MISS RUGG WEDS.

The marriage of Miss Grace Rugg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Rugg, and Harold Gray, of Klamath Falls, was solemnized in Portland on Sunday, according to word received by Pendleton friends.

The ceremony took place at the home of Mrs. W. H. Howe, aunt of the bride. Mrs. Rugg, mother of the bride, was among the guests. Mrs. Gray is a sister of Mrs. James Cleary (Lavelle Bishop) whose marriage was a recent event.

The bride wore a lovely wedding gown of white crepe de chine, with full length tulle veil. She carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses. The rooms of the Howe home were most attractively decorated in roses, snapdragons and gladioli, and the marriage vows were exchanged beneath a bell of lavender and white satin. Miss Maudie Barnes, sorority sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Francis Jacobberger of Portland, fraternity brother of Mr. Gray, was best man. Following the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served. Mrs. Rugg cut tea and Mrs. Thomas Benson, an aunt of the bride, poured.

Mrs. Gray, who is the daughter of a pioneer family, is a charming girl. She attended high school here and later University of Oregon, where she was a member of Chi Omega, women's fraternity. Mr. Gray also attended University of Oregon and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta. He is in business in Klamath Falls, where the couple will make their home after a motor trip to Crater Lake.

RAT BITTEN BY RATTLER KILLS IT AND LIVES

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Charles Johnson, a farmer, living south of Clyde, caught a rattlesnake and housed it in a box. He had planned to bring the snake to Rochester and turn it over to Pete Gruber, better known as "Rattlesnake Pete."

A rat of enormous size ventured into one of Johnson's steel traps. The rodent was so large that he could not enter the trap. The springs held him by his front legs.

Astonished at the size of the rat, Farmer Johnson thought a little sport would be appreciated. Inviting several farmer friends, Johnson managed to drop the rat into a potato pit and then stoop the box holding the rattler over it. The snake soon fell into the pit and coiled up in a corner. It was expected that the snake would make short work of the rat.

For a few minutes nothing happened, both snake and rat taking opposite corners and eyeing each other very carefully. Suddenly the snake began to attack. With lightning swiftness it shot out its head, caught the rat unaware and sank its fangs in the animal's nose. The rat squealed with pain and rage and actually tore itself loose in a desperate struggle in which both rat and rattler rolled over the floor of the pit.

Next the rat sprang at the snake. As the snake squirmed the rat leaped into the air and caught the snake back of its head, tearing the flesh and inflicting a deep wound with its teeth. The energy of the rat's attack apparently puzzled the snake, which was bitten time and again. Finally the rat secured a firm hold on the snake directly under its head and hung on until the serpent was fairly choked to death.

The farmers covered the pit with cordwood and left rat and dead snake alone overnight. The rat was found to be alive and active in the morning. Much surprise was expressed that the rat was alive, as it was believed the snake's poison would have ended the rat's life in the night. Johnson decided that the rat had earned a right to live. Accordingly the rodent was enticed into a box containing a quantity of dry bread and cheese. From the farm it was carried to the Montezuma swamp, a mile away, and given its liberty.

WALLA WALLA EXPECTS 600 CARS OF ONIONS

Onions grown in the Walla Walla section of Washington are reputed locally to have been developed from Spanish seed, according to a federal report. They are sometimes termed "French" onions or "Washington Yellow Globe," but since only one kind is raised in the immediate vicinity of Walla Walla they are called commercially "Walla Walla Yellow Globe." They are usually planted in the fall and thinned out in the spring for green onions. Occasionally "Prizetakers" are grown in the Walla Walla district, but they, too, can be described as yellow globe onions.

The Walla Walla crop will amount this year to about 600 cars, according to the district horticultural inspector, the crop having been cut in half by blights and Fusarium decay, the latter disease being especially bad in some fields. Onions are customarily pulled in that section while the tops are still green. They are sacked without curing, roots intact, though they are allowed to remain in the field in tassels a few hours for the cut neck to dry over.

The onions thus far have been generally very firm, although the dry scales easily fall off. Most of the stock is bright, the remainder being fairly-bright. Many of the Walla Walla onions are not of particularly attractive shape, resembling "bottle necks." However, this peculiarity does not affect the grade, because they are northern-grown onions.

MAN DIES AFTER FALL IN 'DEVIL'S TEA KETTLE'

KLAMATH FALLS, Aug. 22.—(A. P.)—Frank Albert, 39, died last night from scalds received when he fell into the "Devil's Tea Kettle," hot springs here yesterday. He lost his footing while filling a barrel for household use and plunged into the spring, the temperature of which is 127 degrees. He was unable to climb the slippery bank. Albert was in the water several minutes before his screams brought assistance.
