Massive sinkhole near highway along Oregon coast

PORTLAND (AP) — Transportation officials say a massive sinkhole has opened near a highway along the coast of southern Oregon. The Oregon Department of Transportation says a sinkhole off Highway 101 has been plaguing the Curry County town of Harbor since heavy rains last month. A contractor was working on it Thursday when the erosion started to accelerate on a nearby road.

A massive sinkhole has opened on a road near Highway 101 in the Curry County town of Harbor. Signs have been placed along the highway directing traffic to a detour.

Officials say the sinkhole didn't swallow any vehicles, and there were no injuries. Signs have been placed along the highway directing traffic to a detour. ODOT spokesman Jared Castle says drivers can expect delays of five to 10 minutes. The agency plans to get bids from contractors Friday so repairs can start quickly. Castle says ODOT wants the road partially opened within a week, but the entire repair could take eight weeks.

Deschutes River low; changes in irrigation schedule

BEND, Ore. (AP) — An Oregon irrigation district had to cancel plans to divert water for livestock amid concerns about low water levels in the Deschutes River. The Bulletin reports that the Arnold Irrigation District canceled the "stock run" planned for this week. Such runs are typically held for short periods during winter months. A request for comment from district officials was not immediately returned Thursday.

The district wrote on its website that a make-up stock run could be held if the river level rises. The next scheduled stock run is between March 14 and 18. Oregon Water Resources Department regional manager Kyle Gorman says officials are still trying to replenish Wickiup Reservoir after the last year's irrigation season. Less water is being released from the reservoir into the river.

Bill to raise Wash. smoking age passes House committee

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — A bill that would hike Washington's legal age to buy tobacco from 18 to 21 has passed out of a House committee by a 9 to 3 vote.

The House Health Care & Wellness Committee approved House Bill 2313 on Friday. The measure would also ban people under 21 from buying electronic cigarettes and vaporizing devices.

A recent poll by independent pollster Stuart Elway said 65 percent of 500 surveyed voters support boosting the smoking age to 21. The survey was taken Dec. 28-30 and had a sampling error margin of plus or minus 4.5 percentage points.

A Senate version of the bill, Senate Bill 6157, is scheduled for a hearing on Monday. A similar bill last year didn't get a hearing in the Senate.

Hunter rescued after falling in Columbia River

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP) — A Kennewick man has been treated for hypothermia after his wife was able to pull him from the Columbia River while they were duck hunting.

The Tri-City Herald reports that Justin and Melody Priest were hunting Thursday when Justin went out in a kayak to retrieve his second duck of the day. When he went to pick up the duck, he tumbled into the water.

After he had been in the cold water for more than 20 minutes, Melody Priest was able to swim to her husband and pull him to safety.

Due to the remote location of the hunting spot, first responders had a hard time finding the Priests. Benton Fire District 1 Capt. Devin Helland says they were able to locate Justin Priest and treated him for hypothermia.

Woman, daughter tested for Zika virus

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Health officials in southern Oregon say a woman and her infant daughter are being tested for the Zika virus, the mosquito-borne illness linked to a wave of birth defects in Brazil.

The Grants Pass Daily Courier reports that Josephine County's director of public health, Diane Hoover, made the announcement at Thursday's meeting of county commissioners.

Hoover says tests are being handled by the federal Centers for Disease Control and results should be back within three weeks.

Details were scant about the mother and daughter, and where they may have traveled. The World Health Organization has recommended that pregnant women avoid traveling to Central America and the Caribbean.
