

IN PARLIAMENT LONG, MAKES NO SPEECHES

LONDON, July 21.—Attention, members of the Congress of the United States!

This is the tale of a man from whose book many members of the Congress of the United States might take a leaf and bring joy to the American public.

John Hope has been a member of the British House of Commons for twenty-two years and has not yet made his maiden speech.

Hope is a regular attendant at the House of Commons and has the rare record of having won out in seven contested elections, in which he has fought every political party.

"Why don't I speak in the House?" echoed Hope when he was questioned. "Well, I have found that I can do more by not talking."

"When I entered the House first of all I had no idea of never making a speech."

"But time went on, and the maiden-speech was still undelivered—although I have been tempted to do it more than once, and friends have urged me to break the record—and now I am afraid it will never be delivered."

Hope's reluctance to speak is not because of any inability to do so, for he can orate effectively. He is not shy. When he wants anything he goes directly to the responsible Minister of the Cabinet and generally gets what he wants, because he is one man who has never attempted to browbeat the Cabinetiers across the chambers of the House of Commons.

Hope bids fair to keep his word and be the one speechless member of the House of Commons, and if he does so he will take away the record created by William Gerard Hamilton, who in the eighteenth century gained for himself the name of "Single Speech Hamilton," because he is supposed to have never made but one speech in Commons. In the dim, distant past it is reported there was a member of Commons who never opened his lips in the House except on one occasion, and then it was to ask that a window be closed.

This habit of oratorical self-restraint on the part of Hope is looked upon as most commendable, particularly from the House Press Gallery. Undoubtedly there are many in America who would welcome a similar self-restraint in some of the intemperate orators of the Congress of the United States.

TRUE MENTAL CONDITION PUZZLE TO ALIENISTS

LONDON, July 21.—(C. N. S.)—Is Roland True insane?

This question is still causing a sensation in London, although the storm against the reprieve for this convicted murderer, son of a titled lady, has somewhat subsided.

True, who cut a wide swath in America and who married an American girl and created wide publicity for himself by his escapades in Houston, Texas; Buffalo, N. Y.; San Francisco and other cities, is lingering in the Broadmoor Asylum for the Insane at present, but there is no assurance that he will remain there.

Home Secretary Short has made the following statement: "If True became sane tomorrow he would go back to prison, and there would be nothing to prevent his being hanged."

In view of this statement all London is wondering whether True may yet be declared sane and sent to the gallows for the murder of Olive Young.

True's own commentaries on his mental condition are causing something of a sensation. After he was sentenced to death True wrote a series of letters to a dancer in one of the London theaters, which have just been made public.

"It has taken this trial of mine to show me just how crazy my friends think I am," True wrote. "After all those witnesses had reared up on their hind legs and stated in no uncertain manner just what they thought his evidence of five doctors, I am almost convinced myself."

True has disclosed to his dancer friend that he has written a warning against women for his infant son. "In case things do go bad with me, and they eventually 'drop' me, I'm leaving a kind of essay on 'Women' to be read by my son when he attains the age of sixteen," True wrote. "One thing I insist upon is that before he thinks of marrying (this is perhaps badly stated, as if he stops to think he will never marry) he must go and live among the mules for at least two years. The experience thus gained will give him a slight, very slight, insight into the workings of a woman's mind."

After this tirade the dancing girl wrote to True and informed him that he was too stern in his judgment of women, to which True replied: "You ask me not to be so hard on women. You must admit I have just cause to and to rub matters in. Now I'm to get my neck elongated for something somebody else did to a woman."

"Lass, I swear I am innocent, but as you may or may not know, we could not find my chief witness, who could have proved an alibi. "Your sex can be put into two classes—bad and damned bad. It's no use talking, they are too clever for we poor mutts."

True's anxiety for his son is shown in a letter in which he wrote: "The hardest part of all this affair will not be getting hanged—that's over in a minute—but saying good-by to my wonderful wee son. I hope God makes him a far, far better man than what his father was, and if he

Pimples Keep Young Men Down!

They Make Women, Too, a Puzzle! How S. S. S. Stops Skin Eruptions Positively.

Pimples and skin eruptions have a price—you pay for every pustule, black-head and pimple on your face. Pimples produce prejudice and prevent prosperity. Your heart may be gold, but who wants to kiss eruptions? Pimples men don't look like the owners of anything. Pimples women, too, are puzzles, with no prospects and no power. Young men and women, here's the positive way out. Physics and medicine will fail. What you need is a scientific blood-cleanser. S. S. S. of blood impurities. You can prove this in a short time. S. S. S. has been used on a jury of millions of people just like yourself. It is considered one of the most powerful vegetable blood-purifiers and flesh-builders in existence. That's why you hear of so many underweight people putting on lost flesh in a hurry, why you hear of so many rheumatism being freed from this S. S. S. and see your face clear and your skin get ruddier, your flesh firmer. It will give you a boost in your career. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size is the more economical.

can grow up with Kipling's poem, 'If' as his guide and live fairly close to that, then I don't need worry in my grave." London is pursuing these letters and querying: "Is Ronald True insane?"

