PEGGY JOYCE, ELUDING DETECTIVES, IS BACK IN PARIS WITH CASH

PARIS, Sept. 2.—(U. N. S.)—Peggy Hopkins Joyce, who is suing her multimillionaire husband, J. Stanley Joyce, of Chicago, for a vast sum of alimony and a divorce, has arrived here. The arsenickers knew it at once, for her first move was to buy a couple of de-collete gowns.
 Peggy slipped out of New York, although three detectives had been assigned to watch her residence by her husband. Joyce has testified Peggy cost him $1,398,216.32 within the compass of a single year, prior to the break that resulted in the filing of the now famous Chicago divorce suit.

 "Somewhere in France" Peggy, the aesthete, has a cache containing jewels worth $700,000, which, being converted into French francs at the prevailing rate, makes the sum of $250,000 francs.
 Madame Peggy has another financial basis for a happy career in Gay Paree. Judge Joseph Sabath, in Chicago, allowed her $1,350 a month alimony, in addition to $27,500 counsel fees and $12,500 for investigation expenses.
 So with the estate in jewels ready to be worn or sold and the income, she is in a position to be one of the best-fixed women financially in the French capital.

And, besides, there are no restrictions in Paris upon the going and coming, to say nothing of the doing, to those who have the francs.
 There are other things, in addition, to make the trip alluring, if any other things were needed. Peggy's wardrobe has always been the first cousin to the net proceeds of a gold mine, and she left most of it in Paris. She offered it to her friend, Edna Nichols, a business woman of much ability, and an old pal, if Edna would sell her automobile.
 Miss Nichols returned to the United States without selling the auto, and the wardrobe, plus the automobile is likewise to be considered in an estimate of the Paris resources of the former actress.
