

News Notes Pendleton

Rev. Austin to Speak.

Rev. J. C. Austin, of Portland, will occupy the pulpit at the Baptist church for the morning and evening services. The services will be held at the usual hours.

Dance Will Open

Tonight will mark the opening of the Liberty dance hall under new management, that of the Bachelors' Club. A. J. Gibson will be in charge of the check room.

Is Visiting Here.

Norborne Berkeley, a student at Whitman College, is spending Thanksgiving vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norborne Berkeley. He states that the present year is considered by the faculty as the best in the history of the college.

Travel Is Discouraged.

The highway department warns travelers that travel from Pendleton is possible only as far as Arlington. Motorists are discouraged from attempting to make the trip beyond that point because of the condition of the highways, due to the recent storm.

J. G. Perry Is Safe.

J. G. Perry, Pendleton man who left here a week ago by motor for Portland, and who was caught in the snowstorm while on the Columbia highway, is safe at Bonneville, according to word received here today. He is an accountant for the Whitfield-Whitcomb Co.

Spiritualist to Lecture

A lecture on spiritualism will be delivered Sunday night at the Eagle-Woodman hall by Rev. Cora Kincannon. The speaker is an evangelist in a spiritualistic organization, and she states she has delivered sermons and lectures in every large city in the Northwest. Her home is in Spokane. The meeting will open at 8 o'clock.

R. Alexander Convalescing.

R. Alexander, who has been on the invalid list since an accident about five weeks ago when he fell and fractured his leg, is convalescing, and his condition is much improved. He is able to walk around some now by using crutches. He has to have aid to be able to make much progress, but he feels encouraged to think that he can be up within such a comparatively short time after his accident.

Rails Put Up.

The construction of guard rails on the highway from Pendleton to Pilot Rock, Pendleton to Dead Man's Pass and Pendleton to Milton is continuing despite the bad weather and is the only highway work now underway in this county. Including the guard rails put up on the Pendleton-Echo road, the total amount of rails is about 10 miles, and the total cost is $25,000. Frazier & Samuels have the contract, and R. C. Ingram, inspector employed by the state highway department, is supervisor.

Leaves for Weston

Fred Hennon, county agent, is in

Weston this afternoon, conferring with potato growers on the subject of seed potatoes.

Mrs. Rice To Return

Mrs. Ima Rice, of The Peoples Warehouse, who has been seriously ill at St. Anthony's hospital, is convalescing. She expects to return to her home on Webb street on Sunday.

Leaves for Holdman

Snow and poor road conditions did not deter Mrs. Edith G. Van Deusen, home demonstration agent, from going to Holdman today to preside at a meeting of Holdman women. Dress forms are to be made at the meeting.

Trains on New Schedule

East-bound O. W. R. & N. trains are now running on the emergency schedule caused by the storm. No 18 will arrive this evening two hours later and No. 24 in the morning, also about two hours later than usual. The delay is caused because the trains must detour at Celilo.

Police Court Resumes

Business in police court has been very slack since the snow storm began until yesterday when a session was held in the morning. Then again this morning, there were cases to be heard. W. Williams and Sam Reber being found guilty of being drunk. They were fined $10 each. Jim Sullivan was given five days in the city jail on a charge of vagrancy.

Wireless Outfits Used

Wireless outfits are gaining in popularity among the youth of Pendleton. Byron Warner, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. G. Warner, has an outfit and Irvin McCormack, son of Mrs. J. W. McCormack, has one also. Both receive messages, the majority of which come from Catalina. They are learning the code but because they are not licensed operators, are not permitted to send messages.

Tourists Remain Here

Tourists, bound for California, who live either east of north and who were caught here when the heavy snow tied up traffic on the roads about a week since, are still here for the most part. They probably will remain until the road between here and The Dalles can be opened. There is still much snow between Arlington and The Dalles, according to reports received here, and it may be several days before traffic can be resumed.

Providing Memorial

A movement is on foot to secure a suitable memorial of some sort for Homer Davenport, former Oregon man who attained fame as a cartoonist. He was formerly with the Hearst papers after leaving Oregon. The movement started in Silverton, where Davenport grew to young manhood. He and C. K. Cranston were boyhood chums, and Mr. Cranston is authorized to receive voluntary contributions toward the fund if there are any in Pendleton who wish to help the movement.

