It takes a village to create a village — Tamástslíkt Cultural Institute is seeking help this weekend in the construction of a teepee as part of the outdoor display.

Naami Nisháycht, our Living Culture Village, opens for the season this weekend. The outdoor cultural village will be open Saturdays through Sept. 5 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the cultural institute, which is near Wildhorse Resort & Casino. Each weekend will feature special themes and demonstrations.

This weekend, kids also can set up a child-size teepee. Along with the teepee construction, visitors will learn about traditional building materials used. In addition, those present can make their own tule mat coaster to take home.

In addition to viewing the structures, during the season visitors can learn about local foods, survival skills, uses of tule reed, the horse culture, and the manufacturing of goods, including the use of string for baskets, ropes, nets and bags. Activities planned include the stick game, making a tule duck decoy and hearing stories from tribal leaders.

The village season closes with a special children's powwow. The Sept. 5 event is open to all youths up to age 12.

Admission to the outdoor village is free with museum tickets. Regular admission is $10 for adults, $9 for ages 55 and up, $6 for youths 6-17, free for ages 5 and under or $25 for a family of four.

The museum is open Monday through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is free the first Friday of each month. Also, family passes can be checked out at many local libraries.

For more information, go to www.tamastslíkt.org or call 541-429-7700. The weekly activities will be listed on the East Oregonian's coming events calendar. In addition to the print edition, it's available at www.eastoregonian.com.

Go Green for Mental Health Awareness Month

MENTAL HEALTH AWARENESS MONTH

Did you know that 1 in 5 adults will experience mental illness in a given year? That is nearly 44 million adults who suffer from anything from depression or anxiety, to bi-polar disorder or schizophrenia. Unlike a physical condition that is apparent to bystanders, Mental Health illnesses are not often noticeable from the outside, and are left for the individual to deal with alone. May is Mental Health Awareness Month, an opportunity to support those who are silently suffering, and strive to destigmatize this often silent disorder. If you or someone you know is suffering in silence, speak up. Call Lifeways to schedule an appointment with one of our clinicians, we are here to help.
