Kathlene Healy Stuvland

Pendleton
January 27, 1927-November 12, 2015

Kathlene Healy Stuvland, 88, of Pendleton died peacefully in her home on Thursday, November 12, 2015, with her daughters by her side.

Kal, as she was affectionately known, was born January 27, 1927, at Heppner, Ore., to James and Kate McDevitt Daly. She was raised on her family's ranch on Butter Creek. She graduated from St. Joseph Academy in 1945.

She met F.B.I. special agent John H. Boyajian of Newburyport, Mass., while he was on assignment at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation. They were married in Pendleton in 1948. They lived in Chicago and Boston where their two daughters were born. After John's tragic death in 1956, she returned to Pendleton. She was an office nurse at the Byers Avenue Clinic and later worked for Dr. Brennan and Dr. Bittner. In 1961 she married James P. Healy and moved to Heppner. Jim died in 1972. She remained in Heppner and continued to operate their propane distribution business, Heppner Nor-Gas. She retired and moved to Pendleton in 1992. She married Alan Stuvland in 1994; he passed away in 1996.

Kal enjoyed travel, golf, and her many good friends, but most of all her family. She was a devoted mother, grandmother and great-grandmother. Her sharp wit, keen insight and generous spirit will be dearly missed.

Kal is survived by her two daughters and their husbands, Marty and Jim Lieuallen of Adams, Ore., and Alene and Gerald Rich of Portland, Ore.; the loves of her life, her four grandchildren: Mary Lieuallen (Aaron) Alandt, J.T. (Christy) Lieuallen, John Rich, and Natalie Rich (Tyler) Storti; her three great-grandchildren: Riley Freeman and Rose Freeman and Beckett Storti; her sister, Patricia Boyd of Pendleton; her brother, Charles Daly of Heppner; and many nieces and nephews. H. Joy Marks

Hermiston
December 2, 1921-November 13, 2015

Joy was born Dec. 2, 1921, in Tangent, Oregon, and passed from this life Nov. 13, 2015. She was the third child of Delaware and Emma (Vollstedt) Faulkner. Joy was named Henrybelle at birth, the combination of the names of Del's favorite brother and Emma's mother's, both of whom passed shortly before Joy's birth. She grew up being known as "Henry" or "Hank," and it was only during her last year of college she changed to using her middle name.

Del was a mechanic by trade, though during the Great Depression there was little trade to work on. Emma, with the two girls, worked cannery and field work to make ends meet. Joy graduated from Albany schools and then as a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority earned a bachelor's degree at Oregon State. She then worked in the Ag/Econ department at OSU before being introduced to her husband on a blind date by a sorority sister. She and Gayle were married in 1948.

With husband Gayle, after he completed his degree at OSU, she moved to Hermiston, or as her boss the department chair at OSU, put it, "from the land of ever rain to the land of never rain." While embracing the sand and sagebrush of Eastern Oregon, she never lost her love of the greenery of the Willamette Valley.

Hermiston at the time (1949) was booming, with Umatilla Ordinance Depot, Hinkle rail yard and the building of McNary Dam all happening. Finding a residence was a challenge, though the couple found a rental on Beebe Street. They considered themselves fortunate as many (with good jobs) were forced to live in tar paper shacks or houses hastily thrown together out of empty ammunition boxes.

They bought a house on East Ridgeway where sons Tom and Rodney joined their lives. In 1964 built the home they were to live in for the rest of their lives, on a bluff overlooking the Umatilla River.

Joy was a "stay at home"

mom until the sons were out of the house, though even then, always involved in charity work and various clubs around town. She was an avid and keen card player, with a spirit of competitiveness that could be truly amazing. She belonged to the same bridge group for over 60 years, was a past president of Chapter DR of P.E.O. and a decades long volunteer with the Good Shepherd Hospital Auxiliary. She was a longtime member of the First Christian Church.

Joy was an accomplished seamstress, constantly knitting, crocheting and creating. Her upbeat attitude to life and her sense of humor even in difficult times were a blessing to all.

At age 85, in response to the urging of family, who thought all the memories she had needed recording, she tackled learning word processing on a computer. Although a lifetime touch typist, to her the computer was quite a foreign animal. Yet she began writing of her life story. This unpublished book finally ran to 180+ pages and is eye-opening in the details of a life that spanned 93+ years, the Great Depression, a World War, raising two sons and life in Hermiston from the town's formative years to today.

Joy was preceded in death by both parents, her husband Gayle; son Rodney and his wife Jeannie; her brother Marion; and her sister Katherine (and all Katherine's family). She is survived by son Tom; grandsons Jacob (Meghan), Derek (fiancé Sarah) and Devon; granddaughters Amy Runion and Katelyn Marks; and two great-grandsons, Benjamin (from Jake) and Noah (from Derek).

Memorial services will be at the First Christian Church at 11 a.m. on Friday the 20th. The family asks in lieu of flowers, contributions go to Agape House.
