Police release surveillance video in shooting investigation

OLYMPIA (AP) — Law enforcement officials on Friday released surveillance video from a grocery store that is part of an investigation of an officer-involved shooting that wounded two men who were suspected of trying to steal beer.

The video released by the Thurston County Sheriff's Office in Washington state shows two young black men walking into a store holding skateboards.

Olympia Police spokeswoman Laura Wohl said in an email that officials have confirmed "that the individuals in the Safeway surveillance are the two suspects who were shot."

One is seen leaving with what appears to be a case of beer. When confronted by a store employee, the man tosses it near her and the case breaks, splattering liquid on the ground. The man then runs away.

Olympia Officer Ryan Donald was among those who responded around 1 a.m. Thursday to a 911 call from the Safeway store, which was released by the Olympia Police Department on Friday. In that call, the store worker says her hand was hit when the case of beer was thrown at her.

Donald reported he was being assaulted with a skateboard before the shooting that left Bryson Chaplin, 21, in serious condition and Andre Thompson, 24, in stable condition. Police have identified the two as stepbrothers and have said they are expected to survive.

The stepbrothers are black, and the officer is white, but Police Chief Ronnie Roberts said, "There's no indication to me that race was a factor in this case at all."

Roberts said that officers arriving to the call split up to search for the suspects. Donald encountered two men with skateboards who fit witnesses' descriptions, and moments later, he radioed in that shots had been fired, the police chief said.

In radio calls released by police, Donald calls dispatchers once he spots the men, and again to report that he fired shots, and that both of them were running.

He tells dispatchers that one of the men "assaulted me with his skateboard."

"I tried to grab his friend," Donald said. "They're very aggressive, just so you know."

He then says he has one man, then both, at gunpoint and asks for backup.

Seconds later, he shouts, "Shots fired! One down," and again asks for more backup units. He then says the second man has been shot.

Chaplin was in intensive care, but his condition was upgraded from critical to serious, hospital officials said Friday.

The police chief said Donald wasn't injured, but an officer "has the right to defend himself" if a suspect wields an object that could be used as a deadly weapon.

He said that there is no known video of the confrontation between Donald and the two men, and noted that Olympia police officers do not wear body cameras and their cars are not outfitted with dashboard cameras.

Thursday's shooting is being investigated by a team of detectives from several agencies. Brad Watkins, chief deputy of the Thurston County Sheriff's Department, said two skateboards were recovered from the shooting scene and an investigation will likely take three to six weeks. The men weren't armed with guns, investigators said.

Donald, 35, who is on administrative leave pending the investigation, has been with the department for just over three years. No residents have filed complaints against him, and he was recently recognized by the agency for being proactive on investigations, Roberts said. He worked previously as an Army police officer, the chief said.
