Just Folks

by Edgar A. Guest

THE DIFFERENCE IN MEN

There is a difference in men—
One spreads flattery on no thick,
You know it isn't meant to stick,
And all the praise he utters then
Is lost the minute it is heard,
You can't recall a single word.

Another takes your hand and sets
Your hand a-tingle, through and through,
His friendliness is all for you
He never, when you're down, forgets
To speak the words you long to hear,
Somehow you feel he's always near.

One flatters and his speech is sweet,
But little sugar friendship needs,
His charm is found in kindly deeds,
And not by words which all repeat
Do men their inmost thoughts reveal,
But something which the heart can feel.

I've known the silent men to stand
Beside me when my heart was numb
And I rejoiced that he had come,
For from the pleasure of his hand
I knew unto the latter end
In him I had a constant friend.

WHAT THEY VOTED FOR

THE separate peace treaty has been ratified by the senate, by a narrow margin, but it is asserted that neither the senate nor the people know what the treaty means.

"Except for those clauses which attempt to repudiate every obligation and responsibility that the United States incurred in the war, the treaty that is before the senate can be spelled out only by a long series of references to the treaty of Versailles which the senate has rejected, and the precise relations between the separate treaty and the Versailles treaty are left in many respects to conjecture," says the New York World.

"It is a curious fact that not a single senator who intends to vote for this treaty has stood up in the senate chamber and told the country what in his opinion it gives to the United States, what it withholds from the United States and what the relations between the United States and Germany on the one hand and the United States and the allies on the other hand will be if this treaty is ratified. The reason that no senator has done this is because no senator knows. The general theory of the administration is that the treaty can be interpreted after it is ratified and the state department will then attempt to decide what it is all about.

"This treaty is the most extraordinary manoeuvre that has ever taken place in the foreign affairs of the country. It is safe to say that not a senator, whatever his politics, would vote for it on his own initiative. Even in the case of the Battalion of Death senators, they are able to justify their support of it only on the ground that it repudiates the League of Nations. In other words, they will vote for the treaty for what it does not contain, not for what it does contain, which is quite the wierdest sort of 'advice and consent' that any senator ever gave to any treaty."

However, the separate peace issue was one of the points involved in the campaign and it is logical that President Harding, having been elected on this issue, should negotiate such a peace. If it is not a good thing the people have only themselves to blame.

A PROPER SUGGESTION

THE Portland Telegram, which is an enthusiastic supporter of the "Oregon 1925" exposition, has taken the broad stand that the fair must be an Oregon exposition in fact as well as in name. "Oregon, one of the most richly endowed states in the union, needs exploitation," this paper says editorially. "Our fight is a fight for new citizens and an exposition is hit upon as the most effective means of bringing new citizens to the state."

The Telegram, thereupon, suggests that the fair management spend little money upon the things that go in show cases but rather use it to encourage the visitors to the fair to travel to the various parts of the state to get first hand information of its resources, wonders and opportunities.

"Why try to vie with Chicago or St. Louis in the things in which they excel?" the paper asks. "In the middle west they must needs emphasize show cases and city streets. Dark brown streams and drab landscapes offer no lure to the imagination. There must needs be a spark and so one is created. But in Oregon the situation is reversed. The country itself affords the spark and we are blind who do not capitalize it."

The Telegram's suggestion, bold and unique though it is, commends itself as one that would most truly serve the purpose of the exposition. It is not a Portland fair that is wanted or needed, but an Oregon fair, and the management will popularize its project with the people of the state if it will shape its plans with a view toward selling the whole state of Oregon to the visiting thousands.

The Milwaukee railroad advertises widely that by electrifying its Rocky mountain division 61 electric locomotives do the same work as that formerly performed by 162 steam locomotives, and that the saving is 300,000 tons of coal and 40,000,000 gallons of fuel oil a year. Why do not other railroads which have fully as much adjacent waterpower as the Milwaukee make savings in the same way and by cutting down the cost of service provide a legitimate way for reducing the charges for service?—Oregon Journal.

The theory of self defense is one which may be practiced by society as a whole as well as by an individual; the Brumfield verdict means that the people of the state are ready to do this.

The issue at the special city election November 21 will be careful progressivism versus stagnation; it is not hard to forecast how people will vote provided they get the facts.

