You don't want to, neither do we. So we get the best quality for you; then we guarantee it. We show all the new things all the time, and we give you the best for the price, no matter what the price.

Fashion Says TWEEDS

Popularity of sports clothes awakens first interest in tweeds. One might choose at random here from suits, coats or capes, and be pleased with their choice, its more like an exhibition than an offering, and is entirely in a class by itself. Just to see them is an inspiration. They're priced from $22.50 to $50.

The Bargain Basement

A woman patron with a new pair of shoes under her arm came into the Basement a day or so ago and complained of the "continued high prices as compared to wages and salaries." "Let's see the new shoes that you say cost you $7.50 at another place," says the salesperson waiting on this patron. Investigation showed that she had bought a good pair of McKay (sneaky solid) brown kid shoes for $7.50 when she could have attended our Special Shoe Sale and could have bought an excellent pair of $9.50 fine brown kid shoes with the quiet, easy, flexible, Goodboy welt soles for $2.99. THEY ARE ON SALE NOW. Should have been in complaining or should we strive to see where our dollar pulls the greatest load.

Save yourself the worry, the glove, the finish and wearing qualities by observing the following simple rules for the care of your Fabric Gloves:

HOW TO WASH GLOVES

- Use only luke warm water and a pure soap.
- Do not use ordinary soap or wring and twist gloves.
- Rinse thoroughly as any soap left in the gloves will discolor them.
- Pull lengthwise, wrap in a towel, then stretch in shape.
- Lay the gloves flat between the folded towel to dry.
- A little salt added to the water will prevent colored embroidery from running. It is also helpful to stuff the gloves with tissue paper when drying.

FOREST SERVICE CHIEF RESENTS PAPER'S ATTACK

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 22.—"The Washington Post," said Col. W. B. Greeley, Chief of the Forest Service, today, "is seriously misinformed when it says: 'The Forest Service dictates the course of roads within the national forests, and prevents the construction of highways which are required in the public welfare. It hails a farmer's law in search of a drink of water at a spring lying a few feet within a forest area. It denies to a pioneering farmer the right to acquire a few feet of timber adjoining his homestead. It sells off the timber on a mining claim, denying the timber to the miner, who must send sometimes thousands of miles for a few sticks of timber which might have been cut from his own claim. It disposes of timber to foreign countries at a time when domestic needs are unsupplied. It does not create additional forest to replace that which is cut, but clings to lands which are not forested at all, and refuses to permit them to be opened for homes. Alaska is locked up, a useless treasure-house.'"

"If one-tenth of what the Post has said were true," added Col. Greeley, "it would be high time for a house cleaning in the Forest Service. But there is not a vestige of truth in any of these statements." Here are a few facts which any one may verify. "Any public road may be built in the National Forests without even obtaining the approval of the Forest Service. Nearly $17,000,000 of Federal funds have been spent on National Forest roads and 90 per cent of these projects were proposed in the first instance by the States, or by their counties or communities. Local agencies have cooperated in building most of them.

"Since 1905, when the Forest Service assumed control of the National Forests, over 1,610,000 board feet of timber have been given without charge to settlers and prospectors. From 35,000 to 40,000 people obtain such timber every year. Over 100,000 head of farm animals are grazed yearly by local settlers on the National Forests without charge.

"The Forest Service refuses to allow public rights in the forests to be held up by fake or fraudulent claims, but it scrupulously avoids the sale of timber on any mining claim which the Interior Department accepts as valid.

"The Forest Service secured the enactment of a law which made homesteading possible in the National Forests, and it has opened over 21,000 homesteads to entry under that law. Besides this, it has eliminated some 25,000,000 acres of land from the National Forests during the past 12 years, making them available to entry under the general homestead laws. We still have a lot of treeless land in high mountains above timber line. We still have large areas of treeless land which were put in the National Forests at the insistence of the Reclamation Service for the protection of watersheds supplying their reservoirs, or at the insistence of private water users' associations.

"The Forest Service does not dispose of timber to foreign countries. While it has no control over the export laws of the United States, it has repeatedly refused to even negotiate with foreign corporations for the sale of National Forest timber.

"There are 20,000,000 acres of young and growing trees within the National Forests as the result of keeping fire out of large areas which

LEGION SEEKS WORK FOR EX-SERVICE MEN

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 21.—Their savings exhausted after months of illness, 700,000 ex-service men of the World War are jobless and in need, according to Leonard Bolles, national adjutant of the American Legion. A national effort to find work for the men was started March 20, American Legion employment day.

Assisted by the legion in its campaign are business men's clubs, civic, patriotic and fraternal organizations and public officials in every state. Fifteen state governors issued proclamations designating legion employment day and urging citizens to employ ex-fighters.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has endorsed the legion's drive for employment. In a letter received at legion national headquarters, he says: "This is a most worthy object. You know, however, that the membership of the American Federation of Labor is composed of wage earners only. While our membership cannot give employment to the unemployed members of the American Legion, there is no doubt that every encouragement will be given to bring about the desired result. Thousands of members of the American Legion are also members of the trade unions and the sympathy of the wage earners will go out to those who did so much for not only our country but for the entire world."

Letters urging co-operation with the legion were sent to all member bodies by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

U. OF O. ORCHESTRA WILL VISIT PENDLETON

The University of Oregon orchestra, the largest traveling organization of its kind in the northwest, will appear in concert in the high school auditorium Wednesday evening, March 29.

Margaret Phelps, daughter of Judge G. W. Phelps, of this city, is one of the violinists who will make the trip. Miss Phelps was formerly violin soloist with the University Women's Glee Club and has gained considerable reputation in University music circles. She is a member of Ny Phi Epsilon, national honorary music sorority.

The orchestra tour, which will start after the close of the winter term and will extend over a period of ten days, is made each spring by the members of the organization. The students will leave Eugene Friday, March 24 for Woodburn, where they will play on that date. From there the route will pass through Oregon City, Baker, La Grande, Pendleton, Heppner, Hood River and probably Portland. According to Fred Lorenz, manager of the orchestra, offers have been received from Falls City and Dallas and it is possible that the orchestra will include these towns in its itinerary.

Under the direction of Rex Underwood the orchestra has played in all parts of the state and has received favorable comment. This is Mr. Underwood's third year as director of the orchestra. He is also head of the violin department of the University School of Music.

Two soloists, Laura Teshner, cellist, and Alberta Potter, violinist, will accompany the organization on the trip. Miss Teshner traveled last year with Thurlow Learrance's Little Symphony Orchestra as a cello soloist and will rejoin that group upon completing the eastern Oregon tour. Miss Potter, who has traveled with the University Orchestra for the past three seasons as violin soloist, is instructor of violin in the University School of Music.

The repertoire of the orchestra has been built up with a view to the giving of the most interesting of programs. The plan being followed by the director is to have a large number of selections so that the program can be varied from night to night. Heavy orchestral numbers such as "William Tell" Overture and Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C-sharp Minor" and lighter pieces such as "The March of the Wooden Soldiers" by Pierre will be played.

Vandeville entertainment of the best class will comprise a portion of the program. This will contain girls' string quartet and quintet and a seven-piece novelty orchestra. This last group is made up of some of the best popular music performers on the University campus.

CHICAGO—Ten million American people are members of fraternal insurance societies, according to Mrs. Dora Alexander Talley, Omaha, Neb., delegate to the National Fraternal Congress.
