THE WAY IT HANGS

Half the effectiveness of a suit is in the way the coat hangs. The fronts, the lapels, the sleeves, all seem to "flow" into the general lines of the draping; and the flare of the skirt simply carries out the effect. It is in these respects that

800 'AMERICANIZED' RUSSIAN CHILDREN RETURNED IN SAFETY

Children's Ark Commanded by American Red Cross Returns Children to Parents.

By WILLIAM G. CAYCE, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—Ninety per cent of the 800 Russian Children's Colony, who were taken practically around the world in an effort to reach home by the American Red Cross, have been safely returned to their parents.

The remaining few whose relatives could not be located are being cared for by the Society of Towns of Petrograd in a good boarding school, according to Dr. Herbert M. Coulter, who had charge of the "ark" which took the children from Vladivostok to Riga and who arrived here recently.

Dr. Coulter brought an interesting account of the reunion of some of the youngsters with their parents. In several cases parents did not recognize their own children.

The trip from Vladivostok to Riga and Petrograd was accomplished in three months, with stops made at San Francisco, New York and Brest, where supplies were taken on.

"When in Brest," said Dr. Coulter, "we took on enough supplies for six months, because we did not know where we were going to land next. From Brest we headed for the Baltic Sea via the Kiel canal. The Baltic Free States were very friendly to us, but did not want so many Russians to land upon their shores.

"Upon our arrival in Petrograd we secured the use of the Halina Sanatorium, which was built by the czar shortly before the war for treatment of tubercular patients but was never used. With this as a headquarters we were able to distribute the children in an orderly manner and in groups of one hundred at a time until all were disposed of," said Dr. Coulter.

"How some of those grateful parents welcomed their 'long lost' children was certainly more than touching," said the doctor. "In many cases where I delivered the children in Riga to their parents in person their parents did not even recognize them. This is easily explained, for the half-starved children of two years ago were quite a contrast to the well fed and two years older children returned to them. In many cases mothers and fathers had given their children up as lost or dead, as they did not know they had fallen into the hands of the Red Cross.

Mother Swears at Icon's. "One case I shall never forget was that of a mother who refused to take her seventeen-year-old son back until she had been fully convinced that he was her real flesh and blood.

"Another touching case was that of a mother who fainted when she saw her daughter. It was two hours before the mother was revived to sign the papers for the return of her daughter," Dr. Coulter said. "Because Americans were not assured of getting out of Russia once they put foot on Russian soil, the children were taken to the middle of the bridge at Petrograd and there turned over to the Society of Union Towns who saw to it that they were properly delivered to their homes.

The greater percentage of the children who were aboard the "ark" came from the better families of the professional class and there were also one or two titled members in the party, according to the doctor.

"We have had several letters from the Society of Towns and they say the soviet government is giving them the best food it can under the circumstances. There is every reason to believe they are being well taken care of," said Dr. Coulter.

Dr. Coulter also made a study of nutritional conditions in Vienna, Budapest, Prague and Warsaw, and said the populations are badly in need of assistance, and will be for at least two years.

Pity the Blind Man

SOME days you'll see him, slowly, hesitatingly, feeling his way. At other times he has a guide who quickly lead him where he wants to go.

When you shop without advance knowledge of where to go to get the best, you are feeling your way.

The advertisements in the newspapers are guides. They will tell you where to go to get the best—quickly.

And they are a guarantee of satisfaction. The consistent advertiser pays money to tell you about his goods. He knows they are good—he backs them with his money because he believes they'll satisfy. Only merchandise which is consistently good can be consistently advertised.

Read the advertisements and buy the advertised products. Don't spend your money blindly. Get dollar's worth for a dollar by buying products that have proved their worth under the glare of publicity.
