CLUB HAS MEETING

Growing interest in the Pendleton Women's Club was evidenced at yesterday's meeting, the attendance being the greatest in the history of the club's activity. Although the club has never carried on a membership campaign, the personnel is constantly growing and yesterday twelve new names were submitted.

"Noted Writers of Oregon" was the theme for the meeting, for which Mrs. E. F. Averill, Mrs. Charles Vurpillat, Mrs. R. M. Tanner, Mrs. Douglas Belts, Mrs. Claudia Benson, Mrs. J. A. Best, and Mrs. D. C. Brown were hos-teses at the library club room.

Homer Davenport and Mrs. Ella Higginson were discussed by Mrs. J. T. Richardson. For a round-table discussion, Mrs. John Montgomery took up the subject of Eva Emery Dye and Dr. Lewis Banks; Mrs. Will Wyrick discussed Frederick Homer Balch, author of "The Bridge of the Gods," and Samuel Simpson, author of "Beautiful Willamette"; Mrs. Fred Lisenell spoke on Edwin Markham, and his "The Man With the Hoe," while the closing discussion was on Joaquin Miller, the poet of the Sierras, by Mrs. L. D. Idleman. Eight pupils of Mrs. Idleman gave the poem "Columbus," by Miller.

Musical numbers included a community sing led by Mrs. Maude L. Woodyard, a piano solo by Mrs. G. W. Phelps and vocal solos by Mrs. S. H. Farshaw, with Mrs. Alger Peck at the piano. During the social hour Mrs. Alice Munro and Mrs. Alice Hayes presided at a tea table centered with carnations.

STERLING E. BROOKS

YOUR KIDNEYS OR BACK BOTHER YOU?

READ WHAT MR. BROOKS SAYS
Dinuba, Cal.—"Two years ago the flu left my kidneys in a very bad shape. I went to my physician but he didn't do me any good. I got thin, my back hurt all the time, and I was not able to work. I got very despondent and finally, after almost giving up hope of getting well, I heard of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets and began using them together with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and after a few months' treatment, I found myself practically well. I can recommend these Anuric Tablets for weak kidneys; and for torpid liver, impure blood and poor digestion, there is nothing that equals the Golden Medical Discovery."—Sterling E. Brooks, 246 Academy Way.
You can quickly put yourself in A-1 condition by going to your druggist and obtaining Dr. Pierce's Family Remedies, tablets or liquid, or write Dr. Pierce, President Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice. Send 10c if you desire a trial pkg. of tablets.

- Dissolve the grease in benzine, alcohol, chloroform, ether, carbolic, or kerosene. For delicate fabrics dissolve grease spots in ether or chloroform. Chloroform and carbolic are useful because they are non-inflammable.

GENERALS WHO DIRECTED RIVAL ARMIES IN WORLD WAR MEET AT LUNCHEON

Under Spell of Coffee and Lure of Cigars Tales of Daring Were Related by Officers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—"Under the guiding light of star shells on that dark and bloody night I moved my men through the mountain pass hoping to thank you unawares."
It was General Hays von Below, one of the most distinguished of the German leaders in the World War, who spoke.
"We apprehended your move that night. I remember it well. It was the night one of my aides was killed."
It was General the Earl of Cavan, one of the lieutenant-generals who led the British to victory, who replied.
The two warriors who had faced each other in command of titan armies at critical periods during the war met under extraordinary circumstances at a luncheon party in Washington a few days ago. It was a meeting of "friendly enemies."
Seated at the table were the Earl of Cavan, General von Below, General H. K. Bethell, military attache to the British Embassy here, and Colonel Bartholomew. Lord Cavan and Colonel Bartholomew are members of the British delegation to the arms conference. General von Below is in America on business. His wife is an American. The former German commander may stay here indefinitely and is courting the idea of establishing himself in business here.

The luncheon had all the characteristics of a group of college football players meeting after a bitterly-fought gridiron duel, discussing good-naturedly the technical features of the battle. There was friendly rivalry, but no bitterness.
Under the spell of coffee and the lure of long cigars the conversation between the generals drew out tales of daring and doing, deeds that were done with a vengeance, and mishaps, sometimes humorous, that had blocked the mighty drive of the Prussians or mayhap weakened the ranks of the Allies. The luncheon table became as a council table and in their mind's eye they must have seen each other garbed in war-time cloth. The inebriation of cigars took on the appearance of battle smoke and the knives and forks were formed into battle lines and regimental arrays in the explanation of maneuvers.
"We talked of battles, of successes and defeats, and their cause and effect," General von Below said afterward. "Being all good soldiers and sportsmen, we were able to forget our former feelings and discuss the war in an unconstrained and dispassionate way."
General von Below is a tall, straight, well-built and soldierly figure. Though Prussian in physical appearance, the general's eyes belie his appearance, for they are large and kind and edged with myriad crow's feet. He smiles with cavalier grace. He is the brother of General Otto von Below, who was in command of the Austrian troops on the Italian front and whose name figured daily in war-time dispatches from the Piave. It was Lord Cavan who stopped the Austrian smash on the Piave. Hans von Below was with his brother in the Piave struggle. In a friendly manner Lord Cavan and von Below discussed the Piave combat and told each other how it had been done. Each explained to the other how mistakes had been made, and each had words of praise for the other for some particularly brilliant stroke recalled. At the conclusion of the luncheon General von Below spoke of the excellent sportsmanship of his new British friends and said that the luncheon was one of the most enjoyable of his career.

General von Below arrived in New York from Europe a month ago and has been in Washington for a brief stay. Commenting on his American visit, General von Below said: "My plans are a bit vague as yet. I am here because my wife is an American. My being here has no official significance. I am a soldier and never have been connected with politics. I have no connection with the present German Government, and, what is more, I do not wish to have."

The general's wife was formerly Miss Price, of South Carolina.
During the war General von Below commanded troops in both the Eastern and Western theatres. After the armistice he was a lieutenant-general in command of the Fifty-first Army Corps and remained with his forces

Linoleum Is the Ideal Floor For The Kitchen

In summer your kitchen floor should be cool. But in winter, naturally, you want a warm floor. No floor meets these requirements so well as linoleum. It is made mainly of cork, the best non-conductor of heat known. In summer it is cool; in winter, warm. Because there are no cracks in a linoleum floor, it is warmer than the average wood floor.
Linoleum is sanitary and easy to clean—it saves you hours of scrubbing. It is comfortable to tired feet, a point to think of if you have to stand at your work. It is durable and inexpensive.