REPORTED DEAD, LIVES.

KALISPEL, Mont., July 19.—(A. P.)—KALISPEL, Mont., July 21.—(A. P.)—Schak, former Kalispell boy now attending the University of Montana as a vocational student has again been notified by the government that Al is dead. However, Al denies it, but is wondering as to whether or not he is going to receive the insurance that he is now carrying with the government. Al is at present busy preparing a flowery obituary for use in case he is unable to prove that he is innocent of the government's charge of being a dead one. This is the second time that the government has accused Schak of being officially dead. His captain reported him killed in action in the Tule sector, but Al attending the University of Montana says the captain was slightly wrong.

MISSOURI STATE POLICE AGITATION IS STARTED

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 21.—(C. N. S.)—Agitation has been started in this city for the creation of a state police in Missouri to be equipped with motorcycles, automobiles, aeroplanes and horses. The provision for such a Missouri police will be made in a bill to be introduced in the next session of the legislature, which convenes in January, 1923.

Alphens Stewart, together with several other residents of St. Louis, is organizing a committee to introduce and advance the bill. Stewart pointed out that there are ten states in the Union that have a state police. They are: Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, West Virginia, Massachusetts, Michigan, Tennessee, Texas, Colorado and Connecticut.

Several other states, he says, have semi-state organizations, but they are not patterned after the Pennsylvania and have very small forces. These include Delaware, Nevada, Idaho, Maryland and Washington.

The good roads system and high-powered automobiles, Stewart says, make it almost an impossibility to combat the work of the crooks. With state police all roads could be placed under surveillance to cut off escaping criminals.

COLORADO CITIZENS TO CELEBRATE GOLD DAYS

IDAHO SPRINGS, Colo., July 21.—(C. N. S.)—Idaho Springs, nesting amid some of the highest peaks in the Colorado Rockies, will celebrate the "days of '59" early in September, in observance of the discovery of gold in Colorado.

For three days—September 2, 3 and 4—natives and hundreds of visitors will witness scenes familiar to the "wild and woolly West" of more than half a century ago, when the red shirt and high boots were in vogue, and "six shooters" swung from the belt of every good citizen during the early rush for gold in the Crooked Creek.

With the challenge of Mayor Morrison that "I can grow 'em faster than anybody in creation" already flung to the world, many old-timers are beginning to grow a crop of whiskers, and a suitable prize will be awarded the best bursite display on September 2.

The "hanging tree," where of-time lynchings were held, will be fenced off, and the new generation will get a glimpse of how justice was meted out by frontier vigilantes—with effigies for victims in the re-enslavement.

A feature of the celebration will be an underground race, 200 feet below the earth's surface, through gold mines that have long since been worked to exhaustion.

Prizes of real gold—to be weighed out in the precious yellow dust itself—will be awarded winners in the numerous races and contests to be held during the three-day event.

In 1859 George A. Jackson "prospected" an Idaho creek, at a spot less than a quarter of a mile from what is now the main thoroughfare of Idaho Springs, and made the first discovery of gold in the Centennial state. Within a week the struggling little frontier town was alive with excited prospectors, gold hunters and fortune seekers. News of the discovery spread rapidly, and "prairie schooners" freighted with whole families came battling into the hills surrounding Idaho Springs. Great fortunes in gold were wrung from the mountains in this vicinity during the next half century, and Idaho Springs is going to renew the events of those stirring times in its celebration of the "days of '59."

MYSTERIOUS 'KILLER' APPEARS IN FLORIDA

MILLVILLE, Fla., July 21.—People in this section have long been in almost nightly fear of the prowling of some animal, said to be a panther, which makes nocturnal raids on pigsties, goatpens and now is attacking chicken roosts. One family reports the loss of the carcasses of several chickens, and the carcasses having been strewn generally over the landscape after the unidentified animal had evidently satiated his appetite. This has been heard to squeal at night, and that is the last of them.

Persons who have tried to get within range of the animal have failed so far, and some who have caught sight of the beast describe it as one of varying hues. Some say it is black, others tawny, while fishermen declare it is spotted.

Are You the Man Who "Never Reads Advertisements"?

Some men, who are neither blind nor illiterate, claim sincerely that they "never read advertisements."

Yet, if you could investigate, in each case you would find that the man who "never reads advertisements" used an advertised tooth paste or shaving cream or soap. If he owns an automobile it will be an advertised car. If you ask his opinion of any automobile he will reply in words that might have been lifted bodily from an advertisement of that automobile.

Advertising has formed his opinions to a great degree.

He may have received his information through others who obtained their knowledge from advertising. But it is a fact that no man can escape the effect of advertising even if he does say he "never reads advertisements."

Not one of us ever reasoned out entirely from his own mind that the earth is round. If we had not read it or heard it we would never have known it.

In these days of good, truthful, helpful advertising to say, "I never read advertisements" is merely your way of saying, "I don't read all advertisements."
