RIVOLI SUNDAY AND MONDAY ROOF-TOPS OF NEW YORK SEEN IN "RENT FREE"
The rooftops of New York! When you see them in "Rent Free," Wallace Reid's new Paramount picture which is to be seen at the Rivoli theatre Sunday, you'll swear they are the real thing.

But they are not. The company might have been taken to New York; they could have built a tremendous platform to stage the scenes—a hundred or more—but they did neither. Director Howard Higgin and the art directors and others evolved the plan of locating the set on the roofs of the big studio buildings in Hollywood.

41,000 Feet of Lumber in One Tree

When this British Columbia fir log was cut up at Kobe, Japan, it yielded 41,000 feet of lumber. It was nine feet in diameter. Japan now looks to British Columbia for much of its lumber.

MARY MILES MINTER

—In—TILLIE

the novel and play, "Tillie, a Mennonite Maid."
NEWS WEEKLY COMEDY

"They built up some plaster brick walls, used the regular skylights, chimney pots, etc., hoisted up sun arcs and other lights, erected diffusers and took the company to the roofs. The effect was perfect and nobody knows how many thousand of dollars were saved by this judicious move.

And, you, Mr. and Mrs. Playgoer, will never believe it when you see the picture on the screen. That is, you wouldn't if you hadn't been told by the press agent who invariably sticks to the truth and nothing but the truth.

Chief Supervisor Frank E. Woods, personally supervised his productions which is adapted by Elmer Rice from the story by Mann Ugo and Izola Forrester Page. Lila Lee is the leading woman.

ARCADE SUNDAY AND MONDAY SHOULD ONE ALWAYS "HONOR THY FATHER?"

"Honor Thy Father..... that the day may be long..... And yet if "thy father" is not worth of honor, if his cruelty revolts you, is it a sin to turn against him and cleave to the man who means happiness?

This is the problem that faced the heroine in "Tillie," a new Mary Miles Minter Reelart starring vehicle which opens at the Arcade Theatre for two days beginning Sunday. And its solution forms the dramatic climax of a story which is said to blend in an unusual manner the entertainment elements of pathos, drama and humor. Alice Eytan adapted the photoplay from the well-known novel, "Tillie, a Mennonite Maid," by Helen R. Martin, and the play by Frank Howe, Jr. Frank Urson directed with supervision by Elmer Harris. Noah Beery, villain of the "Sea Wolf," "Dinty," "Call of the North," and a score of other famous plays, is tight-fisted "Jake Getz" while Alan Forrest plays the male lead.

WOODWARD TOLL GATE

Lost in Hills.

Mr. Woodward lost his life in the hills where so many years of his life were spent.

"He was an odd character," his granddaughter said in speaking of him, "and he insisted on living by himself at the homestead and trapping during a winter about a quarter of a century ago. He made a trip to Elgin for supplies, taking with him a little pack sled to bring back his stores with him.

"He got to Elgin safely, but he never returned home. A broken snow shoe was found within a mile and one-half of the house, but the sled and my grandfather never were found again. Evidently he was frozen to death."

Some Refuse Payment.

Many incidents about experiences that members of the family had in collecting toll were related by Miss Rouanzoin.

"A great many people resented having to pay tolls," she said. "Some of them thought that the company had no right to charge tolls, even as county courts since have held that opinion. There was a rule which made it possible to collect three times the original fee from dodgers who got past the gate without making the legal payment, and many times these dodgers were followed to Elgin where collection was made.

"Suits were many times threatened but none were ever brought. One incident which I have heard my mother tell many times had to do with a fire which swept over the Blue Mountains 38 years ago. A freighter with a big tank full of kerosene stopped at the ranch for the night. He left his wagon near the house. One wheel on the wagon was broken down. During the night the fire swept down the hillside. There was some lively work to get that wagon away from the house out into the open. Both the wagon and buildings were saved."

The length of the toll road proper is 25 miles, Miss Rouanzoin says. All but about three miles of the road is in Union county. Two or three miles of road which join the toll road proper on this side is rough, and some persons have complained to the road company, but the company has nothing to do with it.

D. J. Woodward, father of Mrs. Rouanzoin of Milton, came to Oregon in 1859 with his parents who had lived in Iowa.

The road is usually open for five months of the year: June, July, August, September and October.

Seventeen hundred and forty-one persons are reported to have met their deaths by automobiles and trucks in the state of New York during the past year.

The Russian Soviet is reported as having purchased for cash a large supply of pneumatic and solid tires from a French manufacturer.
