PENDLETON MAN DROWNS

thought were cries of distress about 4 o'clock in the afternoon but that they were not able to locate the source of the cries.

Ice Was Rotten
Coutts had placed his empty gun and one duck on the ice near a clump of brush. Right near where the gun was, however, the ice was plainly thin and rotten, so his tracks showed that he had circled back down the river to where the ice was stronger and had then worked his way up probably to get a duck which he had shot. In coming back to the river bank he failed to allow enough for the thin ice and walked right on to it. Weighted down by the bulk of his heavy boots, jacket and shells, he was pulled into the deep water and drowned.

"If he had come back to the bank by a course just 20 feet farther down the river the ice would have held his weight, and he would not have gone through," one of his hunting companions said today.

Inquest to be Held.
The body was returned to Pendleton this afternoon about 2 o'clock, and arrangements were immediately begun to hold an inquest this afternoon into the cause of the death. The inquest will be conducted by J. T. Brown, county coroner, at Brown & Brady's Funeral Home.

Funeral arrangements had not been made at press time. The deceased is survived by his widow, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Coutts, and a sister, Mrs. Edgar F. Averill, all residents of Pendleton.

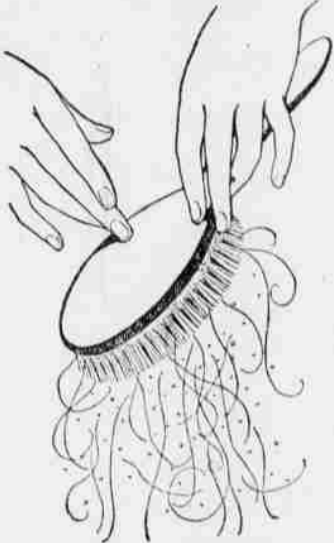

Coutts was a great hunter and fisher and had many warm friends among sportsmen in the county on account of his courage.

A raft was built this morning by Hermiston men and some Pendleton men and this was used in getting Coutts out of the water. The men worked out where the ice had broken, which was 60 feet from the shore. Trawl poles were used.

Made Stubborn Fight.
That Coutts made a stubborn fight for his life was the evidence found by the searchers. He went down in the middle of the stream. A powerful swimmer, he had kicked off both of his heavy rubber boots and managed to slip out of his heavy hunting jacket. Then he started trying to pull himself up on the ice, but it broke repeatedly under his weight. The body was found about 15 feet from where Coutts went through the ice.

ASTORIA ENCOURAGED BY GOOD NEWS FROM ALL SOURCES TODAY

President Reported in Favor of McNary Relief Measure Appropriating $3,000,000.

ASTORIA, Dec. 14.—(C. N. S.)—Cheering news has brought new hopes to Astorians. Senator McNary has introduced a bill appropriating three million for relief here and reports indicate that President Harding is very receptive and has recommended the bill for passage. The state highway commission voted to build the highway through Astoria if representatives and senators will promise their support for the legislature in January. This will save rebuilding Commercial street. Construction of the Tongue point naval base will be started February 1, word received from Senator McNary states, and thousands of men will be employed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(A. P.)—President Harding in a letter read today at the opening session of the national council of the farmers' cooperative marketing associations, declared he knew of "no single movement that promises more help towards present relief and permanent betterment of the agricultural conditions, than the cooperative organization of farmers to market their products." The program for the meeting includes a complete review of cooperative marketing, including cotton, tobacco, fruit, grain, dairy and other farm products.

RIVOLI TODAY

THE FEATURES OF BIG NEW PICTURE

Pirates being thrown headlong from towering decks; sword-fights while cannon boom, and a thrilling swing or life 130 across and over the deck of a rickish corsair craft—such are the thrill features of George Fitzmaurice's new Paramount picture production of "To Have and To Hold," with Betty Compson and Bert Lyell in the featured leads, aided by Theodore Kosloff and W. J. Ferguson in strong roles.

The pirate incidents were taken in the ocean off Balboa, Calif., aboard the South Sea trading schooner, "William G. Irwin," specially rebuilt for pirate purposes. A hundred tough-looking pirates with swords, pistols, bandannas and all the other earmarks of their calling, form a vivid background against which the principals play out their thrilling parts. Mr. Fitzmaurice devoted much time to the closing scenes in the luxurious banquet room of the court of King James I of England. This sequence, with its wealth of gorgeous seventeenth century costumes, particularly those worn by Miss Compson and Mr. Kosloff, is said to provide a strongly contrasting note to the color of the pirate scenes. In this banquet scene appear "in person," such notables as William Shakespeare, Ian Johnston and the Duke of Buckingham.

Quida Bergete adapted "To Have and To Hold" from the famous romantic novel by Mary Johnston which was a best seller some years ago. The picture will be presented at the Rivoli Theatre today. It should prove a strong drawing card.
