Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas — It's not just Adrian Beltre's production that impresses his Texas Rangers teammates. It's also his flair.

Beltre homered, doubled and drove in five runs, leading Yu Darvish and the Rangers over the Seattle Mariners 7-3 on Friday night in a matchup of AL West leaders.

Texas and Seattle, who play six times in 10 days, went into the game tied for the division lead. The Rangers have won five of seven-game homestand. UP NEXT Mariners RHP Nathan Karns (5-1) has four wins and three no-decisions over his last seven starts with a 2.76 ERA. In his only previous career start in Arlington, he received a no-decision last August while with Tampa Bay. Rangers LHP Martin Perez (3-4) has allowed two runs or fewer in six of his last seven starts and went into Friday having induced a Major League-leading 17 groundball double plays.

long time, you accumulate some numbers." Darvish (2-0) gave up three runs and six hits in 5 2/3 innings, striking out five and walking one while throwing 88 pitches. Last week, the All-Star ace made his first start since August 2014 and Tommy John surgery, allowing one run and three hits over five innings to beat Pittsburgh. Darvish didn't reach the same velocity Friday. He tried unsuccessfully to convince manager Jeff Banister to leave him in to face Dae-Ho Lee of South Korea for a third time. "As he approached the mound, I was trying to make eye contact and told him to not come out," Darvish said. "He turned his eyes away, and there wasn't anything I could do about it." Mariners manager Scott Servais credited Darvish with successfully turning to secondary pitches - like curveballs thrown as slow as 65 mph - while Seattle starter Taijuan Walker (2-6) who is 0-6 in his last seven starts, couldn't do the same. "He's a talented guy, and we certainly need him," Servais said of the 23-year-old Walker. "He'll get it back on track, but we've got to continue to work." TRAINER'S ROOM Mariners: SS Ketel Marte (sprained thumb) is scheduled to rejoin the team on Monday to begin a tian rallied to knot it 3-3 in the sixth.

The Eagles appeared to have the winning run in the bottom of the eighth inning when Dru Draper hit a hard fly to the gap in right-center with a runner on first. Tanner Macal rounded third and looked to have a clear path to the plate, but Tony Flores took the relay from Justin Kenney and delivered a perfect ball to catcher Thyler Monkus for the game-saving out.

"That was the most exciting thing ever. Tony made a great throw," Monkus said. "Everybody thought the game was going to be over right there but he made a great throw and got him out."

The Tigers finally broke the tie with no outs in the top of the 10th.

Grogan was hit on the shoulder by Santiam Christian reliever Daniel Hendrix to start the at-bat, then scored from first when Bailey got his fourth hit of the game on a double down the third-base line.

"Honestly I didn't even see the ball when it came off the bat," Grogan said. "I think I tracked it down at second (base) and once I seen it down and where it was played at by the left fielder I just went on home."

"I had two strikes and I was going to hit it wherever it was pitched," Bailey said. "It just happened to be down the line and (Grogan) was on his wheels. I kind of slowed down when I got to second actually because I was watching him. I saw that he was going to get there and that's more adrenaline than I've ever had going I think."

Woods followed with a single for his first hit of the game that scored Bailey. Woods finished with two RBIs, Monkus scored twice, and Jason Fitzpatrick and Flores both went 2 for 5 for Stanfield as the only other Tigers with multiple hits.

Grogan took the start on the mound and lasted eight complete but left with the score 3-3 after throwing 123 pitches. He struck out nine and walked four, and none of the Eagles' three runs were earned.

"Grogan pitched a great game. He just competed and battled and went as long as he can," Johnson said.

Woods allowed just two hits and one unearned run in the bottom of the 10th. "Earlier this week my arm was sore, but today I iced it a lot and I'm fine now," Woods said. "Those clutch hits, the amazing plays our players made in the field, it's just amazing, best feeling in the world probably."

He got the final out on a grounder to Flores at shortstop, who threw to Bailey at first to end the game after two hours and 59 minutes.

"It was tiring, one of the most tiring baseball games ever," said Grogan, who moved to third after leaving the mound. "For a sport that you just stand there, I don't know if I've ever been that tired."

"It was a fun game, those are the games you want to watch."

It was also a win that could make Thanksgiving dinners a little more interesting in a few Stanfield households. Grogan, Monkus, Bailey and Adrian Renner all became the second in their family to win a state title for the Tigers.

"The dog pile is the best thing in the world, honestly. It was insane," Grogan said. "Our brothers are always talking about the dog pile is the best thing, and it honestly was."

"Unreal, absolutely unreal," Bailey said. "The fans are great. They were so loud. They helped us get back into the game. That was tough, they're a solid team."

