

PEANUTS

BY CHARLES M. SCHULZ

FOR BETTER OR WORSE

BY LYNN JOHNSTON

B.C.

BY JOHNNY HART

PICKLES

BY BRIAN CRANE

BEETLE BAILEY

BY MORT WALKER

GARFIELD

BY JIM DAVIS

BLONDIE

BY DEAN YOUNG AND STAN DRAKE

DILBERT

BY SCOTT ADAMS

THE WIZARD OF ID

BY BRANT PARKER AND JOHNNY HART

LUANN

BY GREG EVANS

ZITS

BY JERRY SCOTT AND JIM BORGMAN

DEAR ABBY

Woman with secret fantasies hesitates before sharing them

JEANNE PHILLIPS Advice

Dear Abby: I am in a happy relationship with a wonderful man. Our life is great together and I wouldn't want it any other way. I have one issue, however. I like to look at lesbian porn maybe a few times a week. I don't actually want to be with another woman — it's just a fantasy of mine.

How do I get over my feelings and convince him to be in our child's life? Or are my feelings justified and I'm just being a protective mother? — Protective Mother

Is this wrong? Should I tell my boyfriend? I don't know if I'm making too much out of this, or if there are other women out there who are in the same situation. — Curious In Texas

Dear Protective Mother: What a sad letter. It would be interesting to know how much of his abusive behavior was a result of his depression and PTSD. But if you think that a mentally and physically abusive man, who has changed his phone number and done his best to get out of touch with you, is a suitable father figure for a child, you are kidding yourself.

Dear Curious: Books have been written about the many varied sexual fantasies women have. Yours is not unusual, and you shouldn't feel guilty about it. Nothing compels you to share your fantasy with your boyfriend unless you feel a need to. (But if you do, don't be shocked if he finds it a turn-off, because many men also fantasize about women having sex together.)

You will, however, have a chance to make him live up to his financial responsibilities to the baby if you discuss this with an individual who is in a position to help you — an attorney. Don't wait; start the conversations now.

Dear Abby: I'm four months pregnant by my ex-boyfriend. We ended our relationship six months ago but continued to see each other for sex. He's in the Army and has been diagnosed with depression and PTSD. At first he was my knight in shining armor, but after I moved into his house, he became mentally and physically abusive.

Dear Abby: When I visited my sister 15 years ago, my brother-in-law tried to rape me. He was drunk and my sister was out with her friends. I have not revealed this to my family or my sister, who is emotionally and financially dependent on him.

He is now in a new relationship. He changed his phone number and hasn't checked on me or our baby in weeks. I want him to have a relationship with his child, but every time I look at him I see a liar, a manipulator and an abuser who doesn't care about either of us.

My niece is now 20 years old and in college. I feel I should tell her what her dad did to me and warn her to be careful. What do you think? — Never Forgetting In Pennsylvania

Dear Never Forgetting: Frankly, I think that if your brother-in-law was going to assault his daughter, it would have happened already, and you should have told your family what he tried to do to you at the time it occurred.

DAYS GONE BY

100 Years Ago From the East Oregonian June 8, 1916

Signed by many merchants and citizens a petition was presented to the council last evening asking for an ordinance for the licensing of professional peddlers. The proposed ordinance draws a distinction between the professional peddler and the farmer or producer who sells his fruit, vegetables, butter, eggs or other products from house to house. The petitioners also made it plain that they had no objection to this class of peddling. However, they declare that the professional peddler is unfair competition to the stores who pay taxes, rent and are called upon to make many contributions to public enterprises. Moreover, they declared that the professional peddlers, or many of them, are not honest with the consumers, selling them short weight and inferior products and then moving on to another city.

credited his Boy Scout first aid training with helping him to react quickly in saving his brother's life. Young Danny's shirt caught fire in the kitchen of the family home when he leaned over a gas stove burner to see what was cooking in a pot on top of the burner. He ran screaming from the kitchen with flames covering the upper portion of his body. Charles picked up his brother and carried him outside, rolling him in water in the driveway. Charles then extinguished the remaining flames with his hands. Danny was treated for second and third degree burns at Umatilla Hospital and at a Portland hospital.

50 Years Ago From the East Oregonian June 8, 1966

An Irrigon Boy Scout was one of 64 people nationally who were cited by the National Court of Honor of the Boy Scouts of America for saving a life and other meritorious action. On Jan. 4, 1966, Charles McKenzie, First Class Scout, was credited with saving the life of his four-year-old brother, Danny, who had accidentally set his tee shirt on fire. Charles

25 Years Ago From the East Oregonian June 8, 1991

Umbarger Ranches once was typical of old-style western cattle outfits, but that was before a new era dawned and the family operation rode into the present. The 62-year-old Pendleton ranch today sadly has lost some of its western flair. Dave Umbarger said of his 5,000-acre ranch. One thing Umbarger wouldn't trade now, however, is his farm's national ranking by the Beef Improvement Federation as the top commercial beef producer. Umbarger Ranches of Pendleton, managed by Dave and Sandy Umbarger, was honored in May at the federation's annual meeting in San Antonio, Texas. Helping in the running of the operation are the Umbargers' children Steve, John and Julie.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Today is the 160th day of 2016. There are 206 days left in the year.

Today's Highlights in History:

- On June 8, 1966, the strongest of a series of tornadoes struck the Topeka, Kansas, area, killing 17 people. A merger was announced between the National and American Football Leagues, to take effect in 1970.
- On this date:
- In A.D. 632, the prophet Muhammad died in Medina.
- In 1845, Andrew Jackson, seventh president of the United States, died in Nashville, Tennessee.
- In 1864, Abraham Lincoln was nominated for another term as president during the National Union (Republican) Party's convention in Baltimore.
- In 1912, the ballet "Daphnis et Chloe" was premiered by the Ballets Russes in Paris.
- In 1915, U.S. Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan resigned over what he viewed as President Woodrow Wilson's overly bellicose attitude toward Germany following the sinking of the RMS Lusitania.
- In 1948, the "Texaco Star Theater" made its debut on NBC-TV with Milton Berle guest-hosting the first program. (Berle was later named the show's permanent host.)
- In 1972, during the Vietnam War, an Associated Press photographer captured the haunting image of 9-year-old Phan Thi Kim Phuc as she ran naked and severely burned from the scene of a South Vietnamese napalm attack.
- In 1978, a jury in Clark County, Nevada, ruled the so-called "Mormon will," purportedly written by the late billionaire Howard Hughes, was a forgery.

Today's Birthdays: Former first lady Barbara Bush is 91. Actor-comedian Jerry Stiller is 89. Actress Millicent Martin is 82. Actor James Darren is 80. Actor Bernie Casey is 77. Singer Nancy Sinatra is 76. Singer Chuck Negron is 74. Musician Boz Scaggs is 72. Author Sara Paretsky is 69. Actress Sonia Braga is 66. Actress Kathy Baker is 66. Country musician Tony Rice is 65. Rock singer Bonnie Tyler is 65. Actor Griffin Dunne is 61. "Dilbert" creator Scott Adams is 59. Actor-director Keenen Ivory Wayans is 58. Singer Mick Hucknall (Simply Red) is 56. Musician Nick Rhodes (Duran Duran) is 54. Rhythm-and-blues singer Doris Pearson (Five Star) is 50. Rapper Kanye West is 39.

Thought for Today: "Love hath no physic for a grief too deep." — Robert Nathan, American author and poet (1894-1985).

PHOEBE AND HER UNICORN

BY DANA SIMPSON

BIG NATE

BY LINCOLN PEIRCE

