First Draft Writer's Series features two poets

PENDLETON — A pair of La Grande poets are included in the upcoming First Draft Writers' Series. Featuring Nancy Knowles and Thomas Madden, the event is Thursday at 7 p.m. at Pendleton Center for the Arts, 214 N. Main St. It's free and open to the public. Knowles is a professor of English and writing at Eastern Oregon University and was the director of the Oregon Writing Project at EOU for more than 10 years. She publishes primarily literary analysis and articles on teaching English and writing and has been invited to read her poetry at the Roundhouse Reading Series and the Eastern Oregon Word Round-Up. Madden believes that good poems grow out of the imagination's intersection with both personal and cultural history, as well as landscape. He is especially interested in the role of his poetic imagination as it encounters his own European heritage and the impact of that heritage in the United States. He's been a reporter, a college writing and journalism instructor and playwright. He is writing a third collection of poems, tentatively titled "The Silas Chronicles." After readings by the featured writers, audience members may participate in short open mic sessions to read their own original poems or stories. For more information, call 541-278-9201 or visit www.pendletonarts.org.

Free workshop provides resume tips

PENDLETON — Those in the market for a job are invited to attend a workshop to assist with creating a professional resume that will highlight your skills and experience. The free Resume Workshop is Monday, Jan. 25 at 6 p.m. at the Pendleton Public Library, 502 S.W. Dorion Ave. Although the session is free, those planning to attend need to register and possess a current library card. For more information, call 541-966-0380.