ROCKETS: Team set up strong for next year, losing only four to graduation

"We made some history and we're all really proud," said Ostrom, a junior now with two state title wins from the circle. "That was the big thing, and next year we're going to want to do even more."

As the designated visitors, No. 2 Union got first crack on Friday and came into the game looking for its first win against the Rockets in five attempts this season.

Jaiden Wright gave the Bobcats (20-5) a base runner right away and hit the game's first pitch on a hard line drive to left field for a single, but Ostrom left her stranded at first with a strikeout, a fly-out to center and a groundout to second.

Wright, who also started on the rubber for Union, went 2 for 2 with two walks and a run scored on offense.

"I expect her to hit the ball, she's really good," Ostrom said. "During the season she hit two home runs off of me and it wasn't a big deal because I know she's just a great player."

Bekah Roe also singled to left to lead off the Rockets in the first, and she finished 3 for 4 with two runs scored. Roe wound up on second thanks to a fielding error, then stole third on the first pitch to Jacey Wilson.

"We were definitely looking to get ahead early, just because we were worried about being overconfident," Roe said. "If I score then it gets the team going, especially in the first inning because I'm the lead-off. It helps the momentum keep rolling on down."

Wilson would walk, but Roe did score on Sara Weinke's sacrifice fly to center, which advanced Wilson to third after she had taken second on defensive indifference. Wilson scored on Dave's single to center, then Dave made it 3-0 coming all the way from first on a single by Shayla Walker (2 for 4, 2 RBI) that rolled through the legs of Union center fielder Taylor Baremore.

After Ostrom singled and Stacy Fitzpatrick walked to load the bases, Rhyanne Oates drew a walk to push in the fourth run.

Union scored a run on Ellie Clark's double in the third, but the Rockets added two in the fourth and three in the fifth to go up 9-1.

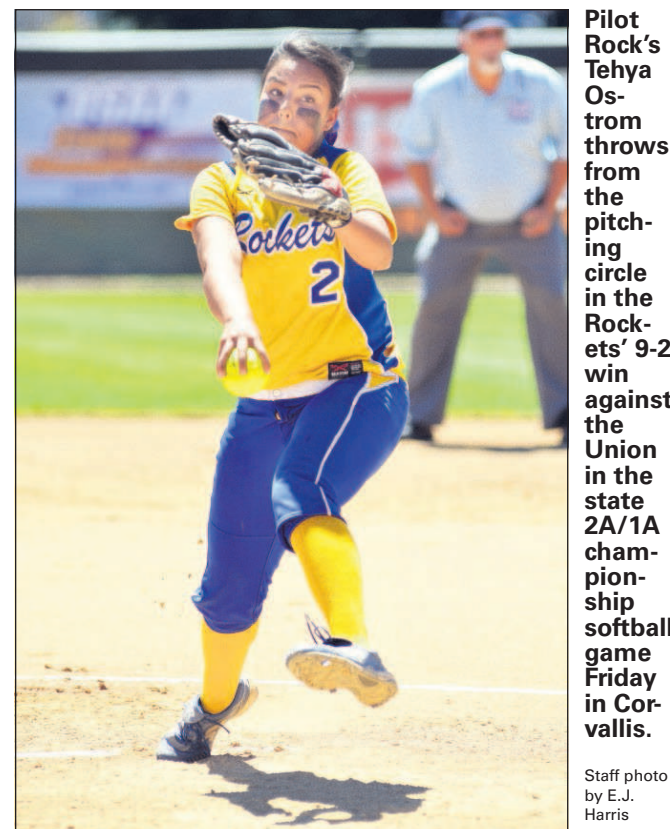

In the fourth, Dave doubled in Roe from second with one out and Weinke scored when Fitzpatrick drew a bases-loaded walk. The Rockets' runs in the fifth came when Wilson singled in Oates, who had walked, Dave singled in Weinke and Walker singled to score Dave.

Pilot Rock also buckled down when Union put pressure on them in the field and stranded seven Bobcats on the bases in the fifth, sixth and seventh.

"Union didn't make it easy. They made some nice adjustments," Darin Fitzpatrick said.

"Nobody gave up, nobody hung their heads," Dave said. "Even when we had this two errors, I think nobody giving up is what gave us that extra push today." Union scored its other run in the fifth when Clark (2 for 4) singled to drive in Rylee Montgomery with one out, but with bases loaded Dave got the force at home for the second out and Ostrom got Katie Good to ground back to the rubber to end the threat.

Only four players graduate from Pilot Rock's roster. Dave, pitcher Rebekka Holman and reserves Cayce Marshall and KyliSue Johnson.
