

People Here and There

Roy Rounds left last night for Portland.

J. M. Kyle, prominent farmer of Stanfield, was here today on business.

A. K. Smythe of Arlington, member of Smythe Bros. Sheep Co., is here on a business mission.

C. M. Hall, of Pendleton, is at the Oregon transacting business in the city.—Oregon Journal.

Henry W. Collins returned yesterday from Portland. He got back in time to join the army of pheasant hunters yesterday.

Charles H. Carter, pioneer lawyer of Pendleton, is at the Imperial while in the city for a short time on legal business.—Oregon Journal.

For Kiddle, of Island City, was a visitor in Pendleton. Mr. Kiddle is connected with the Kiddle mill interests. He is a former University of Oregon student.

ARCHDUKE A PUSH-BALL.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—(L. N. S.)—The former Austrian Archduke Leopold Salvator is in a quandry. He was arrested a few days ago after having passed the Jugo-Slav frontier and deported to Austria.

The ex-prince has neither the right to settle in Austria nor in Jugo-Slavia, which is his wife's country. He is therefore compelled to live in cities of the countries until he is discovered by the police when he is at once deported. It is said that the archduke's parents, with their eight daughters, are living in a small furnished flat at Barcelona, and that all housework has to be performed by the former archduchess.

LEADS POLICE IN LONG SEARCH FOR HIMSELF

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 2.—(L. N. S.)—Edward F. Rottermund, chauffeur, was pressed into service by the police. He was told to drive fast, that a murder had been committed and that the speed limit was in his pocket. The address given the chauffeur was that of his own home. He "stepped on it," when he arrived a squadron of forty policemen were scouring alleyways in the vicinity for his own body. He was supposed to have been shot, but admitted that the report "was grossly exaggerated."

NEWS NOTES OF PENDLETON

Leaves for Hermiston
Fred Henman, county agent, left for Hermiston today to assist in making arrangements for the Hermiston Dairy and Hog Show, to be held next Friday and Saturday.

Phones from New York.
A telephone message from New York was recently received by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Owen from their son, Walter Owen. He talked for three minutes and his voice could be heard very plainly. Owen left here three years ago and is studying photography in New York. This winter he will attend the Institute of Photography at Brooklyn and also the New York Institute.

Millinery Classes Held
The second of the millinery classes for Stanfield women is being held today by Mrs. Edith G. Van Deusen, home demonstration agent. Tomorrow the second classes at Milton will be held. On Friday and Saturday of last week, eighteen fall hats were made in Pilot Rock under Mrs. Van Deusen's direction.

itations will be given tonight by the Salvation Army at the hall on East Alta street as a part of the special harvest festival. Following the program, which will be free, a sale of home-made goods, candy, coffee and sandwiches will be held. The program will begin in the hall at 8 o'clock.

Funeral is Held.
The funeral of the late Frank C. Parks, Pendleton man who lost his life in France, was held yesterday afternoon with Rev. Alfred Lockwood, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer officiating. The services were military and many ex-service men followed the body to its last resting place in Olney cemetery. He was the son of Mrs. Jennie Fisher, and one of six brothers who were in the service. The remaining five returned home in safety after the war.

Mrs. Bashor Dies
Mrs. Amanda Bashor died this morning at 11:30 after an illness of several months. She was 63 years of age and had resided in Pendleton since 1902 coming here from Lebanon. Her husband, the late Noah H. Bashor, died in 1912. Mrs. Bashor is survived by a sister, Mrs. Mary Leedy, of Pendleton, and the following children: Mrs. John Blanchett, of Pilot Rock; Mrs. Fred McKenney and Ernest Bashor, of Pendleton; Mrs. C. E. Bedal, of Payette, Idaho and Mrs. Frank Britain, of Weston. Funeral arrangements will be made later.

Mrs. Kinney Dies.
Mrs. Julia Kinney, aged 55, a former resident of Pendleton, who is well known here, died yesterday morning in Roseburg of heart disease. Mrs. Kinney left Pendleton about 20 years ago and has been making her home with her niece, Mrs. Earl Burch. Mrs. Kinney is survived by her mother, Mrs. M. E. Folsom, of Beaumont, California; three brothers, Gilman Folsom and Ralph Folsom of Pendleton, and Harry Folsom of Beaumont, and the following sisters, Mrs. Guy Wade and Mrs. Will Tallman of Los Angeles; Mrs. J. V. Tallman of Pendleton; Mrs. Bert France of Portland; Mrs. Flora Kettle, of Beaumont; and Mrs. Henry Ruffe of Kansas City. The body is being shipped from Roseburg to Pendleton but funeral arrangements have not yet been made. Mr. and Mrs. Burch will accompany the body here. Harry Folsom and Mrs. France will be here for the services, as will Folsom Tallman, son and Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Tallman, and Mrs. Tallman, who are living in Portland.

Improvements to be Discussed.
When the membership meeting of the Pendleton Commercial Association is held tomorrow night in the Elks hall, working but routine matters will be done by the association itself. Following this, the city's officials, and members of the City Planning Commission will explain fully the proposed improvements which are to be put up to the voters in the special election in November. The matter has been under consideration for several months, and Tuesday night's meeting will afford an opportunity for residents to hear a clear statement of the proposed work. Mayor G. A. Hartman will be the principal speaker.

HOLD SESSION IN PORTLAND.
PORTLAND, Oct. 2.—(U. P.)—The Oregon State Federation of Labor convened here today.

6 DAY ROUND-UP

Exposition visitors from all over the world the Round-Up of all Round-Ups. Efforts will be made to get a reduced fare from Portland to Pendleton during 1925.

Portland Show Impracticable.
Following much discussion regarding taking the Pendleton show to Portland for the Exposition year, the Portland Telegram on Saturday printed the following interview with Mr. Collins, who is now in Portland:

"We have always held to the principle that the Round-Up could not be taken away from Pendleton," said Collins.

Collins explained that San Francisco made every effort possible to have the Round-Up taken to the Golden Gate during the exposition there in 1915, but the invitation was turned down.

Seattle wanted the show at the time the Atlantic battleship fleet visited Puget Sound, but this wasn't even seriously considered.

"We feel differently towards Portland because it is a part of our state and all of us love the old city, but—" and here Collins paused a minute to think what his Pendleton friends might say, "but I don't believe our town would even stand for the Round-Up coming here."

A Part of Pendleton.
It was explained that the Round-Up is a part of Pendleton, just as a cowboy's sweetheart is a part of his life, and one would not part with his best love any more than the other.

"In order to give the show right we would have to bring the whole outfit down here," explained the president, "and to do that would be almost impossible to do. Lots of the boys wouldn't come, we couldn't get the horses and cattle here, and a lot of the Indians wouldn't get this far off the reservation."

Judge Charles Marsh secretary of the Round-Up association, thinks the idea of taking the show to Portland impractical. It couldn't be done for less than $60,000, he said.

"We couldn't keep it there for a year because it is essentially a community show to which business men and farmers devote much time. They could not go to Portland to spend a year while studying the show. What we want is special rates for 1925 and we will offer that year's show as a special attraction to exposition visitors."
