UNEMPLOYMENT IN KANSAS CITY GROWING ACUTE: NEARLY 10,000 MEN, 50 PER CENT OF THEM FLOATERS, OUT OF WORK

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 8.—(U. N. S.)—The unemployment situation in Kansas City is daily becoming more acute. This fact has been revealed through a survey of welfare agencies throughout the city, conducted by several committees from the chamber of commerce. Nearly 10,000 men, 50 per cent of whom are "floaters," are without employment in this city, the survey showed. There has been a large influx into the city of men from all sections of the country, lured here by numerous false rumors circulated to the effect that Kansas City has no unemployment problem. Relief organizations report they are receiving hundreds of appeals for aid, far in excess of any made previously, they say.

Care for Many Men.
The Helping Hand Institute's records show that 1,073 men were cared for during September this year, compared to 300 during the same period a year ago.
"Requests for aid from our organization come in large numbers every day," Brigadier John C. Smith, divisional commander of the Salvation Army, said. "At least 100 per cent more requests for food, lodging and transportation have come during the last month than in the same period last year."
During 1920 the Provident Association distributed aid to 451 families in September. This year assistance was rendered to 706 families.
Mayor Cowgill has announced that he is strongly in favor of and would endeavor to co-operate extensively with President Harding's recommendations to mayors for municipalities that they do everything humanly possible to aid the jobless in securing employment.
"It would help some," said the mayor, "if employers could conduct their business so as to divide a week among their regular employees and those out of work, giving each class three days' work each week."

CORRESPONDENTS WILL COVER ARMAMENT MEET

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(U. P.)—The United Press will be represented at the Limitation of Arms conference at Washington, opening Saturday, by a staff composed of many of its best reporters as well as by many special writers.

David L. Blumenfeld, formerly of the London Daily Express, will cover the British delegation.

effect of the conference's decisions upon Japan.

YONKERS MATRON MEETS FIRST LADY OF LAND

YONKERS, N. Y., Nov. 8.—(U. N. S.)—How the "first lady of the land" came to her rescue when she intruded upon the monthly luncheon party of senators' wives during a visit to Washington, was told here by Mrs. Harold S. Robinson, member of the executive council of the Girl Scouts in this city.
Mrs. Robinson said the incident, through which she met Mrs. Harding, was characteristic of the mistress of the white house. Mrs. Robinson was in the capital to attend the Ku Klux Klan hearings in the house office buildings. She left the building at noon for lunch and through error entered the senate office building upon her return.
Seeing a group of fashionably-dressed women at lunch she started to leave, but was intercepted by a guard, who told her to return and look around, as Mrs. Harding was among the women present.
An Act of Impertinence!
"I started to walk about when a woman approached and asked me if I was the wife of a senator. You can imagine my feelings when, upon receiving my negative reply, she drew herself up and in a penetrating voice said: 'Then you are committing an act of great impertinence in being here!' While I was attempting to explain and apologize I was touched on the arm and asked if I was a stranger in the city. I said I was and started to leave to hear my interrogator say: 'Why, then, I would like to extend to you a welcome to Washington. I am Mrs. Harding.'"
"We talked a few minutes and when I was leaving Mrs. Harding invited me to have tea with her the following Friday. I accepted and Mrs. Harding was as gracious as she had been at the time of the unfortunate occurrence. We discussed the Girl Scout movement, in which Mrs. Harding is intensely interested.
"The luncheon party into which I stumbled by mistake is a monthly affair given by the wives of senators and as Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the former vice president, was in Washington that day, Mrs. Harding was present."

TWO DOGS SUSPECTED OF BURGLARY BY POLICE

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 8.—(U. P.)—Students of canine psychology and other dog fanciers may well heed the cases of two dogs suspected by the police here and in Portland. They are two different dogs, but both are traveling in alleged bad company. Their masters are said to be burglars.
The local dog was discovered locked in a home when the owner of the home came down to breakfast after a night of burglar alarms and thrills generally. He was turned over to the police. It happened that three men, L. Triplett, Paul Heinenbeck, and Roy Kennedy were held charged with housebreaking. They maintained their innocence until the police, acting on a hunch, introduced the dog. The dog needed no introduction. He knew the gentlemen well. The men are said to have confessed to entering the house where the dog was found.
Little is known of the Portland dog, other than that householders have seen him in the vicinity of houses that have been robbed, and have heard his anguished barking when a late hour home-going citizen chanced to disturb the burglar at his work. It is thought that the dog serves as lookout and "scout," wagging his tail to indicate when the coast is clear and barking loudly as a warning when his master is at work "inside."

The new duties of Mrs. Bruenegman take her to Washington, where she is on the commission that fixes claims to the Civil Service employees who require compensation for injuries while in the service. The commission is composed of two men and one woman. Mrs. Frances Axtel, of Bellingham, Washington, held the position on the commission during the war period.

To her new duties Mrs. Bruenegman brings experience of many kinds. She is a business woman, looking after her extensive interests. She is a politician and has been associated with the leading Missouri politicians for years. She is an organizer, having been made captain of the St. Louis motor brigade during the war.
Before receiving her most recent honors Mrs. Bruenegman held a position on the Republican State executive committee and also on the national advisory committee of Republican affairs. During the summer she was on the east coast and received her appointment and summons to the white house in an entirely unexpected way.
When visited recently in her home she was busy with plans for her work and removal of "household goods" to Washington, D. C. "To move for a period of six years is no small task," she explained, "and I have begun as early as possible."
"Of course I am pleased and so are my friends. I always have been interested in politics and was brought up in such an atmosphere, my father having dubbed me the 'little politician' on account of my interest. Now that I have the vote I feel it is up to us women to do our part when called on. I appreciate the honor conferred upon me by our President and shall do my best to pave the way for similar appointments to women. I shall try to bring to my duties an intelligent opinion, for I feel keenly it is up to me as the first woman appointee of the President to make good."

'POTTER'S FIELD' TO BE REPLACED BY CREMATORY

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8.—(A. P.)—The "potter's field," grim resting place of the pauper dead, soon will pass from the landscape of Los Angeles county, and a county crematory will take its place.
The board of supervisors has instructed the county engineer to draw plans for a crematory to be erected in the county cemetery, on East First Street, Los Angeles.
It is stated that if relatives of the pauper dead object to cremation, they will either have to accede to it or make their own provision for burial.
A group of Chinese has organized to handle the burial of the Chinese dead when the county burns further interment. Although 700 Chinese dead have been buried in the county cemetery, 500 graves have been opened and the remains sent back to China.
