Mickelson among players headed home

English tops Farmers leaderboard

By DOUG FERGUSON

SAN DIEGO — Tiger Woods is gone from Torrey Pines, and Phil Mickelson joined him Friday by missing the cut.

In a tournament that quickly lost a big chunk of its star power, Harris English played another bogey-free round for a 6-under 66 on the North Course to build a two-shot lead Friday in the Farmers Insurance Open.

Mickelson, who worked hard to get into shape in the offseason and was as optimistic as ever, was done in by his short game. The best he could managed was a 72 on the North Course, and he missed the cut by two shots. It was the first time since 2002 that Mickelson missed the cut in back-to-back weeks on the PGA Tour.

Woods withdrew after 11 holes Thursday, citing tightness in his lower back. For the first time, Phil Mickelson, right, tips his hat after finishing on the ninth hole of the north course during the second round of the Farmers Insurance Open golf tournament Friday in San Diego.

Woods and Mickelson failed to make the cut in the same tournament in consecutive weeks on the PGA Tour.

“My putting is beyond pathetic,” Mickelson said. “And if I can’t get back to the levels of 2013, I’m not sure what I’m going to do. Because this is very frustrating.”

Mickelson is not playing the last two weeks of the West Coast Swing because his kids are on spring break.

He was in good company leaving early.

Justin Rose, at No. 5 the highest-ranked player at Torrey Pines, also shot 70 on the North and missed the cut. So did Hideki Matsuyama, who three-putted for par on the closing hole on the South Course to miss by one shot; Jordan Spieth, who needed an eagle on the 18th on the South to make the cut and hit it in the water; and Dustin Johnson, playing for the first time since a six-month break to get professional help for “personal challenges.”

“The last two days, I think normally I probably would be at least 5 or 6 under right now instead of even par,” Johnson said. “But I’m happy with where it’s at. Just a little rusty, that’s all.”

Ducks, Beavers invited to NFL Draft combine

East Oregonian

Eleven draft eligible players who attended Oregon universities were among the 323 pro football prospects invited to this month’s NFL Scouting Combine in Indianapolis, the league announced Friday.

Seven of the instate representatives come from the University of Oregon headlined by Heisman Trophy winning quarterback Marcus Mariota. He will be joined at the evaluation event by former Duck teammates offensive lineman Hroniss Grasu and Jake Fisher, defensive lineman Arik Armstead, defensive backs Ifo Ekpre-Olomu and Troy Hill and line-backer Tony Washington.

Mariota and Armstead were each among ESPN’s Todd McShay’s projected Top 10 draft picks released Friday.

Pac-12 rival Oregon State received three invitees: quarterback Sean Manion, defensive back Steven Nelson and linebacker Obum Gwacham.

Portland State punter Kyle Loomis rounds out the state’s list of participants.

Former Duck quarterback Bryan Bennett was also among the 15 passing prospects to get a bid. Bennett transferred to Southeastern Louisiana after the 2012 season. He was an All-Southland first-team selection both seasons with the Tigers.

Oregon defensive back Erick Dargan was among the notable combine snubs. Dargan led the Pac-12 with seven interceptions this season and posted a team-best 95 tackles.

The week-long even begins Feb. 17 and runs through the 23rd.

Jurors in Hernandez murder trial tour key locations in case

Associated Press

FALL RIVER, Mass. — A heavy police escort accompanied jurors in the murder trial of former New England Patriots star Aaron Hernandez on Friday as they toured key spots in the case, including Hernandez’s home, the street where the victim lived and the spot where his body was found.

For nearly 4 ½ hours, the coach bus, surrounded by police cars, made its way from Fall River north to Boston, then back to North Attleborough, stopping periodically to let jurors off.

Hernandez was not allowed on the tour, but lawyers for both sides attended, as did Bristol County Superior Court Judge Susan Garsh, who is overseeing the case.

On the way north, the tour also stopped at cell-phone towers that picked up data investigators used to build a case against Hernandez.

Hernandez is charged with the June 2013 killing of Odin Lloyd, a semipro football player who was dating the sister of Hernandez’s fiancée.

LLOYD’S STREET: Lloyd lived in Boston’s Dorchester section with his mother and sisters.

Massachusetts State Police blocked off his narrow street. Jurors exited the bus and stood on the street outside Lloyd’s home. Less than 20 minutes later, they left.

Prosecutors have said Lloyd got into a car driven by Hernandez on that street shortly before he was killed.

Lloyd’s mother, Ursula Ward, came home shortly after the bus departed. Ward testified this week but only after the judge instructed her to control her emotions and not to cry on the stand when looking at photos of her dead son. Ward remained stoic.

CRIME SCENE: Police cars were waiting for the bus when it arrived at the North Attleborough Industrial Park, where Lloyd’s body was found June 17, 2013.

At the time of the killing, the site was an empty gravel lot with vegetation growing all around. Now, it’s covered in snow. Jurors walked to the spot where Lloyd’s body was found and returned to the bus after around 15 minutes in the cold.

HERNANDEZ’S HOME: Jurors then took the 1-mile drive to Hernandez’s mansion. They then spent around 45 minutes touring the home.

Prosecutors said in court Friday morning that among the things they would point out were surveillance cameras in and out of the home.

Prosecutors had complained earlier in the week that religious items, trophies and other personal items had been added to the home since the 2013 killing.