Move to New Building.

Benson & Wickland, plumbers, are moving from their location on Cottonwood street to one of the store routes in the new Koch building on Main street.

National President Coming.

John W. Marshall, national president of the Progressive Business Clubs will reach here this evening from Portland and a dinner in his honor will be tendered by members of the local club. The affair will be held at the Elks dining room at 6 p. m. During the meeting President Marshall will officially present the Pendleton club with its charter.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAS BLAZE UNDER CONTROL

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 26.—(U. P.)—Masses of fire apparatus had control of the fierce fire which raged through the business section throughout the night. Further damage was not feared today. The loss is estimated at one million and a half.

DEFENSE IN ARBUCKLE'S TRIAL IS JUBILANT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.—(U. P.)—The scales of justice were swinging toward Arbuckle today in his trial for causing the death of Virginia Rappe. The defense was jubilant as the court opened.

witnesses in protecting Portland's interests and did not take an active part in behalf of the railroads although he sat at their counsel table.

The following is a summary of the high lights of the Chicago hearing and the testimony of the railroad witnesses.

First Day

Edward Chambers, vice president in charge of traffic of the Santa Fe railroad, admitted under cross-examination that the carriers' proposed rates to Pacific coast terminal cities were based upon the city of Chicago with a view to fostering, developing and building up industries and business at Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and other central cities, where the railroads could keep control of the traffic.

Mr. Chambers admitted that railroad freight rates were essential in the development of a city and that the railroads by their rates endeavored to maintain what he termed the "balance" of industries by fostering them at Chicago and similar cities.

Shortly after this admission had been pulled out of Chambers, Examiner Disque asked:

"If the railroads find it good business to build rates to develop an interior city such as Chicago on one end, why would it not be equally good business to so build the rates as to develop and build up interior cities, such as Reno and Spokane on the other end?"

"Conditions are different," replied Chambers. "Reno and Spokane are not manufacturing centers. They are consuming centers."

This developed an interesting point that the Interstate Rate Association has been looking for and the railroads will be asked to justify their right to recognize market competition when they refuse to recognize consuming competition, which makes market competition.

The traffic managers of Boston and New York, W. H. Chandler and J. C. Lincoln, took active parts. The proposed terminal rates are blanketed back to Chicago and St. Paul and Boston and New York want to know by what right the railroads propose to move their harbors 1500 miles inland to these cities.

Asserting that lower transcontinental railroad freight rates will cause the merchant marine to cease to function, representatives of coast wise steamer lines entered protest to the petition of transcontinental railroads. The steamship lines attacked the proposition on the ground that the rates from west to east will not be lowered and thus the western manufacturer will be discriminated against, and the reduction will injure the merchant marine and that the local rates in the interior would not be reduced.

WORLD PEACE TO COME BY EVOLUTION SAYS SENATOR FROM KANSAS

Nevada Senator Expresses His Confidence in Outcome of Disarmament Conference.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(U. S. N. S.)—"World peace must come by evolution," Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, declared recently in an article written for International News Service on the coming conference for the limitation of armaments. His article, together with one written by Senator Odell, of Nevada, follows.

BY SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER, (R.), KANSAS.
(Written for International News Service.)

There are few people, I am sure, who believe that the conference on limitation of armaments will lead at once to a cessation of war, though all thinking men earnestly hope that it may. In a world that has had wars for eighty centuries that is probably too much to expect. However, if, as the president has so aptly put it, the conference results in a "reasonable limitation" of armaments much will have been accomplished. That much will be done because it must be done. A world outraged by war demands it. The people, who furnish the money and the human fodder for the guns of the war lords, neither can nor will longer endure a continuation of the world-wide contest in armaments, which leads only to war. The world is realizing that it needs banquets and ruin if naval and military expenditures are not halted and that civilization faces certain destruction if there should be another big war.

So probably the biggest thing the conference can accomplish will be to put a stop to the... for a moment... if that first step shall place the world on a peace footing and in a peace attitude it will be the world's greatest
