condemnation of such wars as the great one just ended which so frightfully weaken the race.

Lippmann—Liberty and the News.
 Freedom, in the modern world, depends on untrammeled access to all the news. This book is a cool, clear and informed exposition of how deeply public opinion has become involved in a web of propaganda, and suggest the possibilities of a press properly informed and really free.

OFFICE CAT

BY JUNIUS

Bonded in Matrimony.
 Mr. and Mrs. Quart left by afternoon train for Boston, on their wedding trip.

We note that the Lincoln, Nebraska, city council has ruled that horse shows may be played on Sunday. Come west, young men, and we'll show you a good game on the Sabbath and other days back of Hamley's.

The appearance of the plane in the sky Saturday gave many local residents a crick in their necks. A youth of our acquaintance confessed that had he the funds, he would take his lady-love aloft and propose, choosing this means of escaping prying ears. Quite right, isn't there mention somewhere of "marriages being made in heaven?"

Riddle.

Dead men know what I long to know—
 Of the show that's passed and the passing show;
 Of kings who ruled, and did no wrong,
 From Kankakee to old Hong Kong;
 Of men who heard the eagle scream,
 And then passed on to dream and dream;
 Of men once blind, and who now see—
 Of all who won the selfsame bed,
 And learned what only the gods have said.
 But do dead men know that they are dead?

Poor Mr. Garth.
 From the Webster City, Ia., Daily News.
 J. N. Garth, who has been ill for the last month or so, is a little improved today. During the heated term, Mr. Garth became very warm and cooled off too rapidly, since then he has not been well.
