DEAR ABBY

Ex-wife of cheater seeks a way to cope with anger

JEANNE PHILLIPS Advice

Dear Abby: I work for a court, and while I was at work the bailiff informed me he had civil papers to serve on my husband...

Dear Angry: Nobody likes to be played for a fool, and you wouldn't be human if you didn't have these feelings...

Abby, I have been with this man for 12 years. I had suspected affairs before, but he always came up with convincing answers...

I was still in college, I dated and fell in love with a married man I'll call "Jon." The split was messy in the end...

I have two children, and of course I left him. I haven't told my son why I divorced his dad because I don't want him to have a bad opinion of him.

I recently learned that Jon may be taking a position in my small company (only nine people). I believe we can be cordial...

I need advice. I'm now struggling and barely making ends meet. My son is mad at me because I can't fix my relationship with his father...

Dear Conflicted: Of course you tell your husband. If you don't and he finds out Jon will be working with you...

I try not to get angry, because no matter how I'm hurting I know I'm better off without him. How do I let the anger go?

Keep the relationship strictly business, for both your sakes.
