BOYLEN FIRST LOCAL VETERAN TO GET IN LOAN APPLICATION

To Ernest Boyley, 208 Johnson street, goes the honor of being the first Pendleton man to fill out an application of a loan from the state under the provisions of the veterans' aid bill which was ratified in June at the special election. P. L. Idleman, commander of Post No. 23, American Legion, filled Boyley's application out yesterday. A host of ex-service men were on hand early this morning to secure aid from Idleman in filling out their applications. The American National Bank will be kept open from 4 till 6 in the afternoon, and from 7 to 9 in the evenings for this service, but Idleman declared today that it would be impossible for him to render any assistance during the rest of the time. He will be at the bank this afternoon and evening to accommodate any veterans wanting a little help on their preliminary blanks.

LOCAL HUNTERS RETURN PLEASED WITH SUCCESS; GET THREE FINE BUCKS

Dan Bowman Bulldogged His Buck and Had Lively Time According to Eye Witnesses.

Three fine bucks bagged by a party of six hunters has established a batting average of .500 which is a source of much pride to the lucky half-dozen men who composed the party. The men who killed the bucks are Earl Kirkpatrick, Judge J. W. Maloney and D. C. Bowman. The others in the party were J. H. Gwinn, Frank Bowman and Paul Mortimer. All of the deer were killed in the Camas Creek country below Lehman Springs. Judge Maloney got his early last Thursday morning shortly after the party had started the hunt. The animal is a splendid specimen, and has five points. Four shots were fired to effect the kill, and then a lot of digging and spending of muscular energy were required before the deer could be taken to the car. Kirkpatrick got his big buck on a freak shot. He saw the animal as he passed some open ground, but lost him in underbrush before he could draw bead. Calculating the buck's speed and position, he fired into the brush and the bullet struck the buck in the head and clipped one big horn. The horns are among the largest ever secured by local hunters, 10 points on either side being worn by the 250-lb. animal. The severing of the horn will probably prevent mounting of the specimen. Kirkpatrick has been hunting for deer every season for the past 14 years, and he was elated over his success.

To Dan Bowman there fell the lot of "pulling off about as spectacular a kill as a hunter could wish. Dan bulldogged his buck, and he had a lively time of it, according to stories that have been told to his friends. He blazed away twice at the buck, and the first shot inflicted a harmless flesh wound. The second one, however, halved him, and Dan quickly climbed a hill to make sure of his success. The second shot had nipped a horn and dazed the animal, and just as Dan was ready to use his knife the deer shook off his daze and was ready to make a quick getaway. Not wanting to lose his game after that hot a session, Dan grabbed the buck by the horns, and with the animal in the lead, man and beast did the shimmy down the hill. Traveling was rather speedy, Dan declares, and he used his vocal cords for all they were worth to summon his friends. Finally, getting one horn of the buck hooked behind a tree so he could hold him with one hand, a big stone was used of the deer's forehead, and the game belonged to Dan. Eugene Blanchett who was out with Earl Counts also secured a buck.

BELIEF THAT CONVICT HAS ASSISTANCE STRENGTHEN

Officers Expect to Find Convict's Discarded Clothes as Clue to Direction He Took.

TACOMA, Sept. 6.—(U. P.)—Officers guards and possemen, working in the vicinity of McNeil Island penitentiary, have abandoned the theory that Gardner is still on the island and are now working on the mainland. They think the daring bandit made good his escape across the treacherous waters. This strengthens the belief that Gardner had confederates with whom he planned his escape. Bogart and Impny are believed to have been drawn into the plot by Gardner's magnetic personality solely as a shield for the bandit himself. Every Impny before planned an escape he had another prisoner escape with him, thus dividing the trails. Officers expect to find the convicts discarded clothing as the first clue to the direction he took.

Escape Believed Planned. TACOMA, Sept. 6.—(U. P.)—Roy Gardner is free again. A thorough search of McNeil Island following his escape yesterday failed to reveal the whereabouts of the daring mail bandit. It is believed he escaped to the mainland, although the government launches are patrolling the waters all about the island, and searchers are guarding every cove where the fugitive may be. Gardner's escape it is believed, was planned. He had wire pieces with him. He had evidently arranged with Lawardus Bogart and Everett Impny to escape with him and draw the guards' fire while the mail bandit made good his escape. Gardner's companions failed, one being killed, and the other possibly fatally wounded. His escape was timed to the minute, the trio leaving the northern prisoners during an exciting moment in the labor day baseball game.
