Clothing prices show greatest decline

THAT ought to be good news for you; you have to wear clothes; probably have to buy some.

The Department of Labor showed recently that the average cost of living had dropped 18 per cent; the item of food-stuffs had dropped 33 per cent; clothing 34 per cent; the greatest decline of all the necessities.

The Hart Schaffner & Marx styles we're showing for fall are good examples of extreme values

The prices are stabilized; they're as low as they can be made. You can't get more for your money anywhere.

INGROWN TOE NAIL TURNS OUT ITSELF

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and that nail turns naturally outward almost over night. "Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

WASHINGTON AWAITS GERMAN AMBASSADOR AFTER FIVE YEARS

Von Bernstorff's Successor Expected to Consider Himself an Ambassadorial Stepchild.

HERMES NEXT AMBASSADOR

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—(I. N. S.)—Dr. Hermes, Federal Minister in the Wirth Cabinet, will be the next German Ambassador to the United States, his appointment having been definitely decided on, according to the Berliner Zeitung. The report, however, was not officially confirmed.

BY DAVID M. CHURCH

(International News Service Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—When Germany's new Ambassador arrives here within the next few weeks and looks over the diplomatic camping grounds he is pretty apt to consider himself an ambassadorial stepchild, with very red hair and very crossed eyes.

Germany hasn't had a diplomatic representative here for five years and in that time there have been such changes that when the little red brick embassy, owned by Germany, is reopened the German Ambassador is going to find it is hardly more than a lamplow compared to the magnificent embassy building which have been erected here in the last few months.

In Bernstorff's Time

When Count Johan Von Bernstorff took his departure from Washington in a rather hasty manner some five years ago, Germany had need for little envy in the matter of her embassy here. Her embassy was about on a par with that of most of the larger powers. Today, however, Germany is the last of the big powers to be without a magnificent ambassadorial setting in Washington. It is true that Great Britain still clings to a rambling old brick mansion, covered with ivy vines, but then the be-brassed British marine and the massive bulldog that guard the front door of the British embassy give it far more impressiveness than granite porticoes and gridded bronze doors could ever contribute.

France has an embassy here that is an architectural monument. Japan's diplomats are housed in a fine mansion. Italy's Ambassador has no need to feel ashamed to invite his diplomatic colleagues to his home, and even China has a legation that is nearly as impressive as the yellow-skinned gentleman who answers the door.

Cuba Outstrips Germany

Many of the small powers have far outstripped Germany in the matter of handsome embassies. Cuba has built a wonderful mansion on Sixteenth street, which reminds one of the days when there were feudal castles and such. And this Cuban mansion must also be a reminder to the Spanish Ambassador who lives next door in a far less pretentious dwelling.

Mexico has taken over the Breckenridge Long residence, across the street from the Cuban legation. Despite the fact that Mexico has no diplomatic representatives here, she is spending a nice little sum in renovating and remodeling the Long residence, a stately mansion which was thought entirely fit as a residence for the King of Belgium when he visited Washington some time ago.

Sweden has helped the unemployment situation here by setting numerous carpenters and stone masons and other artificers at work on a huge new embassy on Fifteenth street.

Poland, a new nation, has seen fit to take over one of the finest residences on fashionable Sixteenth street. Many of the other new nations and some not so new, but nevertheless prosperous, have recently established themselves in fine homes in fine sections of the city.

The German Ambassador will probably feel lonesome when he arrives here, for though the German embassy is not a shack it hardly compares with the official dwelling places of the majority of the diplomatic corps here.

No doubt the ever alert real estate men of Washington, who talk and count on his fingers, already have the new German Ambassador listed as a "prospect."

U. S. NAVY BUYS OLD YACHT AMERICA FOR $1

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(I. N. S.)—The United States Navy has just bought one of the most famous boats in the world. It cost the government $1.00.

The historic yacht America, first winner of the cup from England, is now a navy ship. Through the generous co-operation of a number of patriotic men, including Secretary of War Weeks, the old yacht has been rescued from her old berth at Boston, where she rested for years, reconditioned, and towed down the coast by a sub-chaser to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Here she was presented to the Navy by Charles Francis Adams, skipper of the Resolute, on behalf of the Eastern Yacht Club of Boston. Rear-Admiral Henry B. Wilson officially received the boat for the Navy. The trip was made under the command of William C. Swan.

The plan originally was to present the boat to the Navy. The Navy, however, is not allowed to receive a gift, accordingly the department purchased the boat by paying $1.

RODEO WILL FEATURE CONVENTION OF LEGION

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 20.—(I. N. S.)—A rodeo, which will rival the famous annual round-up at Cheyenne, Wyo., will be one of the features of entertainment during the third annual national convention of the American Legion the last of this month.

Greater Metzger Post will stage the big frontier day spectacle, and twelve events will be on the daily program. Many of the most famous riders and cowboys of the West will participate.

To "bulldoze" a steer from an automobile will be among the thrillers, and other events will include fancy roping, wild steer riding, bucking broncho stunts and rope-tying contests.

Many of the convention visitors from the East have never witnessed a typical Western Rodeo, and they will see feats performed by riders of the open range which will make "Wild West" trick exhibitions seem tame in comparison.

BUY AMERICAN GOODS

WOOSTER, Ohio, Oct. 20.—(I. N. S.)—Adopt the slogan "Buy American Goods" is the advice contained in a communication sent to President Harding's unemployment conference at Washington by the Toykraft Company of this city. "If every American home would buy American goods our unemployed would have a full day's work," reads the communication addressed to Secretary of Commerce Hoover. "No country can expect prosperity when merchants are throwing out propaganda that German-made goods are in demand."
