Paid sick leave mandate advances in Legislature

SALEM (AP) — Democrats on an Oregon legislative committee voted Wednesday to advance a bill that would require nearly all employers to give workers up to five days a year of paid sick leave.

The measure would extend a mandate enacted in Portland and Eugene to employers statewide and make Oregon the fourth state with a paid-leave requirement.

Democrats said their bill would give an assist to low-income workers, who are much more likely to have to give up pay when they're sick or need to care for an ill child.

"This is a bill whose time has come," said Sen. Michael Dembrow, a Portland Democrat who heads the Senate Workforce Committee. "If you look at our neighboring countries and countries around the world, the notion of paid sick leave, it's the norm."

Employees shouldn't be forced to choose between working while sick or forgoing pay, Democrats
