

MOUNTIES: Dimmler gets EOU onto scoreboard in first half

Dimmler did amazing things for us, she was everywhere. Alexandria Cuaresma had good finishes."

Both of Cuaresma's scores came late in the second stanza to put the Eagles away, while freshman midfielder Megan Dimmler netted a goal midway through the first half to put EOU on the board. In addition, senior forward Crystal Schuder fired four shots, including three on frame.

In the box, junior keeper Jessica Parker tallied two saves to earn her eighth shutout of the season.

Northwest was led by four shots from Bailey Travis, while Lauren Patefield tallied three saves in the losing effort.

After EOU (16-2, 9-2 CCC) came up empty on its first four shots, Dimmler beat her defender and sent one home in the 21st minute to put the Mountaineers on the board, 1-0.

The Navy and Gold compelled Northwest to just one shot on goal in the first half, as the Mountaineer defense simply stymied the Eagles' attack.

EOU's defense paid dividends and eventually earned two quick scores by Cuaresma in the second half. Both Anderson and Dimmler assisted Cuaresma's goal in the 84th minute, and a mere 59 seconds later, Cuaresma did it again to put the Mountaineers on top, 3-0.

With Northwest (7-10-2, 6-4-1 CCC) pushing to get on the board, Gabriela de Andrade fired one on frame in the 88th minute, but Parker was there to scoop up the save.

MLB hopes for European games within 5 years

By RONALD BLUM Associated Press

BOCA RATON, Fla. — Major League Baseball hopes to play regular-season games in Europe within five years and return to Mexico for the first time since 1999.

Rob Manfred, who took over as commissioner from Bud Selig in January, has made expansion of international play a priority.

"I think the view is that the more you play in these countries on a continual basis rather than going to a country one year and then waiting five years to return, the better, in terms of developing baseball," Dan Halem, Major League Baseball's chief legal officer, said during a news conference Wednesday at the general managers' meetings.

"Mexico is a priority of ours, in terms of further developing it as a baseball market. Europe, which we really haven't done much in over the years, is also a priority, but nothing certainly has been planned yet. But I think it's the commissioner's goal to be able to play regular-season games in both Mexico and in Europe, certainly over the next five years."

San Diego and the New York Mets played a three-game series at Monterrey, Mexico, in August 1999, and Colorado and the Padres opened the 1999 season with one game there. MLB also has played regular-season games in Tokyo and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

In its election manifesto last spring before retaining control of Parliament, Britain's Conservative Party said it "will support new sports in the U.K., in particular through greater links with the U.S. National Football League, the National Basketball Association and Major League Baseball, with the ultimate ambition of new franchises being based here."

Blazers in the offseason, joining Wesley Matthews, Nicolas Batum and Robin Lopez. Lillard is the only starter left from that team, which went 51-31.

The Spurs finished the first quarter on a 14-4 run to take a 28-24 lead. It appeared at one point during the period that Lillard was having trouble with his right thumb.

Danny Green's 3-pointer gave San Antonio a 41-32 lead. Portland's Noah Vonleh was called for a foul on the shot, and Blazers coach Terry Stotts was given a technical for arguing the call.

The Spurs pushed the lead to 58-46 at the break.

Portland closed to within 64-62 on Al-Farouq Aminu's back-to-back 3-pointers midway through the third quarter, and Lillard's free throws tied the score at 66.

But the Blazers were stung in the ensuing moments when starting forward Meyers Leonard was whisked to the locker room with what turned out to be a dislocated left shoulder. He did not return.

Portland couldn't pull in front, and the Spurs pushed their lead to 97-87 on Aldridge's basket with 6:59 left.

TIP-INS

Spurs: The team arrived in Portland a day early and a group of players went sightseeing at Multnomah Falls, the largest waterfall in Oregon, located just east of Portland. Manu Ginobili posted pictures on Twitter.

Blazers: Guard Gerald Henderson, who had hip surgery in the offseason, made his first appearance this season for the Blazers, early in the second half. He played 18 minutes, scoring 12 points. ...

Lillard is the first Blazer with at least three 3-pointers in eight straight games since Damon Stoudamire over a 10-game stretch in 2005.

SIGHTINGS:

Gary Payton, the former SuperSonics great who played at Oregon State, was at the game. Payton's son currently plays for the Beavers. Portland Timbers coach Caleb Porter was also at the game. The Timbers are in Major League Soccer's playoffs and set to host FC Dallas on Nov. 22 in the first of a two-match series with the winner advancing to the league championship game.
