

People Here and There

There are two classes of people in Umatilla county—those who have "made it" and retired and those who are working now to "make it," and hope to retire in a few years. To the former class belongs John McPhail, registered at the Perkins. Mr. McPhail has been a resident of Umatilla county many years and he accumulated an ink account when the going was good, so he doesn't worry now so much about the market.—Oregonian.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY OFFICES AND OFFICERS

Wants Bonds Seized.
A suit for divorce has been filed in circuit court by Ella M. Anderson against Bunyan E. Anderson. Cruel and inhuman treatment is the basis of the suit. The plaintiff claims that the defendant has on several occasions threatened to commit suicide, and has actually injured himself in her presence. She also declares that he was for some time a patient in the hospital for the insane here. The couple married in 1912 at La Grande, and the defendant is a plumber there, according to the complaint. A gross alimony of $2500 and a monthly alimony of $50 is sought by the plaintiff who is represented by Fee and Fee.

Hindley Speaks Tonight.
Pendleton business men and their employes will have the privilege of hearing a man who spent several years on the lecture platform when W. J. Hindley appears here tonight as the speaker of a meeting of the Pendleton Commercial Association. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock at the lodge rooms of the Elks, and will be for the membership of the association and for their employes. Several of the largest concerns of the city will have their whole force of employes in attendance at the meeting tonight. The conditions that have resulted after the war will be discussed by the speaker, and he will also dwell on the best methods of salesmanship and other points of interest to the commercial world.

NEWS NOTES OF PENDLETON

100 Per Cent.
The Inland Empire Bank today joined the ranks of the "100 per cent Red Cross supporters," when every employe of the institution joined the society. The names of the officers and employes are: James W. Maloney, Will H. Bennett, R. M. Mayberry, C. E. Phillips, E. G. Greenwald, Ninta Clark, Alma Suhl and L. L. Anderson.

It Cost His Extra
Shirley Hevel was arrested yesterday by Traffic Officer Turner on a charge of speeding. At that time the young man was advised by a friend to resist that charge and stand trial. He did that very thing, and this morning he was found guilty by Judge Fitz Gerald who fined him $15. The usual fine in such a case is $10. Don White was fined $10 for being drunk and Harry Thacker was relieved of $15 on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

Leaves on Trip.
J. E. Finson, Dr. Ross Wimer, H. R. Mangold left yesterday on a hunting trip to Arlington. They expect to be away several days.

Allen McLain Returns.
Allen McLain returned yesterday from O. A. C. where he has been visiting for the past week. He was a guest of fraternity brothers at the Kappa Sigma house. He attended college last year.

Mrs. Avison Injured.
Mrs. E. T. Avison of Oregon City, formerly of Pendleton, now of Oregon City, is suffering from injuries received in a recent fall. One of her legs was broken and she sustained minor injuries as well. Mrs. Avison has many friends here who will regret to learn of the accident. Her son, Bert Avison, is employed at the Pendleton Woolen Mills.

Will Guard Postoffice.
Postmaster Cronin has been notified that two members of the marine corps will be sent to Pendleton to guard the local postoffice against robbery. Mr. Cronin was seeking living quarters for the men today. It is understood the postal department fears that through precautions being taken crooks will be run out of the larger cities and may commit robberies in smaller offices unless precautions are taken. Hence the sending of two marines here.

Cotton Prices Go Up.
That cotton prices are stiffening and that many merchants are now selling cotton goods at prices lower than the replacement cost was declared yesterday by J. A. Bennett of St. Joe, Mo., in a talk before the Progressive Business Club. Mr. Bennett says the cotton crop this year was but sufficient to care for the auto tire needs, that planters had turned one-third their acreage to other crops, and that it will be several years before normal production can be resumed.

To Hear Pendleton's Side.
In answer to a wire from the Commercial Association Roy T. Bishop of the Portland chamber of commerce, has written the local club that steps will be taken to comply with the request made that Portland people visit the scene of the Walling cutoff before acting further on the subject. It is also indicated by Mr. Bishop that steps will be taken to give Pendleton a hearing in Portland before any action is taken. However no detailed arrangements have yet been made and further word is awaited from Portland.

HOW TO CHOOSE GOOD BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

(Third in a series of articles by Miss Freda Glover, assistant librarian at the Umatilla county library.)
Avoid stories having superfluous activity—too many incidents pulling away from his central theme. This steady march of incidents toward one most important one might be called economy of incidents. There must always be enough incidents however, to make the story convincing.
The supernatural should appear only at the ultimate moment and then in amount of strength only sufficient to accomplish the result. The story should never pivot around a lie, an act of dishonesty or irreverence. All coarseness should be eliminated. Too much bloodshed and physical horror is to be avoided but it is unwise to be too squeamish about this—"Off with his head" to a child doesn't bring up a mental picture of blood and a corpse and a sordid murder trial, as it does to us. In their stories it merely serves as a neat and convincing way of disposing of evil witches and hostile magicians. It is the result of good triumphing over evil.

COREY SHOWS

It is to re-establish the old basis that the carriers are now making numerous Fourth Section applications. Personally, I do not think these applications should be allowed. I do not believe it necessary that the carriers be permitted in every instance, to meet water competition, as they will be able to secure a great portion of the business without these lower terminal rates, for the reason that water transportation service is inferior to rail service in many ways. It is slower, uncertain of arrival, and offers none of the privileges such as diversion, stopping in transit, with no switching services at terminal points. Claims for loss and damages are not so readily settled. The maritime laws seem to give more protection to the boats, and the shippers must go to the courts for redress and there are other advantages which the railroads have over the boats.
I do not believe the public should expect a high standard of service, such as is offered by railroads in normal times, at nearly as low rates as apply by water. It seems to me it would be as reasonable to expect the express companies to ship at as low a rate as by freight.
The points served by water can use boat transportation if they so desire, in fact, should do so, if doubtless being to their advantage, but this would seem to be a handicap to interior points to which the railroads should not add by further rate discrimination against them. It is true, that big businesses have been built up at sea port points, many of which have invested on account of lower rates which obtain. The retaining of the present parity of rates would not, of course, inure to their benefit, but it would enable the intermediate points to retain their recently acquired industries, jobbing and wholesale houses. To illustrate: Many of the important commodities moving between the Pacific coast terminal points named in these petitions are handled between San Francisco and Portland and Seattle, for example, at a very much cheaper rate than if shipped from San Francisco to Salem or Albany or to points as far south as Ashland, and likewise this same general situation obtains on our principal commodities moving transcontinentally or from coast to coast. tile houses buying in the East or San Francisco, will be compelled to pay a higher rate upon their merchandise than that which will be exacted to the terminal points.

It is not to be overlooked that if the pending proposals of the carriers are to prevail, the following ports only of the Pacific coast are the designated terminals to which the reduced rates are to apply:
California Terminals—East San Pedro, Oakland, Richmond, San Diego, San Francisco, San Pedro Wilmington, Oregon Terminals—Astoria, Portland.
Washington Terminals—Bellingham, Everett, Seattle, South Bellingham, Tacoma.
British Columbia Terminals—New Westminster, Prince Rupert, Vancouver, Victoria.

The carrier applications for Fourth Section relief provide that "to points intermediate to the terminals" (designated above) it is proposed to apply rates made by adding to the rate therein proposed to the "terminal" (designated above) which is nearest destination of shipment, the local rate published for use upon interstate traffic from nearest "terminal" point to such destination."
