BOOTH AND BARRATT MAY LEAVE COMMISSION
That R. A. Booth and William Barratt will both resign from the state highway commission in the near future is predicted in a story in the Portland Oregonian today. The story credits Mr. Booth with intending to quit for private business reasons and Mr. Barratt as intending to resign because he is moving to Portland and thus out of the district.

The report has set in conversation growing with reference to the probable successor to Mr. Barratt if he retires from the board. Many are anxious to see a Umatilla county man named upon the highway commission and several names are being suggested.

LOCAL UNION MAN ADDRESSED CONVENTION
BREMERTON, Wash., July 12.—(A. P.)—Alec Manning of Pendleton, representing the Oregon State Federation of Labor, addressed the convention of the Washington State Federation of Labor yesterday and urged cooperation between the trades unions of the two states in national politics.

Manning is attending the meeting as the fraternal delegate of the Oregon Federation of Labor.

COAL WORKERS ASK CHANGE IN PLAN
WASHINGTON, July 12.—(A. P.)—The United Mine Workers' officials after a conference today with Secretary of Labor Davis, decided to seek a conference with President Harding to request Harding to modify his strike settlement plan to guarantee that any decision by the proposed arbitration commission shall be binding on all operators in the country.

WIFIE LIKES SNAKES; HUBBY GETS DIVORCE
AKRON, Ohio, July 12.—Declaring that "no man should be required to live with a snake charmer if it is not agreeable to him," Common Pleas Judge H. C. Spicer issued a decree granting the request of Walter Albright, of Akron, for a divorce from Rachel Albright, now of Saint Clairsville. The wedding took place in April, 1918.

"That's enough," said Judge Spicer, picking up his pen to sign the decree, when a witness testified that Mrs. Albright "had short skirts around her knees and long snakes around her neck" when she emerged from a snake pit at a recreation park here in 1915 while her husband was serving in the army.

PEAK OF RADIO CRAZE PASSED SAY DEALERS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—(U. P.)—The radio craze is undergoing the same changes in public opinion that the wireless underwent, according to professionals.

Dealers report that the peak of the radio craze has passed. Where, three months ago, dealers were unable to fill orders for radio supplies and parts, they are now soliciting trade.

A great many "hobby riders" bought radio sets, and soon tired of them. Others, without any idea of what it was all about, bought sets and were unable to operate them successfully for lack of knowledge.

But, according to broadcasting stations, the real radio fans are sticking with the guns. They are constantly improving their sets, and are offering many valuable suggestions.

Wireless went through the same stage. There was a time when almost every boy tried his hand at wireless. That craze passed, but the real fans stuck to it, until wireless became one of the most highly specialized and scientific indoor sports.

Radio professionals believe, will undergo the same change, once the "ten minute enthusiasts" are weeded out. Better and more valuable programs can be given and many new uses for the radiophone found.

The radio is certainly here to stay. It is particularly valuable in rural communities, where it furnishes the easiest and cheapest form of entertainment known. At the same time, it is believed that the educational and intellectual advantages of radio will be developed to a much higher degree than at present.

Producers are glad that the facilities are dropping out, although many radio supply stores miss their patronage. But any such craze is sure to have a rebound, and professionals are glad that it has come as quickly as it has. It enables a readjustment of the sport and science on a sounder basis.

WOMAN CLAD IN PRECIOUS STONES

PARIS, (By mail to United Press.)—"Rings on her fingers, bells on her toes," have nothing at all on the garb worn by Madame Alexidine Lifshopz when the French customs house officials at Forbach, on the Franco-German frontier, arrested her the other day on a charge of gem smuggling.

Mme. Lifshopz, who is of Polish origin and a resident of Paris, was on her way back to the French capital from Mannheim. When she left the train at the frontier station for the baggage examination, she unfortunately for her, left behind a minicoin in the pockets of which the customs men found several packages of pearls. They pursued their investigation to the point of forcing the traveler to submit to a personal examination by a female inspector.

When Mme. Lifshopz's outer garments were discarded, the inspector's astonished gaze fell upon a woman clothed in precious stones. Around her waist were strings of pearls. Slung under her arms were packages of uncut diamonds. Around her neck, hitherto hidden by a high necked gown, were fourteen strings of pearls. A pendant consisting of sixteen diamonds, added a certain lustre to her attire.

She had, moreover, seventy-two diamond stud earrings and half a dozen bracelets, besides scores of necklaces, knick-knacks of all sorts in gold and silver.

HOME DEMONSTRATION IDEAS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Simplicity

Simplicity is the keynote of all art, and nowhere, perhaps, does it play such a prominent place as in the decorating of our homes.

