PARALLEL SEEN IN SLAYING OF TAYLOR AND ELWELL, WHO LIVED IN SIMILAR MANNER

Noted Writer Finds Both Men Had Women Admirers; As- sassin' Fury Tempted.

BY MARGERY REX,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—It is easy for the enemy of a man who lives secretly to murder him unseen.

In mysterious manner two men who ate the secret bread of pleasure and drank sweet stolen waters have died by the fury of assassins still unknown.

The career of William Desmond Taylor, slain movie director, in life and death paralleled that of "Jim" Elwell, so strangely shot down in his New York home two years ago.

Each lived alone, and alone each was attacked. From both Taylor and Elwell, in their last moments, someone fled.

Men who shun daylight are apt to make themselves tempting targets for marksmen in the dark.

Taylor's leave-taking of life was just as mysterious as his inexplicable departure in 1908 from his wife and child and just as unaccountable as his change of name, for the dead man was known originally as William Cunningham Deane-Tanner.

Who Was Slayer?
Who could have arranged Taylor's clandestine rendezvous with death?

Suspicion goes over the list of possibilities. There is, for instance, Edward P. Sands, the dead man's valet, who robbed his master and whom, one of the feminine stars says, Taylor vowed to kill at sight. And there are the men who are interested in the women Taylor knew.

Will one of the brilliant stars of that Cooper-Hewitts, shoot down to earth and be obliterated in the tragedy?

Like his prototype Elwell, Taylor was accorded by the opposite sex, but cared for none constantly. In fact, it is said he was indifferent to live. Interesting, travelled, well read, a brilliant talker and a discreet confidant, Taylor held the friendship of many women. Whether or not his relations with them were sentimental cannot be determined at this time.

But why did he disappear in 1908 from a beautiful wife and daughter, from a host of friends and a gay social circle?

Rover by Nature.
Rover by nature, William Deane-Tanner came to New York from Dublin in the late nineties. Movies were unheard of then, and the young Irishman did not dream of the magic lantern which would create a life of splendor for him and for thousands of others.

He was interested in antiques and objects of art. He entered into that business near Thirtieth street and Fifth avenue at a period when this neighborhood held many small shops with fascinating wares when the Holland House was flourishing and fine old homes and old fashioned apartment houses had not been superseded by business.

"Flordora" was then in her first fling. Among the pretty girls of that first cast was Ethel May Harrison. They met and married in 1901. Clubs, racetrack, tressies and gay parties drew this restless individual, who because of his addition to a life of pleasure did not cause serious worry to his family when he disappeared in 1908 for what his friends thought would be a short time.

Waved Good-by to Wife.
At the Vanderbilt Cup Race that year Taylor waved good-by to his wife, later sent to their apartment in the Colonial Hotel for his clothes but remained unheard from until the movies began to flash faces around the world. In this way his friends knew that Taylor was dead.

lor was Tanner and not dead by any means. His wife meantime had divorced him and married Edward Robins, restaurateur, now proprietor of Delmonico's. Tanner, became Taylor, tired of the old life, found new outlet for his whims and roving disposition in the adventures that he directed for the films.

Taylor's associates were men and women whom the screen brought before all of us. We know their mannerisms, their charms and their features as well as those of our own relatives. Mabel Normand was his "pal." Claire Windsor was a friend. Neva Gerber was once engaged to the man, but they decided in a perfectly friendly way not to marry. He admired pretty Mary Miles Minter, famous long as "The Little Rebel."

Taylor lived as Elwell did, alone, and his servant went away at night. While this mode of life encourages intrigue not possible in a more open existence, it makes the occupant of a lonely house liable to attack. Black-mailer or murderer could easily gain access to his intended victim.

And, like the slain whist expert, Taylor received young women callers frequently at his home. He had received a visit from one of them on the very night of his death. Women's garments were found in his home as in Elwell's.

The killing of Joseph Elwell is still a mystery. Whether his slayer was a burglar or an angry or jealous man or woman has never been discovered.

Both men had grimly attractive faces. Taylor's photographs show penetrating and suspicious glance, light-set lips, a knit brow. Elwell revealed a less slight expression, more good humored idle contempt. His admirers declared that look spurred on feminine acquaintances to dispel its impersonal quality.

Who killed Taylor-Tanner? Star or servant or jealous rival?

A regular production schedule is carried out smoothly by notifying each "client" by telephone of his turn.

LIGHT HOUSES GUIDE
FLYERS' NIGHT TRIPS
LONDON, Feb. 17.—(I. N. S.)—Lighthouses that guide both mariners and airmen are now shining along the French coast.

From Dunkirk to Etaples four such marine lights, situated at Dunkirk, Calais, Cape Griz Nez and Etaples, have been set up.

