Army Fliers Escape Death by Inches

PRINCE IS BOOT BLACK AT NICE

NICE (By Mail to United Press).— "All right, shine 'em up, Saube, and make it snappy!" Any American visitor is apt to so address a negro servant at the Hotel Ruhl. The guest will not know that the porter is Prince Ibrahim Kuchala Nengani, only living heir to the throne of Kanaura, in deepest Africa, and one who has been received as royalty by the Kaiser and the Crown Prince of Belgium and the Pope.

The Prince, whose country was divided up between France, Germany and England, is technically a protegee of France. He lost his small allowance from the government at Baccarat, and was compelled to take his present job shining shoes.

Coast Wonders What McAdoo Will Run For

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24.—(U. P.)—Will Wm. G. McAdoo go to the 1924 Democratic National Convention with the solid votes of the Pacific Coast States backing him for president?

These and a lot of other political questions have resulted from McAdoo's announcement that he would give up his New York voting residence and move to Southern California.

The college professions and students of politics are taking other questions. McAdoo moves to California. W. J. Bryan takes his residence to Florida and makes it known that he would look with lenient eye on any action toward forcing the United States Senatorship on him.

Many political observers profess to believe that the United States is coming around to the English system of elections, whereby the candidate for political office picks out whatever district in England he likes, and offers himself for election there. Only in the United States such politician would have to gain a legal residence.

In the 1920 Democratic Convention, many Democrats now believe McAdoo might have won had his own state been solidly behind him. It is a kind of fetish in conventions that if the delegates in a man's own state are not solid for him, he is a good man to vote alone.

While McAdoo is commonly reputed to be still nursing his presidential ambitions, it is nevertheless pointed out that a seat in the senate might be his second choice. If so, McAdoo's ambitions are dated several years away—1926, to be exact. He has not established residence in time to enter the 1922 lists against Senator Hiram Johnson. In 1926 Senator Samuel Shortridge will come up for reelection. And meantime there is the 1924 presidential campaign to be waged.

That McAdoo will greatly strengthen the Democratic forces in the state is not to be denied. In Southern California particularly a strong Democratic leader has been lacking for some time. Southern California is somewhat of a political enigma. It is nominally Republican, but very much of the independent or Progressive-Republican brand.

It is impossible to predict at present whether or not Johnson will be opposed in the Republican primaries, but it is doubtful that any one strong enough to give him a race would risk his political chances in such a contest.

How he will fare in the November elections against a strong Democratic opponent is another matter. The Democrats would like to see a Johnson anti-Johnson split in the Republican party, but do not believe they can cause this.

Who will oppose Johnson is a matter of speculation. The most likely prospect, it is believed, is former Senator James D. Phelan, who was defeated by Shortridge in the 1920 landslide. Phelan ran far ahead of his ticket, and many Democrats give him more than a chance. Phelan is an extremely independent Democrat. He was a reservationist on the League of Nations vote. He is at present in Japan, making a study of conditions there, and has sent back no word concerning his attitude. On the other hand many Democrats are urging him as a candidate for governor against William D. Stephens, incumbent.

The other most likely candidate is Gavin McNab, veteran Democratic leader of the state, who has recently been much in the public eye as counsel for Mary Plekford and Roscoe Arbuckle. McNab was offered a position on the Shipping Board during the Wilson administration, but refused it. Many of McNab's friends doubt that he would be willing to enter a campaign as strenuous as that which a contest with Johnson would entail. McNab has issued a statement that he won't run, but his advocates say other men have changed their minds.

Mail steamer, the California, sailed from New York City, around the horn, stopping on the Pacific side of the isthmus of Panama to pick up passengers who had come over the small neck of land from other ships on the Atlantic, and proceeding to San Francisco. The vessel arrived February 28, 1919—at the time of the great gold rush.

When the Venezuela arrived, marking a resumption of this Pacific Mail passenger service from New York—this time through the Panama Canal, Captain John G. Moreno, carried a letter from the Mayor of New York to the mayor of San Francisco commenting on the event.

Indoor Track Champions Are Wearing Crowns

Indoor intercollegiate champions are now wearing crowns for the first time as the indoor track and field sport for the college star made its debut here only recently.

All of the records made are now marks for intercollegiate indoor competition, but the high jump record of 6 feet 4 7-8 inches made by Leroy Brown, Dartmouth, is a world's mark.
