LITTLE HOME JOURNEYS TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Downing Street in U.S. BY DAVID L. BLUMFELD (United Press Staff Correspondent)
 WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—It is the delusions of foreign nations to the conference were to adopt a plan of "Efficiency should surely be selected by the British."
 It is but a few days since seventeen Britishers, male and female, stepped off the pullman at the Union station here, the men with walking sticks and gloves, the women secretaries neatly veiled and "tailor made" and already the official homes of Great Britain here are talking on the atmosphere of Downing street at its best.
 In the Franklin Square hotel where two whole floors have been given to the British for offices, an American visitor would feel almost strange. As he steps off the elevator at the second floor, he is informed by British marine clerks to attention and asks his business. If everything is in order the visitor is conducted to a waiting room. While he waits the London Times is laid out on a table before him. The walls are adorned with British calendars. Through the thin partitions come the voices of the fair haired English stenographers rattling away for all the world as if they were at home in London and the street outside was Whitehall and not 14th Street, Washington, D. C.
 Everything in that series of little offices is orderly, neat, arranged in the rooms of the directors of the various branches of the British Government concerned in the conference. Two suited young men leisurely dictate letters; a telephone bell rings and the broad accent of London town carries over the wires to another "Little England" on Connecticut Avenue—the home of Sir Auckland Geddes and the British Embassy.
 "What's that you want to see Sir John... Oh rather. At five and twenty minutes past five? Righto... Bang. Down goes the receiver and the letter is casually finished. No speed, no rush, no panic. Just an orderly little office full of very ordinary clerical people. But they do the work. To be sure, communication between all the British residences and the British Embassy, thanks to American ingenuity and British demand, has been brought to nothing short of fine art.

GURDANE FOLK SPEND EVENING AT DANCE
 (East Oregonian Special)
 GURDANE, Nov. 25.—A big dance was given at the home of Pat Daugherty at Gurdane last Wednesday night in honor of the McDevitt girls who were visiting their brother, Charles McDevitt. A big crowd attended. All had a good time. Those from Ny were Bert Reeder and wife, Mrs. Jim Kranner, Mr. Romanus, Mrs. May Horman and Mrs. Tom Lightfoot visited last week at their brother's, Frank Chapman.
 A big snow fell at Gurdane the past four days but turned to rain Saturday night and rained Sunday, making it all a wash.
 Bridget McDevitt and sister, returned to Pendleton Friday.
 Baker Chapman left the last of the week after a band of sheep which is snow-bound in the mountains.
 Charles Piquet and wife left for 11-1/2 Rock Friday on business. He shipped some beef cattle last week.
 Ralph Hanna returned home last week with his cattle, which have been on pasture.
 Jim Nelson is getting his cattle out of the mountains, being snowed in at the Meadows.
 Mrs. Mike Tom and children left for an extended visit to the Willamette valley.