Each of these light houses flash out, in a series of light and dark periods, a letter in the Morse code.

Night air expresses are promised in the Spring between Paris and London, each machine carrying twenty passengers in a brilliantly lighted salon.

AGRICULTURE BY ELECTRICITY
BESSEMER, Mich., Feb. 17.—(U. P.)—Joseph Bartone, pumpman at the Anvil-Palms Mine, is growing vegetables and flowers by the aid of electricity 1,100 feet below the earth's surface. Bartone has a trough three feet long and two and a half feet wide, filled with earth from the surface and mixed with fertilizer. In it he raises beans, onions, lettuce and other vegetables as well as flowers. The plants grow just as well as on the surface. Bartone said, due to the fact that the temperature is fairly moderate and the excellent quality of water to draw for them. Bartone also has a fish pond with pickerel, perch and suckers thriving in it.

WOMEN ARE TO OPERATE LARGE TURKEY FARM

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Feb. 17.—(I. N. S.)—A turkey ranch, conducted on the lines of big cattle ranches, will be started here next Spring by Mrs. G. A. Rumbaugh and Mrs. Roy Burch.

These women have made a financial success in the turkey business conducted on a small scale. They now plan to start the 1922 season with a foundation of 800 birds to be reared over the sandhill country in small flocks.

Herders will be hired to attend each flock and guard against raids by coyotes, wolves and other predatory animals.

The women say their feed will cost virtually nothing as the flocks will thrive and fatten on grasshoppers and other natural feeds that abound in the sandhill region.

'DRUNKARD DADDY' SAYS HIS EXAMPLE EFFECTIVE

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Feb. 17.—(I. N. S.)—When asked by Judge Haggerty, in the district court, what kind of an example he thought he was to his family of four children, Francis McCarty of North Attleboro, answering to a charge of drunkenness for the sixteenth time, replied that he considered himself a "good example." He claimed that, inasmuch as he had a long record and that not one of his sons was a drunkard, he thought he provided an example of the "curse of drink." McCarty declared that his sons had grown up to be total abstainers. Judge Haggerty placed McCarty on probation.

WEDGE, PRIZE FIGHTER, ENTERS UNIVERSITY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 17.—Frederick R. (Kid) Wedge of Prescott, Ariz., 40 years old, ex-lumber jack and prize fighter, was admitted to Harvard university as a student of the graduate school of education today. He has come across the country in freight cars to register, only to find that he was uncertain of admission.

Wedge's admission to Harvard marks the latest step in his fight for an education. After battling his way out of the Wisconsin lumber camp by his boxing prowess, he became fairly successful participant in battles of the prize ring in Nebraska, Colorado and other western states. Then, under the influence of the young woman who became his wife, he turned to obtain an education, obtaining a degree from the University of Arizona, and acting for a year as principal of a high school in Prescott.

"Our delay in admitting Mr. Wedge," Dean Henry W. Holmes of the school of education at Harvard said today, "has had absolutely nothing to do with the fact that he was formerly a prize fighter. His remarkable struggle for an education counted in his favor."

The delay was due to other questions concerning his record and qualifications.

CHOOSE HUSBAND LIKE FROCK, JUDGE ADVISE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 17.—(I. N. S.)—To lessen divorce choose a husband such the same skill in care that you would exercise in purchasing a dress.

This formula for married bliss advanced by Justice Seeger in granting an annulment of marriage to Marie D. Stevens. Mrs. Stevens claimed she was only fifteen years when she met her husband, Willis, and married him ten days after their meeting.

"The next time you get married," said the Judge, "take a couple of weeks to think it over. When you're buying goods for a dress go over the goods in the shop. You ought to take at least as much care in choosing a husband."

NURSE'S SALARY LESS THAN COST OF SOAP

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(A. P.)—The monthly salary of a nurse in the municipal hospital in Moscow is less than the cost of a cake of soap in that city.

WOMAN'S FAITH HELPS HUSBAND

"I owe my good health to my wife who had faith in a newspaper ad she saw of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I was down so badly with stomach and liver trouble after 15 years of suffering and trying every known remedy that I had no faith in anything. This medicine has certainly been a 'God-send' to me." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.—At druggists everywhere.

This striking example of the disproportion between wages and the cost of living in the Russian capital is disclosed in a report just made by a special commission sent to Russia by the health committee of the League of Nations.

The commission says that a cake of soap in Moscow cost 8500 rubles, while nurses in the city hospital were paid only 5000 rubles a month and that they had to be content with scanty food.

The poverty and misery that prevailed in Russia as seen in the hospital which the commission visited made a deep impression upon the members. Nevertheless, the commission stated, there is a high state of efficiency in the municipal hospital and the Commission emphasized the spirit of sacrifice displayed by those entrusted with ministering to the health of the Russian people, especially of the children.
