PRINCE OF WALES TO STUDY SOCIETY

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Putting aside foreign tours for the time being, the Prince of Wales will devote the year 1923 to personal investigation of England's social and industrial problems. To achieve this he will make tours to many of the largest cities and manufacturing districts. His social engagements will be mainly fitted in with these trips. For instance, when he goes to stay with Lord Derby at Knowsley Hall next March in order to see the race for the Grand National, the visit will be so arranged that he will be able to inspect new dock extensions and other improvements at Liverpool and also the present circumstances of the City of Manchester. Already he has received numerous invitations from towns throughout Britain to call and make their acquaintance, and so far as he is able he will do so.

While on his world cruise the Prince carefully studied an extensive library of books devoted to social conditions and reforms, and he intends to obtain further enlightenment by attending the weekly meetings of the London County Council, the body which is responsible for the welfare of the eight million inhabitants of Greater London.

The period until Christmas, 1922, will be devoted to the Prince's holiday, on which the physicians have been assisting for the past three years. He will spend most of this time hunting and has taken Easton Grey House, Malmesbury, for six months, where he CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 10.—The call of the piskin brought 123 ambitious students to the stadium in answer to Harvard's 1922 request for football candidates.

Other candidates, including the veterans George Owen and Winnie Churchill, are expected to be on hand shortly.

Coach Bob Fisher and his aids are having a busy time looking over the candidates, of which there are approximately ten for each position.
