HYSLOP SCORES GRAIN STANDARDS OF PORTLAND

A grain grade hearing at Portland this week revealed the fact that type samples at the Portland Chamber of Commerce do not truly represent the grain of Oregon. C. R. Hyslop, head of the farm crops department at Oregon Agricultural college, was present at the hearing and argued in favor of the exportation of grain on the basis of federal grades, a plan favored by the farmers and grain inspecting agencies. Exporters present were divided on the matter.

"The type samples usually carry a large percentage of mixture, and in some instances considerable dockage," said Professor Hyslop regarding the meeting. "It is the intention of exporters that these samples represent the fair average quality of northwest wheat. Grain received at the inspection points, however, grades better than these samples. It is thought that since our foreign market largely determines the wheat price in the United States, the marketing abroad of rather low grade mixed wheat reflects unfavorably on the domestic price."

DADDIE AND SON

This is "Father and Son Week," though would it not be much better to have every week "Father and Son Week?" Keeping better acquainted with the young man, and playfully steering him to the destination of good manhood, will do lots to bring to you and to him, big returns for your daily efforts.

And how easy it is to teach a youngster Thrift-Habits and Savings-Habits during his teens, by setting him the right example and a little encouragement. Between that and carelessness, is the difference between success and failure.

THE LARGEST CHAIN DEPARTMENT STORE ORGANIZATION IN THE WORLD

Competition and Progress

In New York City, at Broadway and 42nd street, 112,750 people pass in a single day. In ten hours, 18,800 motor vehicles travel the same route.

It is an impressive picture of vast numbers of people, each one with a different destination, moving FORWARD as ONE UNIT.

All progressive business moves similarly. In 1902, the J. C. Penney Company established its first store in Kemmerer, Wyoming, on the same principle of moving forward to success; not one man and one store, but many men and many stores as ONE UNIT!

The multiple process of FORWARD MOVEMENT is the impetus that has made it the largest chain department store organization in the world.

This wonderful growth has not been achieved by fighting competition any more than the 112,750 people easily and quickly pass a single point without each separate individual trying to trample down the man, woman or child just ahead of him.

To serve customers well, to trade fairly, to give every man an equal chance in pleasant courtesy as well as good business ethics. It makes competition the business man's best friend and rears a business policy that is a firm foundation for progress.
