

MEXICO'S WAR EXILES HAVE HARD LOT; MANY GO BROKE IN AMERICA

Many Are Forced to do Manual Labor to Keep From Starving; Appeal to Friends.

BY LOUIS P. KIRBY
(International News Service Staff Correspondent.)

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Sept. 1.—Pathetic letters have been received here from some of the political exiles who fled across the border when President Carranza's government was overthrown and made the mistake of plotting against the new man in power instead of burying the hatchet. Some, according to letters written to friends, are seeing hard times.

Many of these men, having held political office for years, were not fitted to find positions in a foreign field except as laborers, and some who once knew the pomp of the capital are toiling with their hands.

Even men who held high positions under Carranza are reported to be "hand up." General Candido Aguilar Carranza's son-in-law and a member of his cabinet, is said to be eager to get back into Mexico.

His desire to return is believed here to be a confession that the Carranzista coffers are empty and that there is no way of refilling them.

Work in the Office
General Aguilar is in San Antonio de la General Francisco Murquia, who has made a fortune but troublesome effort to start an uprising during the last six or eight months. What Murquia is doing on the other side of the border is not known, but it is said that he has little money and that he will face the necessity of going to work unless partisans help him. He had a little book store near the plaza in Chihuahua, when revolution threw him into a high place. At one time he was master of Chihuahua and stabled his horses royally in the Theatre of the Heroes.

After years during which his experiences ranged from despotic ruler of a State to command of an army division, General Murquia would not it is believed, return to the hum-drum life of a bookkeeper in a dusty little store. But if he failed to send money across the border in his day of power and prosperity he has a little fiscal problem to solve which may be more vexatious than any presented to him when he ruled Chihuahua.

Banditry Exists
Rebels still exist in Mexico, but few are better than bandits. A troublesome band is reported to be operating in Oaxaca and the region of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. These rebels are not strong, as it has been thought necessary to send only a part of a regiment against them, under command of Colonel Teodilo Zapata. The rebel leader is Pedro Hernandez, who started his little uprising at Tuxtepec, State of Oaxaca. He is described here as a man of no importance, but that description would have fitted Pancho Villa in the days when he fed his band on stolen cows.

The absence of cows in many places is said to be the explanation of the absence of rebels or bandits. Where there is no cattle banditry languishes.

Range land in parts of Mexico is completely bare of cattle.

HISTORIC NAME BORNE BY U. S. BATTLE SHIP

BY J. N. SANDIFER,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The new battleship Washington, to be launched today, will be the sixth navy ship of the line to inherit that historic name and will have a record to uphold.

The first five of these warships, christened at different periods in American history, were named after the United States' first chief executive. The present ship of that name is named in honor of Washington state.

Most of the early ships named Washington were small brigs lightly armed, which participated in the naval affairs of the Revolutionary war, or in the private sea fights in the ensuing period. The first ship of the name on record was a "public and privately owned brig" which was armed with twelve guns and ten swivels, and this numerous armament overwhelmed a brig named the Georgia, which was loaded with rum and sugar. There were a number of schooners and small sloops of private owners which bore the name of the first president.

First Had Light Guns.
The first navy ship Washington, however, was an eight-gun galley, which formed a part of Arnold's fleet in the battle of Lake Champlain, October 11, 1776. In this battle the Washington, who fought from the quarterdeck of the ship, and at the end of the engagement was the only officer left for duty. She was greatly damaged and later captured by the British, who sent in reports of the brave general and his navy crew.

The second Washington during the Revolution, was captured by the British and burned before she received any armament. The third ship was a much larger vessel, and she mounted seventy-four guns, and cruised in the Mediterranean from 1810 to 1818. The next Washington was a brig, which like our modern yachts in 1917, was converted from peaceful pursuits to service in the Mexican war, taking part in the capture of Tabasco and other exciting affairs of the period.

Preceding the present Washington was the vessel now known as the Seattle an armored cruiser first christened the Washington and which was launched in 1905. This vessel had a long record for service.

REFUGEES ASK FOR ASYLUM IN AMERICA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—(U. N. S.)—Fleeing as refugees from Persia and portions of Turkey adjacent to that country, hundreds of Assyrians are praying for admission to the United States, the department of labor today announced through the bureau of immigration. Under the 3 per cent immigration law the number of those people admissible into the United States is limited to seventy-eight per cent.

There recently arrived about 200 of them at Boston, New York and Seattle, and appeals were made to President Harding and Secretary of Labor Davis from relief societies, churches and other organizations to admit them. Secretary Davis, realizing the extreme hardship which would be imposed by deportation, ordered that the Assyrians otherwise admissible at all ports be admitted temporarily on their own personal bonds.

While Secretary Davis believes in tempering the administration of the
