Long strands of the sturdiest silk, woven by the Phoenix method, have given it the great mileage endurance. And for men, women and children it holds good looks to the end of its long journey.

BOARDMAN P. T. A. FOR DOMESTIC SCIENCE

(East Oregonian Special.)
BOARDMAN, May 25.—Rev. E. Benson of Portland delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the Boardman high school in the community church Sunday evening. After paying tribute to our national and local educational systems and the persistent effort that had made it possible for the members of the class to complete their courses, Rev. Benson outlined clearly and vigorously his main theme, "The Battle of Life." At the morning service his topic was "Christ." A congregational meeting followed this service at which it was voted to meet with the Umatilla church officers to formulate plans for carrying on the work of the two places in cooperation. Dr. Benson will take care of the work until a regular pastor is installed. So far the congregations have failed to agree on the same man, though a number of candidates have appeared. To eliminate this difficulty it has now been voted by both congregations to accept whomever the church board will send.

OLD PIONEER FORT WAS ABANDONED

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 25.—Abandonment early this month of Fort Apache, a relic of early pioneer days, situated 35 miles south of Holbrook in Navajo county, leaves Arizona with but one of the many military posts which once were scattered over the state. The lone remaining post is Fort Huachuca in Santa Cruz county.

Fort Apache was located in 1869 by Major John Green. Because of its strategic position between the Navajo and Apache Indian lands, it was one of the strongest factors in subduing the Indians. The post was originally called Camp Ord, then renamed Fort Mogollon, then Fort Thomas, and finally Fort Apache.

Closing of the fort was opposed by the Arizona legislature which implored President Harding to revoke the war department's order. "It is deemed best by inhabitants of Arizona," said the legislature in a resolution to the president, "that the post should be retained for the moral effect upon the large number of Indians in the state as well as for the protection of the livestock industry."

Another Beetle Shows Up.
The Syneta leaf-beetle, a creamy white, medium sized insect sometimes having a blackish stripe down the back, is quite common in all fruit trees, where it feeds on foliage and blossoms. Lead arsenate sprays will control it but should be used on some fruits only where the pest is unusually bad as there is considerable danger of spray burn. Young grubs or similar tender growths may be protected with cheese cloth coverings.—O. A. C. Experiment Station.
