iday, the Thirteenth.

Today is one popularly supposed to unlucky, the date being Friday, the irteenth. It is the second time in 22 that the combination occurs, the st having been January 13. The next Friday which falls on the thirteenth will be in April, 1923.

Inspect Highway Work

Members of the county court and the county roadmaster left this morning for a trip over the Old Oregon Trail past Cabbage Hill. Construction work is being pushed with all speed possible in an effort to get as much work done as the good weather will permit.

Drought Prevents Seeding

Seeding operations in the Nolin, Yokum and Echo sections of the county have largely been suspended during the past few days, and the farmers are waiting for a rain before they put the rest of the crop in, according to Fred Bennion. North and east of Pendleton the greater part of seeding has already been completed. Farmers from all sections of the wheat belt are very anxious to have a good shower.

Funeral Will Be Held

The funeral of the late Henry J. Rosenberg will be held at the Folsom Chapel, at 3 p. m. on Saturday. Rev. C. L. Wuest of the Lutheran Church, will conduct the services. The pall bearers will be Dale Phillips, Frank Sullivan, Spence Bentley, Lee Caldwell Henry Srtuve and James Hill. Mr. Rosenberg died on Wednesday, his thirty-eighth Birthday. Mrs. Rosenberg survives her husband as do six children; Henrietta age thirteen, Glen, age eleven, Robert, age 10, Harold, age 7, Bernadine, age 5 and Joy a two months' old baby. Herman Rosenberg, a brother survives and three sisters, Mrs. J. J. Woodeage, Mrs. Clyde McKay and Mrs. Claud Saunders are living. The first three are living in Pendleton and were at the old family home yesterday afternoon and Mrs. Saunders of Walla Walla will come for the funeral.

Milton Couple Marry.

Harold H. Garriott, manager of the Western Union office at Milton, and Truly L. Irons, also a resident of Milton, were joined in wedlock Thursday afternoon by Justice Joe H. Parkes. The ring ceremony was used. Only a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony.

Fowler In Try-Outs

Vernon Fowler who is attending Brookline high school, Brookline, Massachusetts, hopes to be a member of the football team. Of the 100 who first entered the try-outs, he has been retained in a squad of 30 students. He is making his home with his brother, Ned Fowler.

Adds Card Room.

The Club cigar store has added a card room to its present business. Stairs have been built connecting the ground floor with the basement. Six card tables have been placed in the room which is newly finished. The new room will be opened Saturday evening by the management of the store.

Get Building Permits.

Permits to build have been issued at the office of the city recorder to B. F. Dupuis and J. S. Beckwith. The former will change a dwelling and fit it into apartments at a cost of $600. The property is at 509 State street. Mr. Beckwith will build a concrete garage at 1401 East Court street, at an estimated cost of $400.

To Charge Fee.

Under the new city building code adopted by the council Wednesday night a fee will be charged for building permits in the future. Heretofore permits have been issued free of charge. Another change made is that in the future it will be necessary for the builder to submit plans and specifications of the structure which is to be constructed before the permit can be issued.

Likes Pendleton Hospitality

That it is something of a marvel to him how Pendleton can take care of so many people during the Round-Up and make all of them feel at home and comfortable is the opinion of John Speed Smith who has written a letter of appreciation for the courtesies extended to him and Mrs. Smith during their visit here. Mr. Smith is chief naturalization examiner of the Northwest and he was here to participate in the naturalization day exercises held on Wednesday before the Round-Up.

To Work for Closing.

A special committee of merchants who are members of the Pendleton Commercial association started working this afternoon to make it unanimous among business houses to close their places next Friday afternoon, October 20, so that they and their employes may see the Oregon Whitman football game. A majority of the business houses have already expressed a willingness to close between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock, and the committee expects Main street to be a quiet place while the "Battle of the Century" is being fought on Round-Up field. The committee is headed by Carl Cooley and includes Willard Bond, George Ferguson, Carl Hopf and W. A. Rhodes.

THE MARITZA RIVER A SECOND RHINE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13.—(U. P.)—"The Maritza River, the boundary of the European territory which the victorious Turks demanded as soon as they drove the Greeks from Asia Minor, is, like the Rhine, between France and Germany, a symbol and one of the contention among Bulger, Greek and Turk," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society.

"Each of these three peoples has claimed the Maritza Valley as belonging to it on ethnic grounds," continues the bulletin, "and such is the racial mix-up in Thrace and the portion of Macedonia which adjoins it, that each has at least some excuse for its claims. Thrace—and indeed all of Rumania or Rumili—as the Turks called the portions of Europe which their swords conquered—has for five hundred years been in the anomalous condition of being Turkish territory, yet more Christian than Mohammedan, more alien than Turk. Moreover, the non-Turks non-Mohammedans were more intelligent and more industrious than the Moslems, a fact which has heightened the non-Turkish aspect of the country in spite of the burden of heavy taxation, persecution and massacre, which the non-Turks have had placed on their shoulders.

"More or less unconsciously the Turks seem, throughout their tenure of half a millennium in Europe, to have considered themselves engaged in a military occupation. In the trade and industry of the towns and cities they did not and could not compete with the Greeks and Jews and Armenians; and in the agricultural pursuits of the country they were equally outclassed by the Bulgars and Vlachs and the occasional Greeks who are farmers.

"Many of the Turks confined their activities to the cities where they were rulers or soldiers. Those who led the lives of peasants never wholly shook off their nomadism. They were less efficient than their despised Christian neighbors, a fact which led to many a pillaging and massacring expedition; for the Moslems, however humble their station, were armed, while the Christians were not.

A Dreary Plain

"Eastern Thrace between the Straits and the Maritza River is of little value agriculturally. It is an unattractive, dreary, monotonous plain with here and there swampy depressions. Large areas of the territory are untilled and in summer they give the country the appearance of a desert. When the Bulgarians finally controlled the region after the Balkan war of 1912-13, trekked to Asia Minor; and under the Greek control of the past few years that movement has continued. As a result the Thrace of today is even more strikingly non-Turkish than in the past.

"On the Maritza and in Thrace, barely 25 miles from the present Bulgarian border, is Adrianople, second city of old European Turkey, and a strong sentimental reason for the Turk's desire once more to possess Thrace. Thracian land was the first in Europe to fall under Turkish sway, and while Constantinople still remained Byzantine, Adrianople was the Ottoman capital. From there they crushed the Serbians, and finally, in 1453, seized the great city on the Straits. There, though in ruins, is the first European palace of the Sultans and the grave of the first Sultan, Murad.

"Formerly Adrianople was a thriving center of trade. But as the European portion of the Ottoman Empire dwindled, and Bucharest, Athens, Belgrade and Sofia, released from Turkish control, grew from dingy mud villages to bustling towns, Adrianople lost ground. The city still contains about 50,000 inhabitants, however, with the Greeks, Bulgars, Jews and other non-Moslem peoples greatly outnumbering the Moslems."

WOMEN AND MEDICINE

In Europe, years ago, a woman named Hildegrade wrote a notable book on medicinal plants. In those days the men were too busy bothering about dogmas of religion and medicine, and the study of herbs was thought beneath their notice.

It was the women, however, who mostly conducted the hospitals and cared for the sick, and thus they learned much of great value. They let the men fight out the question of theories.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, prepared almost fifty years ago by a woman, Lyria E. Pinkham, did then and does now, relieve the ailments peculiar to women. It is a vegetable compound and of great value for this purpose. This is proven day after day, and in your own neighborhood, by grateful women who have used it.
