SHIPS IDLE ON COAST SAYS SHIPPING BOARD

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Eighty-nine American steamships and fifty-one American sailing vessels have been idle from two to twenty months in ports of California, Oregon and Washington, the result, according to F. W. Helyea, district manager of the United States shipping board, of the fact that there is not enough business at present to keep the shipping of the world busy.

"The United States is getting its share of what business there is," said Helyea. "For foreign vessels are tied up in their own countries. When business conditions become normal, there will be a great demand for boats to carry cargoes. The United States should prepare for this by turning over shipping board vessels to private owners and granting them subsidies, that they may compete with foreign-owned shipping."

Thirty-one of these idle boats on the Pacific coast are wooden sailing craft, and three are wooden steamers. Foreign vessels are being moved promptly, although some carry part cargoes and some carry ballast.

The United States shipping board alone has fifty-six steel steamers, swinging to anchors in mud flats. In size they range up to 5500 tons. Thirty-seven of these shipping board vessels are in San Francisco bay. Five of them have never made a voyage. They are: The Mura, a steel steamer, of 4386 tons, launched July 2, 1920; the Menden, a steel tank steamer, of 2071 tons, launched September 25, 1920; the Mennon, steel steamer, launched September 29, 1920, and the concrete tank steamers Palo Alto and Peralta, each of 3701 tons, launched October 26, 1920.

Before the war was begun in 1914 few vessels carried the American flag to foreign ports. Today, possessing a merchant marine among the largest in the world, Uncle Sam sees his flag flying on many vessels in home ports.

Riding at anchor in San Francisco Bay are fifty seven steamers and 56 sailing vessels. Puget Sound waters float twenty-two steamers and eleven sailing craft. The Columbia river shelters ten ocean steamers and two sailing vessels, and the lumbering port of Grays Harbor, Wash., has two sailpower boats tied up.

BOOZE PRICES RISE AS VISITORS FLOOD FRANCE

PARIS, July 5.—Influx of visiting foreigners from a perched land has unduly raised the price of French wines and liquors.

This is implied in a protest made by a congress of hotel keepers meeting at Bourges against the wholesale prices set by wine merchants.

"They are going to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs," the author of the protest declared.

The hotel keepers also protested vigorously against the "taxe de séjour" at summer and winter resorts and touring centres. According to a letter received from the hotel keepers of Chamonix, the tax is characterized as "imbecile" and "paralyzing the efforts of hotel keepers to attract business."

WOMAN 'ROBIN HOOD' SENTENCED BY COURT

BUDAPEST, July 5.—If Robin Hood reappeared on earth today he would be sent to a sanitarium.

This Robin Hood was a girl. Daughter of a wealthy family impoverished by war, she stole from the rich and gave to the poor. They called her "Angel of the Slums."

Under various names, she obtained employment as servant in the homes of rich but stingy families. There she filched valuables, sold them and gave the proceeds to needy friends.

"My conscience was numbed by the misery I saw," she told the Magistrate, who committed her to an institution for nervous cases.

LIQUOR SHIPMENTS BARRED FROM YUKON

VICTORIA, B. C., July 5.—(U. P.)—Canadian officials are not sure what they will do about the United States government's embargo on liquor shipments into Yukon territory and the Atlin Riding of British Columbia.

The United States embargo went into effect June 15, just after a trainload of wet goods went into the restricted territory. In substance, Uncle Sam has forbidden any more liquor to be sent through the Alaskan approach to any territory whatsoever. As this approach, via Skagway and the White Pass and Yukon railway, is the only route by which supplies can be brought into Yukon territory and Atlin Riding, men who are accustomed to their highballs and are likely to be subjected to an enforced dry spell.

The United States supreme court was responsible for the ruling stopping shipments through United States territory of liquor in transit from one country to another. The Canadian government is officially interested because there are government stores in the Atlin Riding which must of necessity be deprived of this branch of merchandise because of the ruling. Attorney General Munson has communicated with the federal government to see what can be done about it.

The trainload of liquor which went through last was shipped from Vancouver February 18 by steamer and reached Skagway and its destination just a few minutes before midnight June 15, when the bars were put up. The retail value of the liquor was well over $70,000 and was consigned to government vendors in Yukon Territory and Atlin Riding.

ONE-POUND BABY BORN

MANFIELD, Ohio, July 5.—Although weighing only one pound and seven ounces, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gages, born this month, was normally developed at birth.

Attending physicians, pointed out that, ordinarily, a babe of such diminutive proportions would have been placed in an incubator for treatment, said it is expected that tiny Miss Gages will progress as a normal child.

HAWAIIAN WOMEN SMOKE MILLIONS OF CIGARETTES

HONOLULU, T. H., July 5.—Honolulu women consume 265,000 packages of cigarettes yearly. It is estimated by tobacco dealers of the city, who place an approximation of 7,000,000 on the actual number of "pills" smoked by the gentler sex during the twelve-month.

These figures are said by the retail tobacco merchants to represent a heavy increase in cigarette smoking on the part of Honolulu women during the past year, although definite figures on previous years are not available.

The smoking habit among women in the islands is said by those who are in a position to make direct observations to be general among all classes and ages, although it is most prevalent among the younger women, particularly those who have no families and no definite occupation.

CACHE OF MONEY FOUND ON DROWNED MAN'S BODY

SOUTH ACTON, July 5.—While making a second examination of a body of an unidentified man found dead on the Boston and Maine tracks at the West street crossing recently, Medical Examiner H. H. Bailey, of Concord, noticed a swelling just above the ankle on the left leg. After considerable investigation the "swelling" proved to be flesh-colored gutta percha, and concealed under the rubber was $275 in new bills. The cache was put together so cunningly that one would think it just a puffing of the skin, and the hiding place was waterproof, so that even while bathing the money would have his money with him at all times unobserved by others.
