

Gov. Brown nominates Hermiston nurse for reappointment to state board

East Oregonian

Barbara Gibbs, a licensed practical nurse at Good Shepherd Medical Center, is among the few Eastern Oregon representatives on a list of appointments to state boards submitted by Gov. Kate Brown to the state Senate for confirmation.

Gibbs was appointed to the Oregon State Board of Nursing in 2013 for a term that ends Dec. 31, 2015. She received her degree from Blue Mountain Community College and has more than 30 years of nursing experience, according to information on the nursing board website. Pending Senate confirmation, she would be reappointed to the board with a term expiring at the end of 2018.

The Senate will consider the nominations for approval in November, according to a press release from the governor's office.

"I am grateful for these dedicated volunteers willing to lend their diverse perspectives to important topics for our state," Brown said in the release. "I value voices from across Oregon to help make the decisions that affect all of us."

Brown submitted 53 names for confirmation, 21 of which were reappointments. Only six, including Gibbs, were from Eastern Oregon: Regina Rose, The Dalles, Patient Safety Commission Board of Directors; Bennie Moses-Mesubed, La Grande, Commission on Asian and Pacific Islander Affairs; Kevin Loveland, La Grande, State Mortuary and Cemetery Board; Barbara Turnipseed, Ontario, Oregon State Board of Nursing; and Gary Marshall, Hines, Oregon Watershed Enhancement Board. Except for one nominee from Bend and one from Klamath Falls, the remainder were from cities west of the Cascade Mountains.
