JURY COMPLETE FOR TEX RICKARD TRIAL

NEW YORK, March 21.—(U. P.)—The jury in the trial of Tex Rickard, boxing promoter, growing out of charges brought by four east side girls, was completed this morning. The first witness is due to take the stand this afternoon.

by comparing them with salaries for similar duties in other states. He also took occasion to answer a criticism against the state tax investigation commission, which some delegates said was spending vast sums of money.

Mr. Pierce, a member of the commission, explained that the commissioners receive only their railroad fare and hotel bills. The relief in sight for the taxpayers, said Mr. Pierce, is an income tax which will bear part of the state load; relieve the real property of much of its present burden and force hidden wealth to contribute its share toward the support of the government.

Recall is suggested. To while away time for ten minutes at noon, all who had resolutions were invited to read them, without debate or comment. Here are some of the suggestions:

Recall public service commission. Cut out all road bonds for the next 20 years.

Abolish taxes to provide maintenance for law and medical schools. Resubmit millage tax to voters.

Make property owning a qualification for voting on bond measures.

Adopt federal income tax law, substituting the word state for federal government.

Abolish appropriations for national guard, leaving military instruction for schools.

To amend constitution making two-thirds majority a requirement.

Abolish 4 per cent limitation.

Limit salary of state officials to $5000 and make no increase during an incumbent's term.

Appoint committee to investigate state institutions and recommend cuts in budgets.

Prohibit issuing more bonds, and of bonds unsold insist that they bring par value.

These are some of the many suggestions read off in the confusion of taking a recess. They were the ideas which prompted about 150 men to come to Portland to thresh them over. None went beyond the reading stage yesterday, but some of them will come out prominently today.

Sam Winchester and Mrs. Dighton and daughter Byrl motored to Pendleton Wednesday evening where they visited with Mrs. Dighton's son.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Salder and little daughter Ruth returned on No. 4 Wednesday morning from Portland where they had spent a few days visiting relatives.

Mrs. R. J. English accompanied Fredrick Heath to his home in Pleasant Valley Saturday morning, returning Sunday night.

The young mens Sunday school class won the four weeks contest from the young ladies class and were banqueted at the school house Thursday night by the young ladies.

Leonard & Germaine, a nifty pair of dancing wonders will open the show to good advantage and give it a lively start.

An interesting feature picture will be added to this varied program.

HONOLULU, T. H., March 21.—(A. P.)—The "trouble shooter" who rushes on a motorcycle to the aid of a member of the Honolulu Automobile Club who has encountered any mishaps or accidents of motoring will be equipped with a wireless telephone receiving set in order that his work may be expedited, if experiments now in progress by the club and a wireless company here prove successful, it was announced today. If the "trouble shooter" is out on one call when another troubled club member requests his assistance, he will be notified by wireless in order to save time, club officials said. The club will be the first in the United States to utilize the wireless in this manner. It is said.

ARCANE TODAY

FACT AND FICTION BLENDED IN FILM OF AFRICA IN 1871

The word "theatre" means, to most of us, entertainment pure and simple and the added attractions of the words "motion picture serial" in connection with the former word spells to the ear of the twentieth century audience thrills, excitement and suspense.

"With Stanley in Africa," the Universal serial which starts at the Arcade Theatre today assures its spectators of all this plus a liberal education in history.

Never have fiction and act been so perfectly blended in a motion picture production as it has in this famous epoch of history, the theme of which fairly throbs with romance of the days of 1871 when Henry M. Stanley was on his famous expedition to find Dr. David Livingstone, the well-known missionary, who, for five years was lost to civilization in the heart of the Dark Continent.

George Walsh, the featured player, is supported by such capable and popular players as Louise Lorraine, who plays the feminine lead; Charles Mason, William Welch and Gordon Backville.

RIVOLTA TODAY

An unusual analysis of good womanhood, a gripping dramatic plot and a situation similar to no other "triangle" situation ever conceived by a playwright are the elements that contrived to make Wilbur Daniel Steele's "Ropes," published in Harper's magazine a few months ago, the literary surprise of the year.

When the clouds of praise, censure and endless argument arose over "Ropes," Universal immediately negotiated the purchase of the screen rights. It was foreseen that the play offered unparalleled opportunities for a historic performance of Miss du Pont, now Universal star.

Miss du Pont's first starring vehicle it will be recalled by everyone, was "The Rage of Paris." Her very first work in motion pictures—in a role of any consequence—was with Erich von Stroheim, in the chief feminine role of his twelve hundred thousand dollar production, "Foolish Wives," a superspectacle for Universal-Jewel release.

Wallace Clifton scenarized "Ropes," Paul Seardon directed it and Pat O'Malley and Lloyd Whitlock played the two chief roles in support of the beautiful star. Its screen title is "False Klases."

It pictures the finer intimacies of life as well as its grosser absurdities. The woman when even a good woman may fall—when the latent force of evil may sway the best soul, the sweetest soul on earth—is shown. The higher spiritual meanings of love and marriage also are visualized clearly in "False Klases," which may be seen at the Rivoli theatre today.
