Iconic Oregon film "Goonies" celebrates 30th anniversary in Astoria

The EO Media Group

In the opening scene of "The Goonies," the sinister Fratellis flee from the county jail — now the Oregon Film Museum — and the crime family takes police on a high-speed chase through Astoria.

The chase causes beloved Goonie Chunk to leap from his arcade game toward a window, where he smears pizza and spills his milkshake in excitement.

Chunk's location is never explained in the film, but Goonies fans have discovered the brief scene was shot inside Lower Columbia Bowl, Astoria's local bowling alley. Fans call it Chunk's Bowling Alley.

Lower Columbia Bowl Manager Casey Gray said he is still surprised the scene, which only lasted about 10 seconds, resonated so much with Goonies fans that they make it a point to visit the bowling alley.

"There was no mention of the bowling alley in the movie," Gray said. "If you blinked, you missed it.'

expecting Gray is thousands of fans to come through his bowling alley this weekend for the 30th anniversary of the film. The bowling alley will host 1980s-themed cosmic bowling Friday and Saturday night in celebration of the cult classic.

During the Goonies' 25th anniversary, Gray said, about 3,000 people visited the bowling alley. Up to 10,000 could come this weekend.

"We just want them to come in and bowl and have fun," Gray said.

Throughout the year, the bowling alley welcomes a few fans a day interested in looking out the same window as Chunk. The view is of Marine Drive toward the Astoria Bridge.

'We see that on a normal basis. They are on the coast and come through. I'd say three-fourths just stop in, and don't bowl," Gray said.

About six years ago, the bowling alley put a guest book by the window for Goonies fans to sign. Above the guest book is a world map, where fans can mark where they live.

The map is filled with dots in all 50 states and various countries around the Multiple guest books have been added, and include messages similar to those found in a high school yearbook.

Gray plans to remove the dots from the map and start fresh for the 30th anniver-

"People get bummed if someone already put a dot on the map where they are from," Gray said.

Gray has met Goonies fans from New Zealand, Australia, the United Kingdom and other countries throughout Europe. One fan came from Tibet with a translator.

A woman came in with a Goonies tattoo across her stomach, and a man visited with a tattoo of Chunk on his arm. Jeff Cohen, the actor who played Chunk, has come back to the bowling alley a couple of times.

"It's fun to meet people from where they are from and hear their stories," Gray
