MACK SWAIN AIDS CHAPLIN'S FUN IN "IDLE CLASS"
Mack Swain, the adipose comedian known familiarly as "Ambrose," and who has made millions laugh during the course of his screen career, is an important member of the cast of "The Idle Class," Charles Chaplin's latest First National release, which will be shown at the Rivoli Theatre today.

Towering above the humdrum comedy star, Swain plays the part of the father of the beautiful young woman on whom Charlie sets his eyes while playing golf. The usual complications ensue, but the picture closes with Charles hotfooting it for the horizon, having inflicted his vengeance on the old man.

A giant in size, Swain stands six feet four inches and weighs close to 250 pounds. He is a native of Salt Lake

City, where in his early youth he became interested in the stage and has been identified with the "land-of-makes-believe" ever since.

At 29 Swain headed his own vaudeville act and later was starred in musical comedy. Several years he gave over to dramatic stock which he finally deserted for the screen. He made his debut in the new field as a member of the Mack Sennett Keystone company.

Another in the cast is Edna Purviance, who has appeared with Chaplin in all of his recent productions.

AMUSEMENTS

The grand old Swedish play, "Yon Yonson" is now being presented for one performance only tonight. To those who were familiar with the popular plays of twenty years ago "Yon Yonson" will be remembered as the happiest of all Swedish plays and its recent revival will be welcome news both to those who remember it and to those who do not.

The central figure, of course, is "Yon Yonson," the Swede lumberjack, big in body, big in heart and big in soul. His dry wit, his shrewd judgment, his keen sense of humor, and above all his honorable and upright character, make him one of the most beloved of all stage heroes.

Will H. Gould, the singing Swedish comedian, is featured in the part of "Yon." Mr. Gould is known in the east and middle west as the cleverest and most successful of the old Swedish ballads.

In the revival of this production no detail has been overlooked to make it as real and entertaining as it was when originally produced.

BETTER BOOK WEEK IS OBSERVED IN SCHOOLS

(East Oregonian Special.)
BOARDMAN, Nov. 16.—Boardman directors are planning on shipping in concentrates by the carload on a cooperative basis to complete the ration for the increasing herds of dairy cows. On this basis corn can be laid down at $25 per ton and barley at $21. Those who want to get in on the deal see Paul Smith, who has the matter in charge.

Evangelistic services to begin next Sunday are announced by Rev. Mr. Hillis of the local church. A similar series has just been completed at Irwinton with good results. Mr. Hillis has been in evangelistic work for several years and taken the view that what the world needs most is a good dose of the good old fashioned gospel.

Better Book Week is being observed by the local schools. The endeavor is to instill higher ideals and better reading habits. Lists of books recommended by the U. S. department of education for boys and girls are being presented as a guide to their reading. The library in the Boardman school contains about 1000 books and magazines of juvenile nature, something over 2000 of adult fiction in addition to the reference books required by the state department of education for standardization.

Mr. Scott, banker at Lexington, suffered an auto accident on Sunday when his car struck some sand in turning onto the Columbia Highway near Morning. The car was overturned and Mr. Scott was pinned underneath until Miss Doris Healy, a Boardman high school girl, came along and gave assistance, bringing the injured man to Boardman in her car. He was later able to ride to Heppner Junction to get the Heppner train for home, though he was suffering considerably, and some internal injury is feared.