OLDEST FRATERNITY IN U. S.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Oct. 20.—(U. S. S.)—Phi Beta Kappa Society, the oldest and largest Greek letter fraternity in the United States, was founded at the college of William and Mary December 5, 1776. Several years after the founding of the mother chapter at William and Mary one of the members of the Alpha of Virginia, as it is still called, moved to the North, and while there began the expansion of the great fraternity by securing from the William and Mary chapter charters for similar chapters at Harvard and Yale. Today the fraternity has more than 40,000 members. Its ninety-two chapters are located at the country's leading colleges.

OFFICIAL WASHINGTON IGNORES BOSSES' KICK ON 'DAMP' DIRECTORS

Cleverly Devised Plans for Enforcement That Leave Nothing Undone Are Halted.

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—There is ample authority for the statement that not a single one of the "dry" officials who are charged with being "not dry enough to hold office" will be removed from office for mere expressions of opinion, even though such utterances add a touch of jazz to the widespread pros and cons over enforcement. And there is not going to be any snap judgment or shot-at-sunrise decisions, on dry directors at the behest of dry enthusiasts whatever their shade of opinion.

By W. H. ATKINS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Even in matters of rum politics makes strange bed-fellows. The pit of the old saying comes home forcefully today to the dry law bosses. There is worry in the camp of the dries. Politics and its workings are at the basis of their guessing over what will happen next. Cleverly devised programs for enforcement, that appear to leave nothing undone in the way of tight regulations, are not going through in certain important localities. Lack of success in strict administration of the Volstead law, in some states noted as the liquor sources is blamed entirely on politics.

In some of the large states dry enforcement machines are presided over by men who are respected by the dries for not being 100 per cent dries. These men say the charge of the dries is true, they happen not to be in the category of professional dries.

Little Official Weight.

It is the private opinions such men hold that makes them unfit to administer the dry laws, in the view of the dry leaders. But that argument does not get far with either United States senators who recommended these officials or with the white house, which had the final approval of their appointment.

Agitation for the removal of some of the alleged wets presiding over state dry law machines has been very pronounced in the camp of some of the dries. The rumblings have now taken the form of formal demand for the removal of certain directors. One of them has been officially pitched before Revenue Commissioner Blair. Others are expected.

The outcome of these drives against dry-law officials whose personal and official integrity remains absolutely impregnable in the eyes of higher officials wielding final power in enforcement matters leaves the dries somewhat up a tree and howling for more ammunition.

Ill-Timed Drive.

Unfortunately for them, perhaps, they began a drive that was not only ill-timed in execution, but based upon rather shallow ground. They made the mistake in the case of the admittedly able prohibition director of Maryland of condemning that official, without also weighing a few qualifying statements he made, in connection with a very frank denunciation of some phases of law enforcement and prohibition generally. The Maryland director like those of other states is not in complete agreement, in matters of policy, with others who are quite active in prohibition propaganda. But his views, according to officials who had a vital part in analyzing them, differed but slightly from those reportedly expressed by others who have the courage of their convictions, recognize a certain set of conditions that cannot be defended and merely give voice honestly to what they believe.

COULD NOT KEEP HOUSE

Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Says Mrs. Pitts of Newburgh

Newburgh, N. Y.—"My trouble was a weak back and I could not walk two blocks without being tired out. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in a newspaper and decided to give it a trial. Now I can do my own work and walk with ease. I always keep the Vegetable Compound in the house. It certainly is my best friend and I could not keep house without it. I have recommended it to many and always shall. You may use this letter if you wish."—Mrs. EDWARD PITTS, 2 High St., Newburgh, N. Y.

It has been said that "backache is an invention of the Evil One to try women's souls," but even so, it is more often a symptom of a female trouble which sooner or later declares itself. Day after day it drags a woman down and night after night prevents restful sleep. Such woman should follow Mrs. Pitt's advice and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and regain health.

Letters about your health will be given careful attention and held in strict confidence if you write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Their experience of over 40 years is at your service.

DYED CHILD'S COAT AND HER OLD SKIRT

Buy "Diamond Dyes" and follow the simple directions in every package. Don't wonder whether you can dye or tint successfully, because perfect home dyeing is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes even if you have never dyed before. Worn, faded dresses, skirts, waists, coats, sweaters, stockings, draperies, hangings, everything, become like new again. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade or run.

In Walla Walla Wednesday morning, Lieutenant Walsh was married to Miss Susie LeGrow. They came to Pendleton in the evening and were entertained until this morning in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam P. Sturals, when they took the east bound train for Boise City, where Lieutenant Walsh is stationed. Miss LeGrow is a niece of Mr. Sturgis. Lieutenant Walsh, although serving during peaceful times, has made an enviable reputation by some valuable service done in Arizona. He is of the Fourth Cavalry, U. S. A.
