DAILY EAST OREGONIAN, PENDLETON, OREGON, FRIDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 13, 1922.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(U. P.)—Cincinnati and Detroit were the two big surprises of the 1922 baseball season. None of the dopsters figured them to be in the money.

The Reds and the Tigers not only finished well up in the race, but with little more of the breaks they might have won the pennants.

Cincinnati got away to a very bad start, and doubtless was handicapped by the sore arm which kept Donohue out of the box for a long time.

Detroit's hardest blow was the injury to Johnson, Pacific Coast pitcher, who was expected to be a big winner with the club.

Pat Moran's work in Philadelphia and with the 1919 Reds earned for him the title of "Miracle Man" and he is still living up to it.

The boss of the Reds is one of the greatest builders in the game and a shrewd handler of pitchers.

He has entirely remodeled the Reds and he is now in possession of a young team that ought to be one of the chief contenders for the 1923 pennant.

The trade by which the Reds got rid of Heinie Groh provided the means of assembling a new team that rushed up and grabbed second money in the last weeks of the race.

For Groh, an aging infielder who was one of the season's best busters with the Giants, the Reds got George Barras, a great outfielder and enough money to buy Pinedo, one of the best third basemen in the league, Raynovey Keck, Coach and Harper and had about $30,000 left over.

This is what might be called A deal.

If there is any truth in the report that the Red Sox traded, Derrill Pratt and "Rip" Collins to the Detroit Tigers, Cobb will have a greatly improved ball club for the next pennant race.

Pratt is a good second baseman and the Tigers need one, while "Rip" Collins, if he would settle down to serious work, ought to be a big winning pitcher.

In looking for surprises in the past season, the Philadelphia clubs must not be overlooked.

Both the Athletics and the Phillies missed the cellar for the first time in several years. Both Boston clubs crowded them out and they look just as natural in the grave.

St. Louis was a disappointment in the National League race. The Cards were doped last winter to furnish the biggest opposition for the Giants but they broke in the late season and did well to finish in a tie for third place.

Washington failed also to live up to pre-season expectations largely on account of the slump that Roger Beck, pitcher, fell into. Beck left the Yanks with the ambition of becoming the manager of the Senators and he didn't seem to be much interested in his work when he failed to find the job.

Bill McKechnie's work in getting the discordant elements of the Pittsburgh Pirates straightened out made him one of the big glories of the season. He had been at the head of the club from the start of the season, the Pirates ought have won the pennant.

They succeeded to be the best team in the National League on their last eastern trip.

New York is a core team place to make ball clubs however. Every team takes its very best to beat the champions and every player does his utmost to play successfully in New York, where the fans are very generous. Some believe, however, that the money clubs only about twenty per cent better than normal at the Polo grounds.

BOXING IN BERLIN.

Tommy Smith, featherweight champion of New York, who has fought Jack Sharkey, Danny Frazier and Lou Levy, will have charges of the postcard side.
