Folklife announces apprenticeship

EUGENE — The Oregon Folklife Network is accepting applications for its Traditional Arts Apprenticeship Program for 2016.

The program honors excellent master traditional artists and culture keepers to apply with apprentices from their own communities, tribes, cultural, religious or occupational group for $3,000 stipends. The stipend pays masters to pass on their knowledge, skills and expertise to an apprentice of great promise to help ensure carrying on Oregon's traditions.

Oregon's many traditional folk arts also include southeast Asian dancing, Norwegian cooking and baking, logger poetry, American Indian basket weaving, old time fiddling, African-American gospel singing, saddle making and more. The OFN encourages applications from Oregonians engaged in these kinds of living cultural traditions emerging from a particular heritage or tribe. The program does not fund historic re-enactments, do-it-yourself revival crafts or those who practice traditions that are not part of their own cultural heritage.

Applications are due by Friday, April 1. For more information about eligibility for the program, contact Brad McMullen at ofn@uoregon.edu, 541-346-3820 or visit www.ofn.uoregon.edu.
