"When Shall I Make My Fall Selections"

Naturally the question would be followed by the thought of where will be the shop that continually keeps its stocks "Right-up-to-the-Minute"—the shop that clears out its past season's wear—the shop where all chance is eliminated, the chance of its being a last season's garment.

Our carefully kept ready-to-wear department offer you the newest and nothing but that class of garments. At prices that are strictly in accord with good, reliable wear and prices that meet the popular demand.

During the Round-Up shopping visit our fine Ready-to-Wear Department.

WHAT IS NEW IN MILLINERY FOR FALL 1921

The styles in millinery for this season tend to favor the large picture hat, though by no means are the small shapes discarded. In crowns alone, ideas are exceedingly varied; and in the majority of the shapes, the brims either roll gradually away from the face, or are flat and straight. Conspicuous is the black dressy hat with its large shape enhanced by its trimming of black or colored ostrich plumes. For coverings, satin, cire silk, hatters plush, duvetyne and plain velvets are used. In shades, they are as varied and smart as the styles themselves. They are here, and your early inspection of them is invited.
