RIVOLI TODAY LURE OF OUTDOORS AND ROMANCE IN FILM

The lure of the open spaces and the spirit of the wilderness are combined with drama and romance in the Universal Special Attraction starring Frank Mayo, "Scram the Deadline," which comes to the Rivoli theater today.

Dam Would Prevent Floods Like This

Floods like this at Ripley, Cal., could be done away with, victims say, if a dam were constructed in the Colorado River at Boulder Canyon. They're using this picture in a campaign for the dam.

son, Wilfred Lucas, Yrdia Knott, Frank Thorwald and William Marion—not a one of them but is known to every regular theater-goer in the country.

A few film plays have given cinema fans the impression that the North is the scene of lurid melodrama, wherein shrieking bilious yield up lost lovers, howling winds lead wolves to battle and falling forest trees and villain's lives. But the true drama of life itself may be enacted there as well as on "Main Street." The North is something more than "the great outdoors" wherein heroes conquer heavies.
