PRESIDENT HARDING

staggering with debt means its burdens lifted. Humanity, which has been shocked by wanton destruction, would minimize the agencies of that destruction. Contemplating the measureless cost of war and the continuing burden of armament, all thoughtful peoples wish for real limitation of armament and would like war outlawed. In soberest reflection the world's hundreds of millions who pay in peace and die in war wish their statesmen to turn the expenditures for destruction into means of construction, aimed at a higher state for those who live and follow after.

It is not alone that the world cannot readjust itself and cast aside the excess burdens without relief from the leaders of men. War has grown progressively cruel and more destructive from the first recorded conflict to this present day and the reverse order would most become our boasted civilization. Gentlemen of the conference, the United States welcomes you with unselfish hands. We harbor no fears; we have no sordid ends to serve; we suspect no enemy; we contemplate or apprehend no conquest. Content with what we have, we seek nothing which is another's. We only wish to do with you that finer, nobler thing which no nation can do alone. We wish to sit with you at the table of international understanding and good will. In good conscience we are eager to meet you frankly and invite and offer co-operation. The world demands a sober contemplation of the existing order and the realization that there can be no cure without sacrifice, not by one of us, but by all of us. I do not mean surrendered rights or narrowed freedom, or denied aspirations, or ignored national necessities. Our republic would no more ask for more than it would give. No pride need be humbled, no nationality submerged, but I would have a merging of minds committing all of us to less preparation for war and more enjoyment of fortunate peace. The higher hopes come of the spirit of our coming together. It is but just to recognize varying needs and peculiar positions. Nothing can be accomplished in disregard of national apprehensions. Rather we should act together to remove the causes of apprehensions. This is not to be done in intrigue. Greater assurance is found in the exchange of simple honesty and directness among men resolved to accomplish as becomes leaders among nation, when civilization itself has come to its crucial test. It is not to be doubted that government falls when the excess of its cost robs the people of the way to happiness and the opportunity to achieve. If the finer sentiments were not urging, the cold, hard facts of excessive cost and the eloquence of economists would urge us to reduce our armaments. If the concept of a better order does not appeal, then let us ponder the burden and the blight of continued competition. It is not to be denied that the world has swung along throughout the ages without heeding this call from the kinder hearts of men. But the same world never before was so tragically brought to realization of the utter futility of passion's way when reason and conscience and fellowship point a nobler way. I can speak officially only for our United States. One hundred million frankly want less armament and none of war. Wholly free from guile, sure in our own minds that we harbor no unworthy designs we accredit the world with the same good intent. So I will welcome you, not alone in good will and high purpose, but with high faith. We are met for a service to mankind. In all simplicity, in all honesty and all honor, there may be written here the avowals of a world conscience refined by the consuming fires of war and made more sensitive by the anxious aftermath. I hope for that understanding which will emphasize the runnates of peace and for commitments of less burdens and a better order which will tranquilize the world. In such an accomplishment there will be added glory to your flags and ours, and the rejoicing of mankind will make the transcending of all succeeding time.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

ALTA SUNDAY AND MONDAY THIS STAR UNAFRAID OF TALENTED SUPPORT
The old days when stars sometimes used to hire incompetent support in order that their own cleverness might shine more brightly, have passed to the realm of forgotten things in photodrama. Or at least so says May McAvoy, star of "Everything For Sale," which opens at the Alta Theatre for two days beginning Sunday. "It is hard to understand how leading players could ever have wished to be surrounded by poor support, in order to give further emphasis to their own ability," said the charming little person who made "Grizel" of "Sentimental Tommy" so justly famous. "Acting is so greatly a matter of co-operation, of response of the interlocking characters of the story, that a proper dramatic interpretation can never be made by one or two persons alone. It must be a composite of several individuals all of whom have something real to contribute."
"Everything For Sale" is by the author of "The Cheat," one of the most successful photoplays ever written and the first original screen story ever made into a grand opera. It was directed by Frank O'Connor under the personal supervision of the author.
ARCADE SUNDAY AND MONDAY CHARMING STAR FEATURED IN PLAY DIRECTED BY OLD CIRUM
Edith Roberts, the star of "Luce," "The Fire Cat," "Thunder Island" and many other well known successes, will be seen at the Arcade Theatre on Sunday in her latest Universal Production "Luring Lips". In this drama of love, action and adventure the youthful star of the screen rises to the dramatic heights of her career. It is a delightful reward of personal ambition to Miss Roberts. As a little girl of ten, Miss Roberts lived next door in New York City to the favorite leading man of the screen. It was King Baggot, who was then being starred by Universal and working in the New York studio. Miss Roberts worshipped him at her favorite cinema shrine. She was known and revered at school as "the girl who lives next door to King Baggot." That little girl of ten, and now the famous dramatic star of twenty, is exceedingly happy. Her work in "Luring Lips" is the crowning achievement of a brilliant career.

RIVOLI SUNDAY AND MONDAY MARY PICKFORD AFFORDED UNIVERSAL OPPORTUNITIES

In "Through the Back Door," Mary Pickford's forthcoming United Artists' release, this clever little artist will be afforded an opportunity for the display of talent equalled only in such previous productions as "Pollyanna" and "Daddy Long Legs." Arrangements were recently completed by Manager Matlock of the Rivoli Theatre to show this production beginning Sunday. It is the first picture in which Little Mary ever worked under the guidance of two directors. Alfred E. Green and Mary's brother Jack sponsored this production, and the result of their combined efforts is said to prove further the truth of the old adage, "Two heads are better than one."
The outstanding feature of "Through the Back Door" is the delightful comedy sequences scattered throughout the picture. In a little girl role Miss Pickford has a chance to become involved in innumerable complications all provocative of mirth, yet touched with that pathos which stamps the greatest of all ingenues as mistress of her art.