Nearly all the trouble with the decorating of our homes is that we crowd too much into a small space. We have not learned how to eliminate and so we go on and on, adding all sorts of things to our rooms until we begin to think in terms of the furnishings rather than in terms of the room itself.

Just a word about hanging pictures—if the picture is large—use two hooks and two cords, this does away with the bad lines of the triangle which are formed where one hook is used.

If the picture is small it is much better to hang them to that the push pins or small hooks are concealed at the back of the picture.

One or two pictures of good subjects in a room give an atmosphere of rest and quiet.

An uncomfortable feature in a great many homes is the treatment of the mantle. No one is especially interested in unframed photographs, in a miscellaneous arrangement of odds and ends. Try placing a vase or candle stick at either end and some object of interest in the center—a clock for example. Such an arrangement gives a simple and well balanced effect.—Y. D.

Huge Concrete Towers Fight Submarines

By CHAS. McCANN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
LONDON, July 12.—(U. P.)—Mystery surrounding the huge concrete towers built by the admiralty just before the armistice was cleared up when Lieutenant Commander Kenworthy, during debate at the commons, explained that they were new anti-submarine weapons.

Towards the end of the war the admiralty completed two tremendous concrete structures, much like disportionate pill-boxes, weighing thousands of tons, at channel ports. Ten other towers were under construction when the armistice was signed. Work was slowed on them, but finishing touches were put upon the completed towers.

When the excitement of the war had died down, the government was frequently questioned as to the proposed use of the towers. It was evident that they were to be sunk on the bottom of rivers or in shoals at sea.

The government consistently refused to say what they were for even after one of them had been improvised as a lighthouse and the other, at Shoreham, Sussex, after attracting thousands of visitors, remained in the harbor unoccupied.

During a debate on admiralty appropriations in Commons, Lieutenant Commander Kenworthy argued that the remaining tower be towed to sea and sunk. "Incidentally," he explained their use.

During the submarine campaign, it was vitally necessary to keep open the Straits of Dover, the main channel for troops and munitions from England to France. The admiralty invented the towers to combat the submarines. They were to be towed to sandbanks along the straits and sunk. They would have been occupied by the anti-submarine crews, where, reinforced by steel, they would have become island forts.

The towers, the admiralty thought, would provide much more efficient weapons than patrol boats, which were forced to seek shelter during rough weather. On the towers would have been mounted searchlights and guns, which would have swept the channel for mines around.

In addition, there would have been apparatus for the detection of submerged submarines by sound, there would have been "keys" for exploding minifields through which the passage of submarines was suspected or established.

Nine hundred thousand baby trout had reached the fingerling stage at the fish hatchery being maintained by the state at Bingham Springs in Umatilla county.

AFTER BABY WAS BORN

Many Mothers Left in Weakened Condition

Many, many letters similar to the following recommend the Vegetable Compound as a wonderful medicine for bringing the mother back to normal health and strength.

It is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs and can be taken in safety by a nursing mother.

Thousands of mothers who have regained their strength by taking it are its best recommendation. Very likely you know some. Why not take it yourself?

Will Gladly Answer Questions
Olney, Ill.—"For over a year after my boy was born I was troubled with weakness of the female organs. Also my stomach would bloat up and I had heartburn, headache, backache, and simply could not do anything. I saw your 'ad.' in the papers and read what your Vegetable Compound did for others, so gave it a trial. After the first few doses I could tell a change. (Some might think this impossible, but it is true.) I took two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and felt so fine that I neglected to take any more for about a year. This last winter I had pains again so I have been taking it to relieve them. I tell everyone I hear complaining of female troubles that it is grand. If any woman asks me questions about the medicine I will gladly tell her what I know."—Mrs. CHARLES VAUGHN, Olney, Ill.

Baltimore, Md.—"I first used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for general weakness following the birth of my first child. Later on the advice of my mother I used it for dull pain in the small of my back and for a bearing-down feeling. These pains had an effect on me to such an extent that very often I was unable to stand on my feet to do my household work, and at times I was compelled to lie down for short periods. I found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound very helpful and recommend it highly."—Mrs. LORETTA B. SIMONS, 645 S. Belmont Ave., Baltimore, Md.

"Cannot Thank You Enough"
Allentown, Pa.—"After my last baby was born I lost weight and was in a very run-down condition. After taking the second bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to gain strength and flesh. In the past four months I have done all my own housework and do an extra wash besides. I do not feel at all like I used to and I cannot thank you enough for my health. My friends ask me what I am doing and I recommend your medicine."—Mrs. Wm. STECKEL, 241 Elliger St., Allentown, Pa.
